We're no different?

The University of Arkansas. Where does our individuality lie? Well, we are the U of A, but so is the University of Alabama, University of Arizona, and University of Alaska. Even if we called ourselves A.U. that wouldn't help either, ala Auburn University.

Here we are located in Fayetteville. However, there is another Fayetteville in North Carolina. We are in the Ozark Mountains, but so is Southwest Missouri State, John Brown, Missouri Southern and Drury College.

We find value in our serene "Old Main." So what, North Little Rock has one too.

The largest University in the State? Big deal. Every state has one.

The Razorbacks have to be the most original mascot. Well, let's not forget, Horned Frogs, Schockers, Aggies, Green Wave, the Elephants, or gasp, the Game-Cocks.

"Woo-Pig-Soooo" has to be the most awesome cheer. Go listen to "Fight Texas" in Austin.

Our colors are red and white, but so is Nebraska's, Oklahoma's, Indiana's, and North Carolina State's.

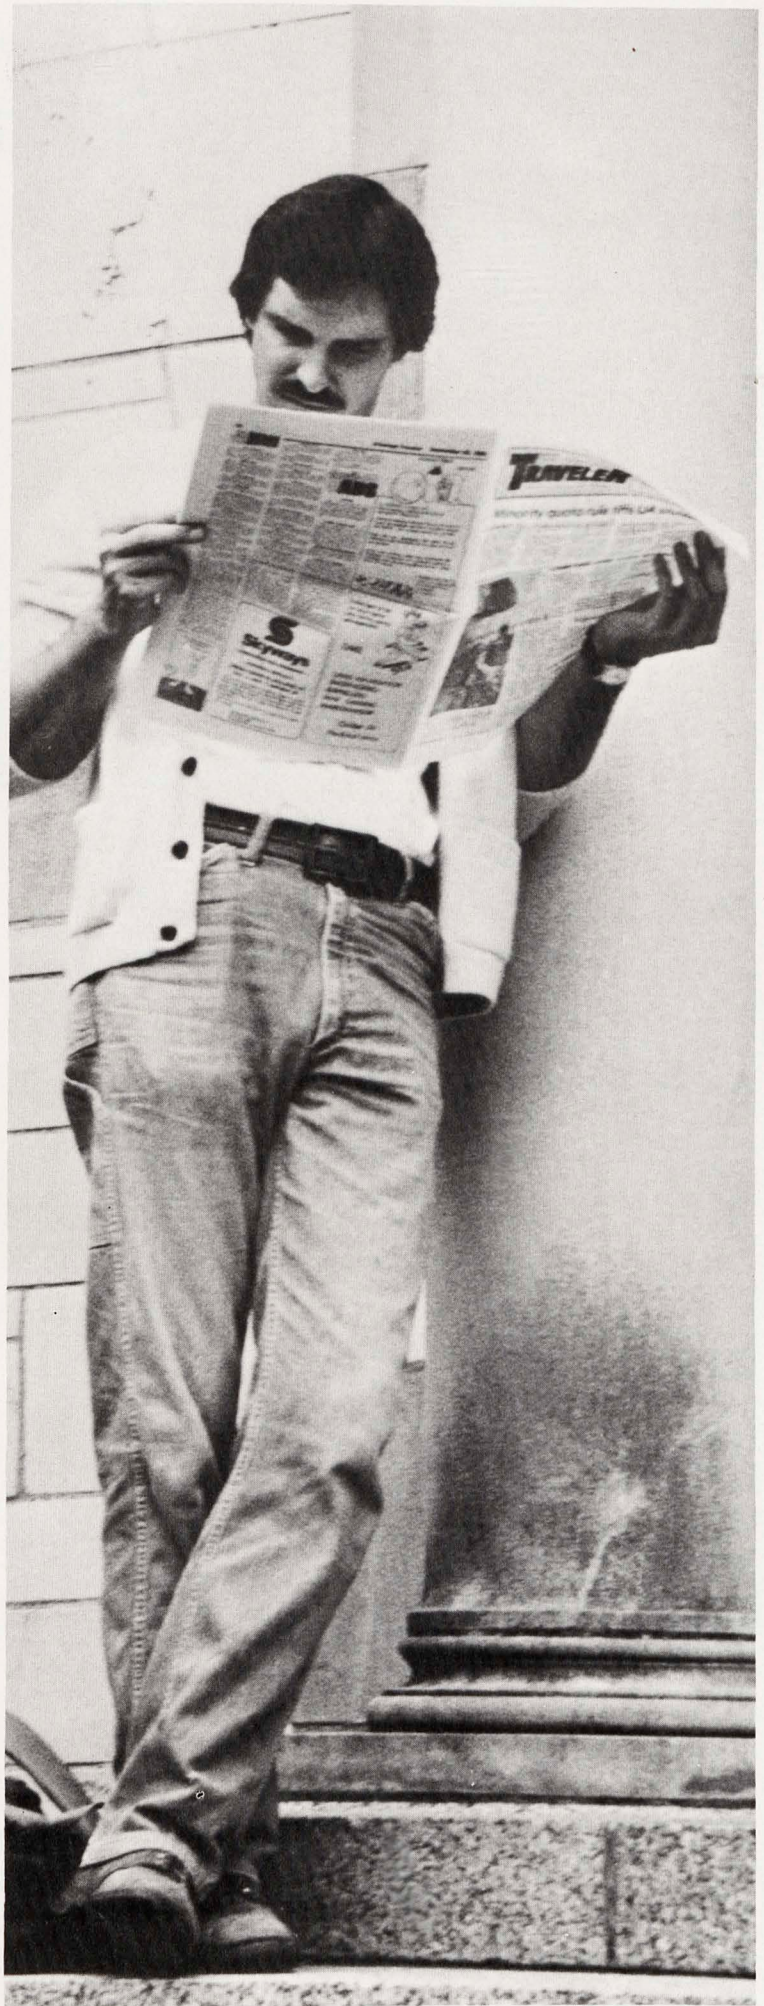

Even the name "University of Arkansas" isn't original. There is UA Pine Bluff, UA Little Rock, and UA Monticello.

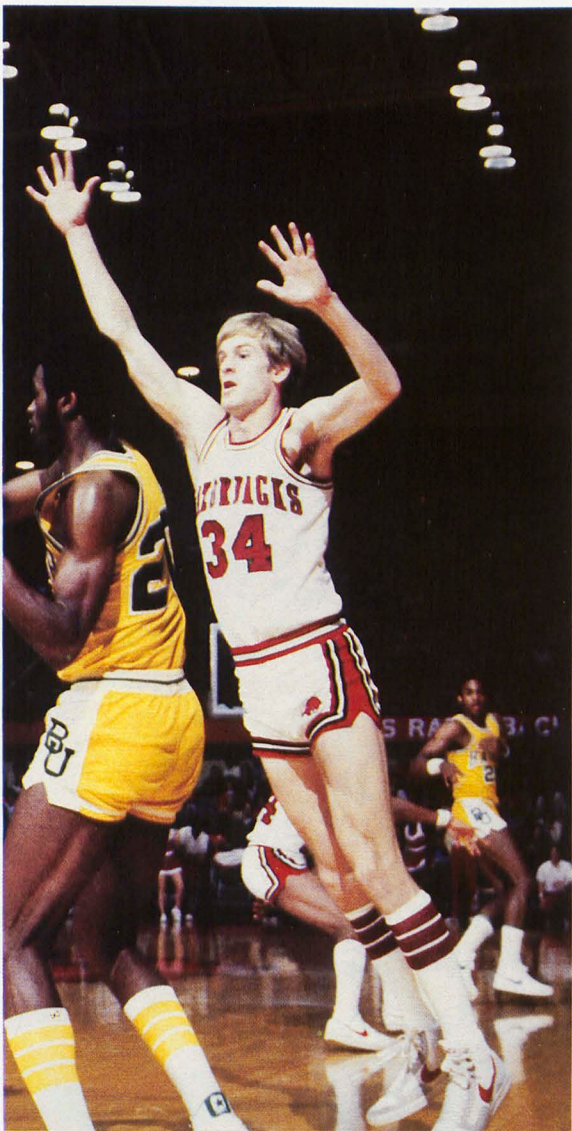

We are close to a Cuban settlement, but so is the University of Miami.

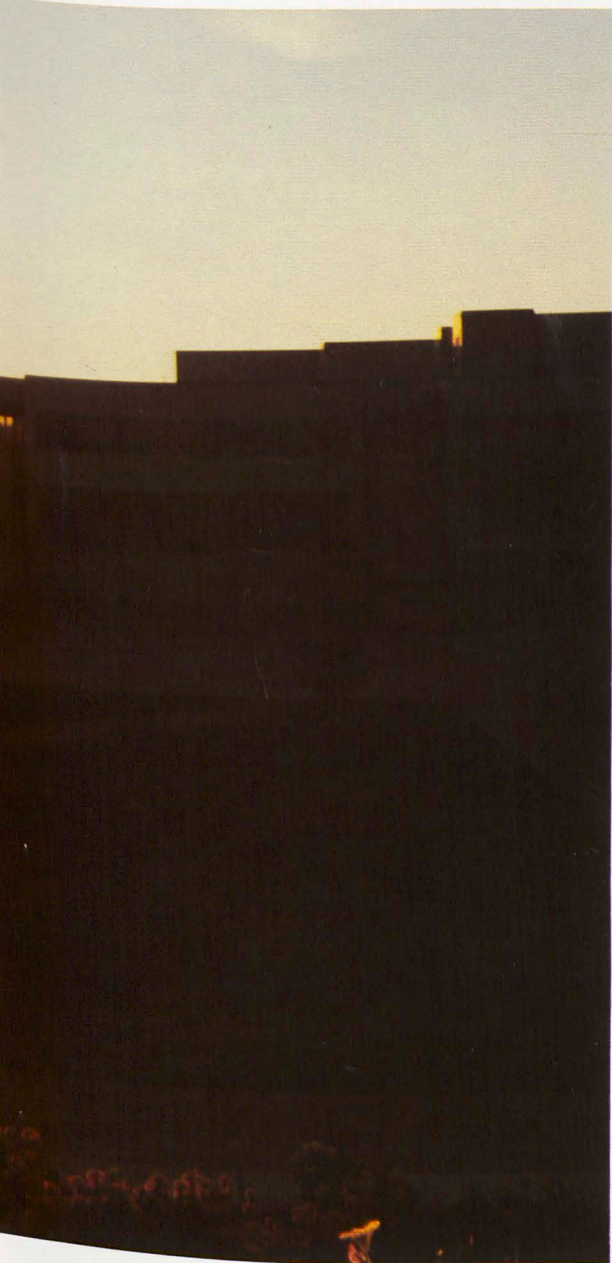

The campus was built in the 1870's, but so was most of the South (reconstruction).

We gained Frank Broyles from Georgia, and lost Bear Bryant to Alabama. We are the home of the Hogs, but so is War Memorial in Little Rock.

However, our "senior walk" is unequalled in the country.

Falls in Fayetteville are comparable to none.

The entire state supports the Hogs because we have no professional teams and we are the only NCAA division I team in the state.

We know more Aggie jokes than the Longhorns do.

The U of A possesses the Mother chapter of Chi Omega (afterall, there are no Chi Omegas at Purdue).

We have one of the finest Architecture schools in the country.

Our engineering schools is trying to keep its head above water.

We have the D-Lux, Dickson Street,

Maxines, Beaver Lake, Wedington, Gazebo, Brass Monkey, Old Post Office Mr. Burger, 7-Eleven (Pig Out), Hugos, Baskin Robbins, functions, hunchpunch, Dr. Martin, U.A.P.D., and the Union Plaza.

And don't forget HPER construction Ozark Hall, CC (Country Club), B.A., Hog Wild, Jim Robken, Swing March, Lou Holtz, Fight Song, Dancin' Razorback, and of course, Eugene the Dunkin Machine.

And, last but not least, and above all the rest . . . WE HATE TEXAS.

But through all the differences and similarities, one fact remains, above all the rest. THERE IS NO PLACE LIKE . . .

STYLISTICAL

by Bill Bowden

"My gosh, Muffy, where are my topsiders!" Fashion has taken a giant step backward. Common 1950's attire is now labeled "prep" and considered the thing to do in social circles. The University of Arkansas is classified as the preppiest school in the state, followed closely by Phillips County Community College and Arkansas Tech (where they sometimes use the same books they do at Harvard).

Khaki trousers are the crux of the prep ensemble. These things have been around since the "big one." This fad, taken straight from the military, will be around until the "final one." No prep wardrobe is complete without khakis (preferably at least four identical pairs). Semi-ironing is recommended.

Oxford cloth button-down shirts are almost as important as their khaki counterparts. Light blue and white are the preppiest colors. Strategic monogram placement is of the utmost importance on these shirts. Oxford cloth shirts with university stripes, usually blue or brick red, are ultra-prep.

Madras cloth shirts have only recently made their comeback into fashion circles at the U of A. Genuine madras cloth is handwoven by various families, each with their own specific plaid, in India. These families dig a hole in the ground in which to place their looms, so that they can weave while sitting down.

The vegetable dyes used in genuine madras cloth are guaranteed to run, thus the garment requires delicate treatment. Patchwork madras cloth trousers are the epitome of prep, and are only worn by the devout prep who would not mind being seen in his pajamas in public.

Izod Lacoste short-sleeve knit shirts are the preppiest shirts for summer. Only the two-button, all-cotton Izod shirt is acceptable. The three-button, cotton/polyester blend is known as the "discozod." These shirts bear a crocodile on the upper left portion of the chest.

This crocodile, often mistakenly referred to as an alligator, was the logo for a French tennis player, known as the crocodile because he played with his mouth open. Izod began as his line of tennis clothing.

Ellis Trumbo boasts sales of 1,200 Izod knits annually by his store, Trumbo's Men's Wear in the Northwest Arkansas Mall. And that's not the only store in Fayetteville that carries Izod.

Polo short-sleeve knit shirts by Ralph Lauren are trying to give Izod a run for their money. The Polo shirt is similar to the Izod except the crocodile is replaced by a polo horse ridden by a preppy old man wielding a polo mallet. The best thing about buying one of these shirts is that everyone knows you spent a few more bucks on it than you would have on an Izod.

Top-siders are the accepted prep footwear. Sperry is the preferred brand, since they were the original. These moccasin-like shoes are comfortable but much too popular. Everyone and his dog has a pair of top-siders, but they're ashamed to wear them because everyone will call them a preppy. It's a vicious circle.

The adventurous prep battles the dilemma by purchasing top-siders that are a shade off from the traditional chocolate brown. Tan is a suitable substitute. Girls can even get by with wearing brightly colored top-siders.

Girls in tartan skirts are common. These skirts are far from sexy and are well suited for girls with excessive fundamant. Stewart and Campbell tartans are the most popular. These tartans were once worn exclusively by the Scottish families their plaids represent. The Black Watch tartan was worn by a Scottish infantry in the 17th Century.

Gold add-a-beads and pearls adorn the prep female's neck, where they are accompanied by the traditional sorority insignia.

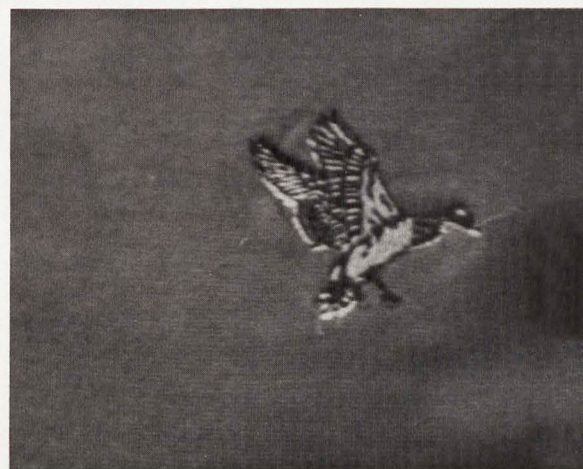

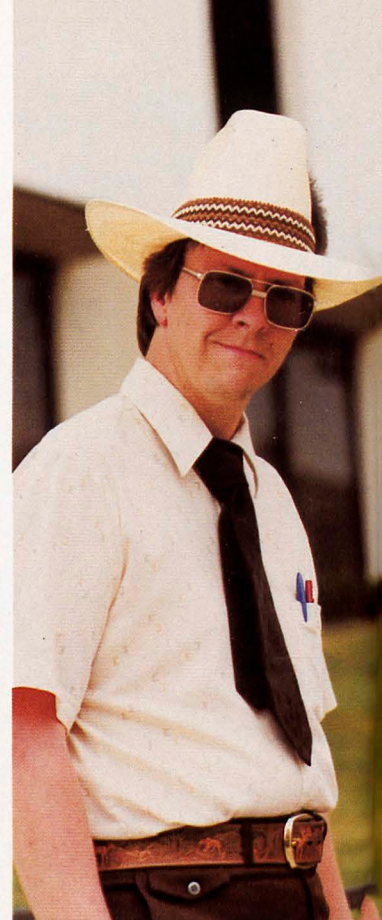

Sweat shirts and pants are chic among prep women, especially when the proper Greek letters are displayed. Pearls are not acceptable with sweats, unless you're so preppy you don't care.

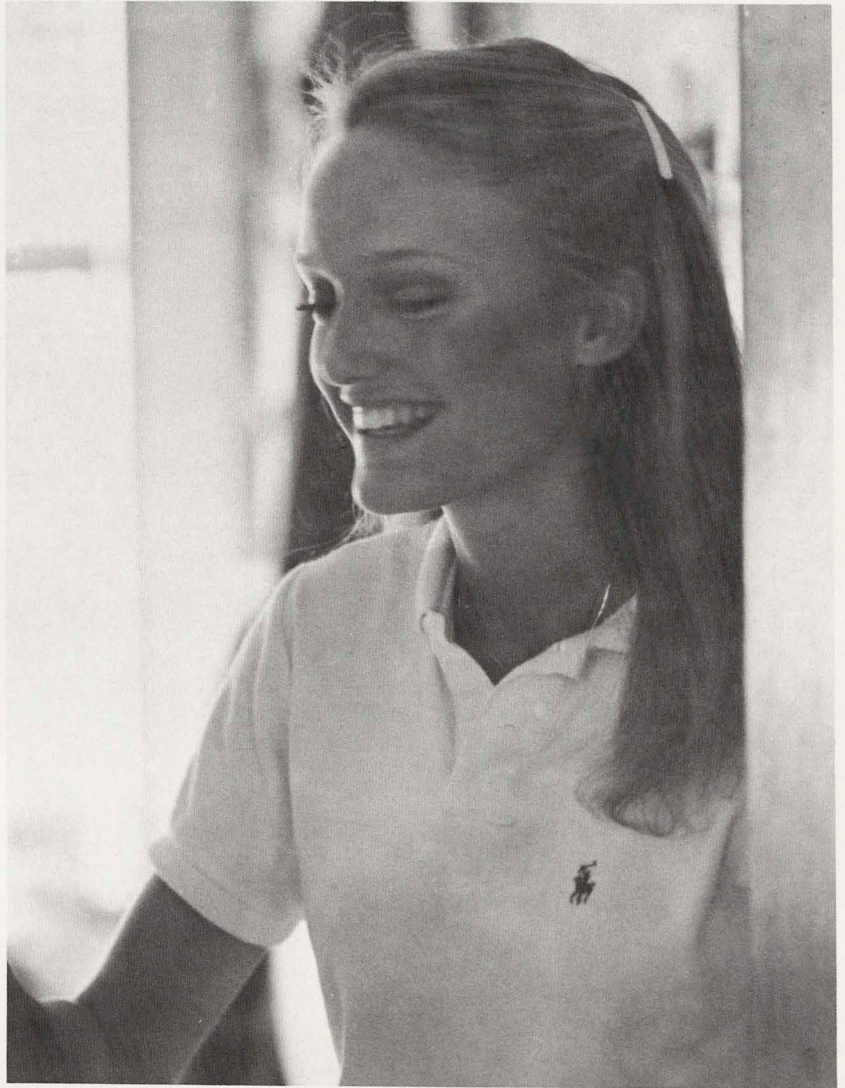

Levi's shrink-to-fit jeans (with the button-up front) are the most prevalent pants on campus. These were the original Levi's, ego considered traditional by the prep crowd.

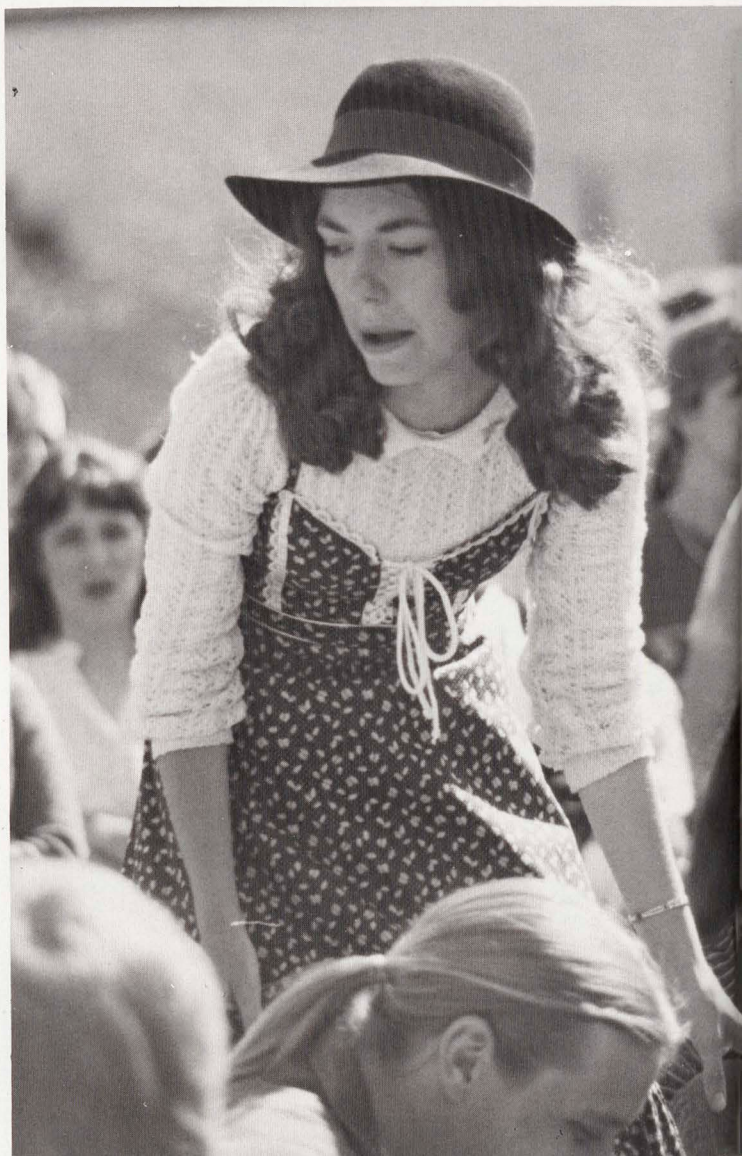

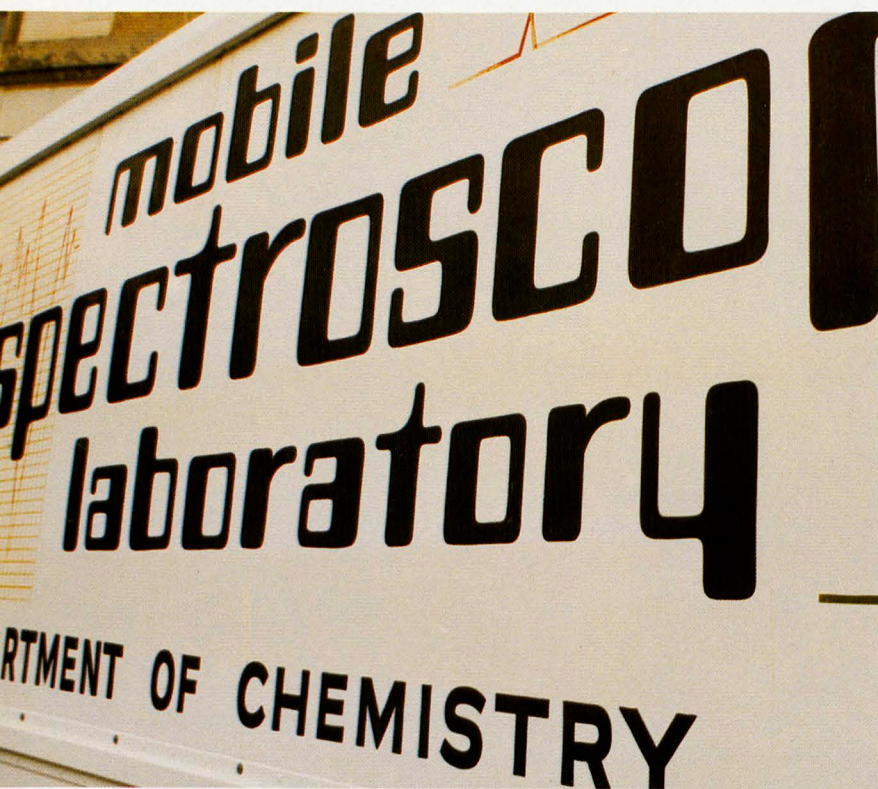

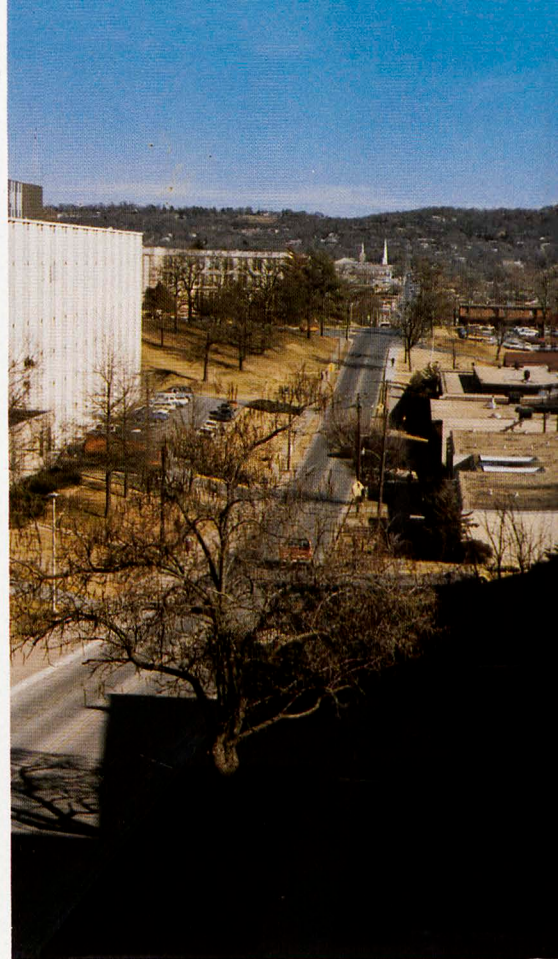

Penny and tassled loafers are popular when the campus preppy gets semi-dressed up. The oxblood color goes with anything. Only wing-tips are acceptable for suit and tie.

Spouting whale prints are preppy, but most guys prefer the flying mallard for its woodsy L.L. Bean look. Sailing ships and anchors are popular prep prints and give you that land's end look. These prints are often displayed on surcingle belts.

The best aspect of these new fashion trends is that they have run the traditional disco fiend out of town. Maybe he won't show up again until these fads get worn out in two or three decades.

On the Hill at the UA

by Jeff Williams

We never get what we need.

Every high school senior in Arkansas would spend four years on the hill in Fayetteville if they had their way. The attraction is part social, part Razorback and part academic. Part party.

A pinch of study.

Parents might as well give their kids $1,000 and send them to Acapulco for the weekend. The kid would get as much done and have at least as much fun.

The cream of the crop. They wind up in Fayetteville, Arkansas' social and entertainment Mecca. They Mecca out, become Chi-O's, SAE's, engineers, and drop-outs.

From our first day we wander campus, map in hand, to find our first class. New clothes, latest prep and oldest class, slide from CC to the Union, to racquetball in Barnhill. Quiet awe.

The hill is special to those who have spent time on it and probably means even more to those who never make it here but wish they could have. All state universities have a certain air of devotion and thrill. Most are bigger. Arkansas could disappear into many campuses around the country. After all, there are only a little over two million people in our whole state. Not a bad campus for so few people.

Physical Plant could have helped if they would have waited to see where we were going to walk before they laid the sidewalks. All the buildings need to be bigger. Every department needs more money and more equipment. Except sports and J. Frank.

The trees never grow. The ones that were here before the campus (or at least as long as Old Main, ahem, University Hall) are the only ones that grow and they're dying fast. The ones that were planted die, are pulled up, and planted again the next year.

The trees and students share common habits. Students fight for tickets to the games and trees fight for existence. The plaza (brick city in front of the Union, takes up space. Maybe somebody figured it would be easier and more conducive to studying to pave the way between the Union and the Library.

The library itself deserves some space. If nobody would have told the students it was seriously lacking in the number of volumes, they never would have asked or even known. Next to the Union, the library is where it happens. We go there to see who else is there, except when finals roll around and we need to seriously cram. It is quiet.

Visual impact is provided (save rushing coeds) by the Union. Lunch time soaps on big screen T.V. and erotic films exercise the eye. They service the students there, too.

The initial thrill of just being in Fayetteville fades slowly and for those who survive it lapses into an eternal yearning to spend more time here. It is an easy place to make school bearable. Not necessarily an easy place to make good grades, but fun.

Sure, the same problems remain as they do for all schools. There is nowhere to park so we park on the sidewalk, get towed away and spend half the day and all of our money getting the car back. A decent place to live for less than a pound of gold and your first born can't be found.

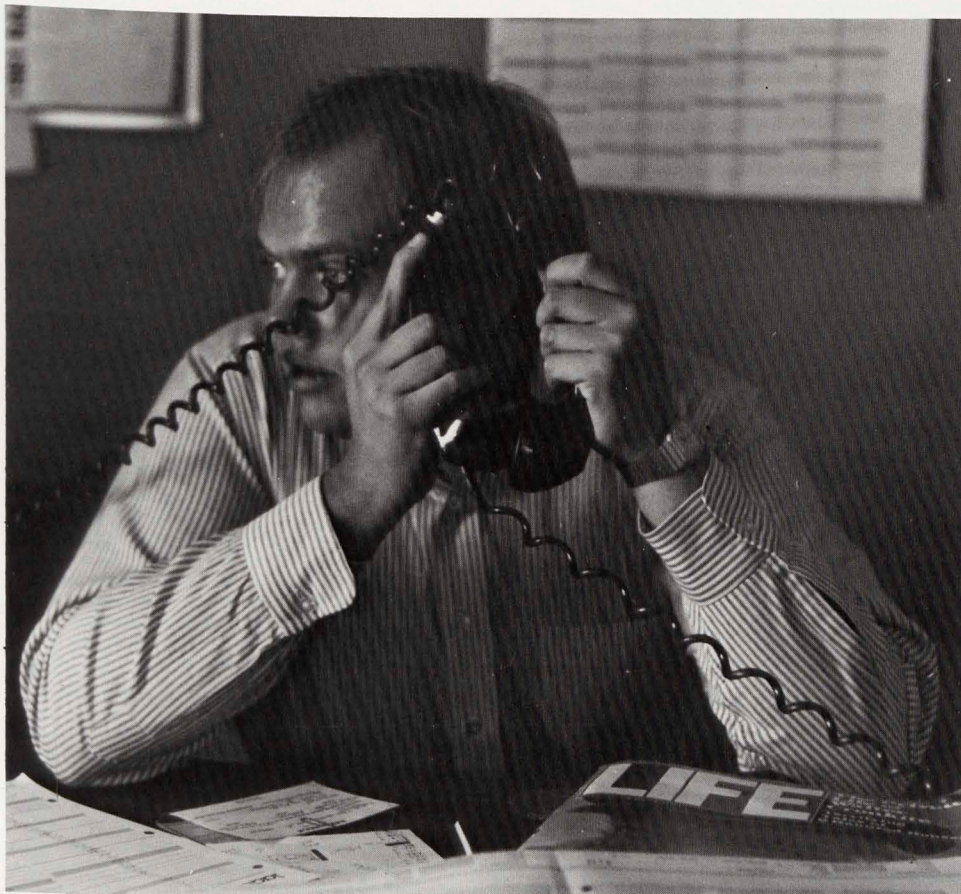

Registration is awful. Unless you pre-register. But, then you have to remember to go through pre-drop-add. And if you want to go to summer school you have to let them know.

Forget about graduating.

When living on the hill there are a few things to remember:

- 1) Send your roommate for tickets.
- 2) Put the phone in someone else's name.
- 3) Keep U.A.P.D. off your case.
- 4) Be nice to the secretaries.
- 5) Make copies of everything you give to the dean.
- 6) Assume nothing.

When spending four years here try to stay on the sidewalks. Take your time. Learn more than classroom procedure. Ride the bus and hope it's free.

Pep Rallies

UA Police Department

Campus security began at the University of Arkansas in the mid 1940's. The "force" consisted of one elderly man, employed by the Physical Plant as a walking patrol with a variable twelve-hour shift.

The 1950's saw an increase in guards, divided into three shifts, and the addition of one patrol car.

Two incidents in the early 1960's resulted in the disarming of the campus guards. The first involved an elderly guard who fired his weapon at fleeing suspects. The other involved a guard who discharged his firearm at a student who was attempting to break into a campus building.

Until 1972, security remained a guard type function. In June of 1972, a newly hired director began a reorganization of the Department.

In 1975, because of a general need, and renewed confidence in the Department, the Department of Public Safety began arming trained and qualified officers.

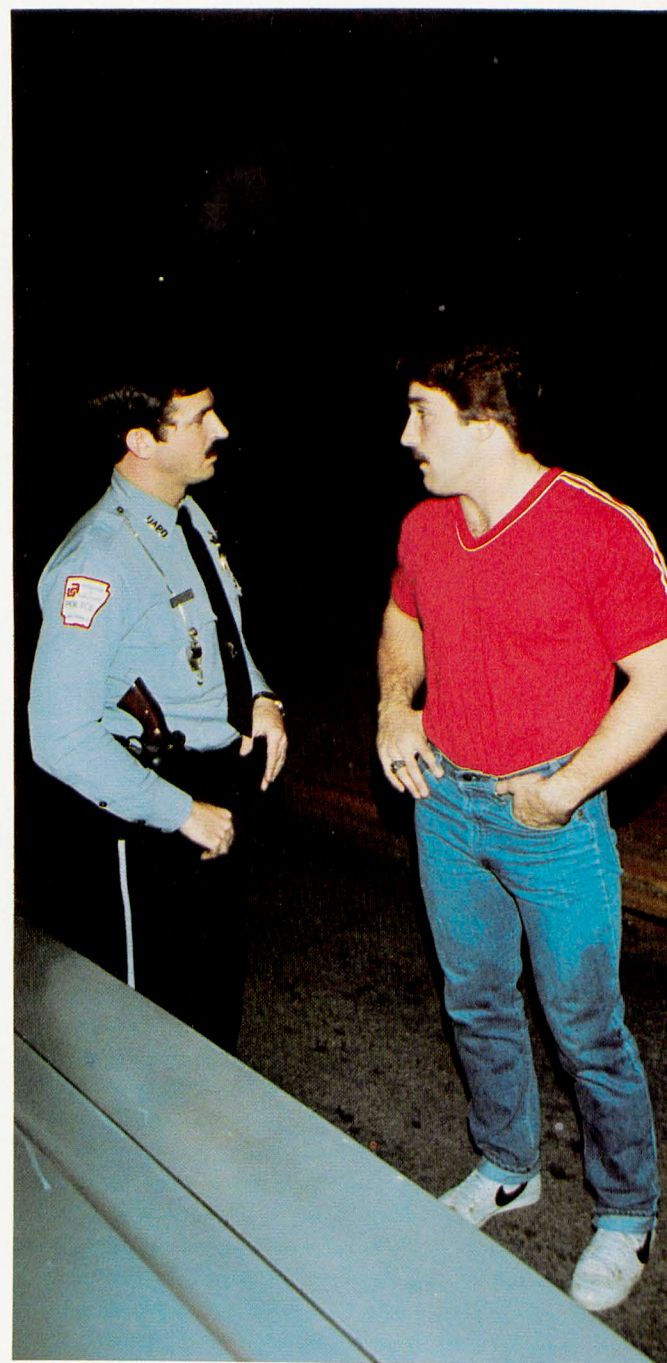

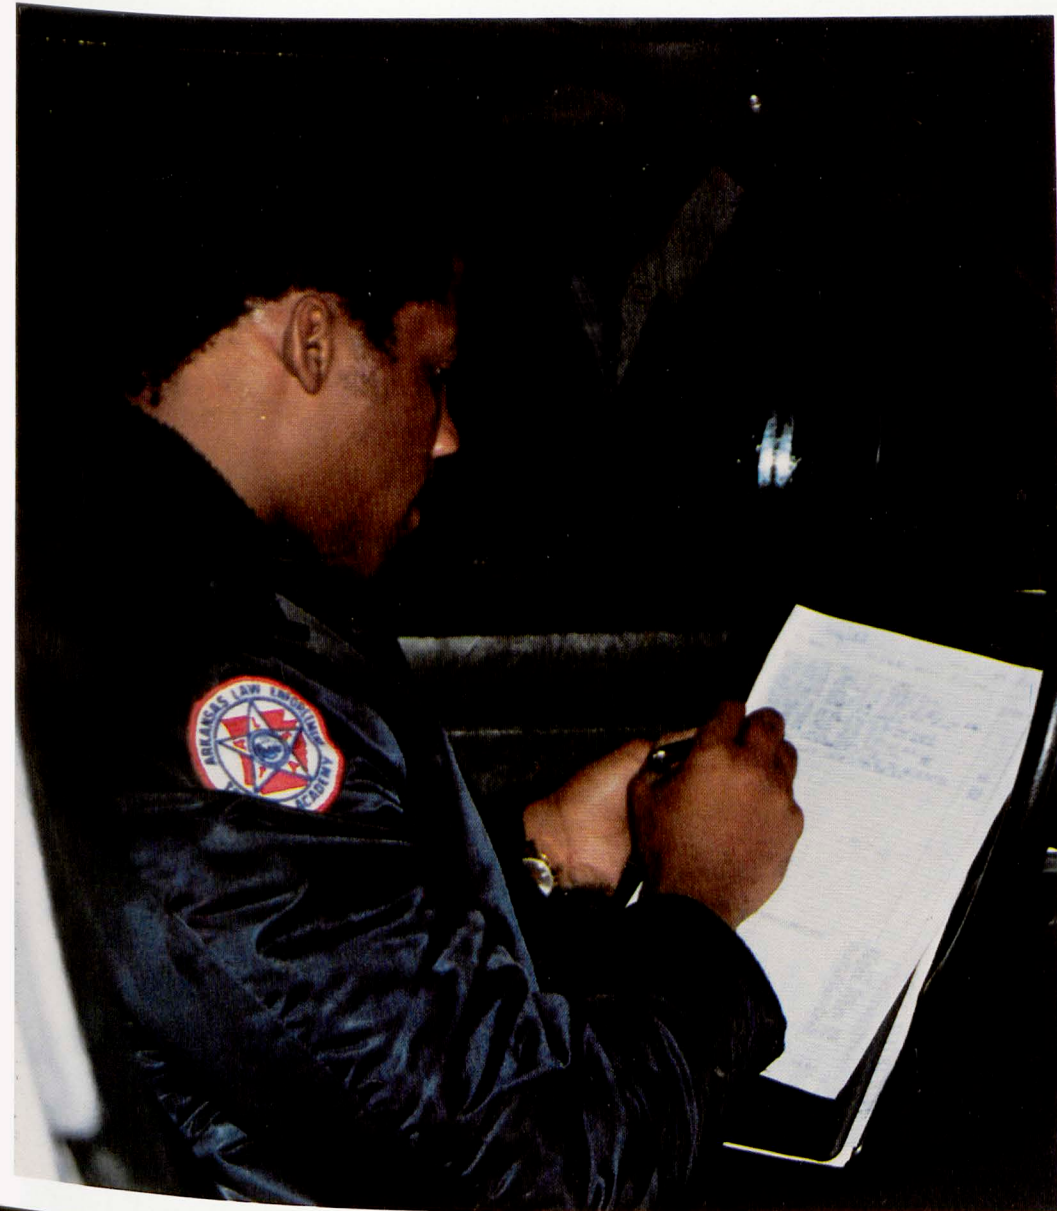

D.P.S. later became known as the University of Arkansas Police Department.

The Department consisted of four divisions, Patrol, Criminal Investigation, Training, and Crime Prevention.

An Escort Service began in 1981 and added another dimension to the U.A.P.D.'S services.

Larry Slammons served as Director for the U.A.P.D. in 1980-81 at the Department's offices on 608 Storer Street.

Here we go again

Did you think that after those final bars of "Pomp and Circumstance" that Martin Luther King's "I'm free at last" would hold some special meaning for you? Well, for those going on into Graduate School, it could have been more like John Lennon's "Starting Over."

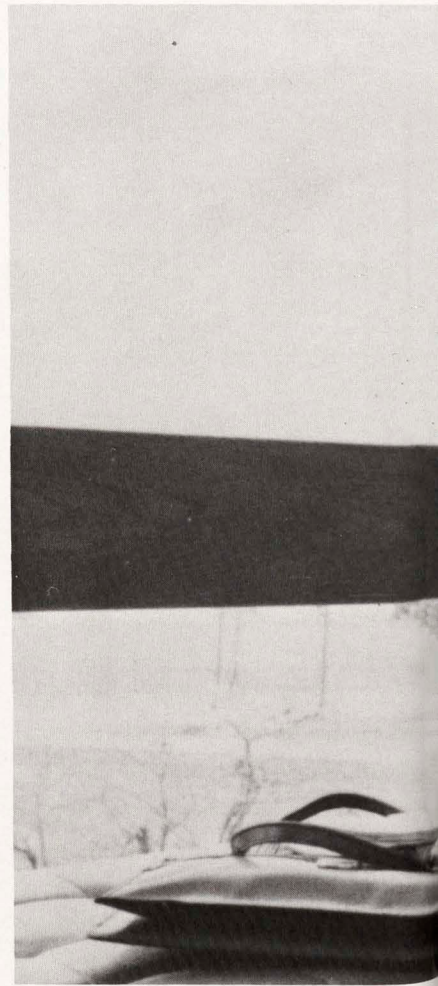

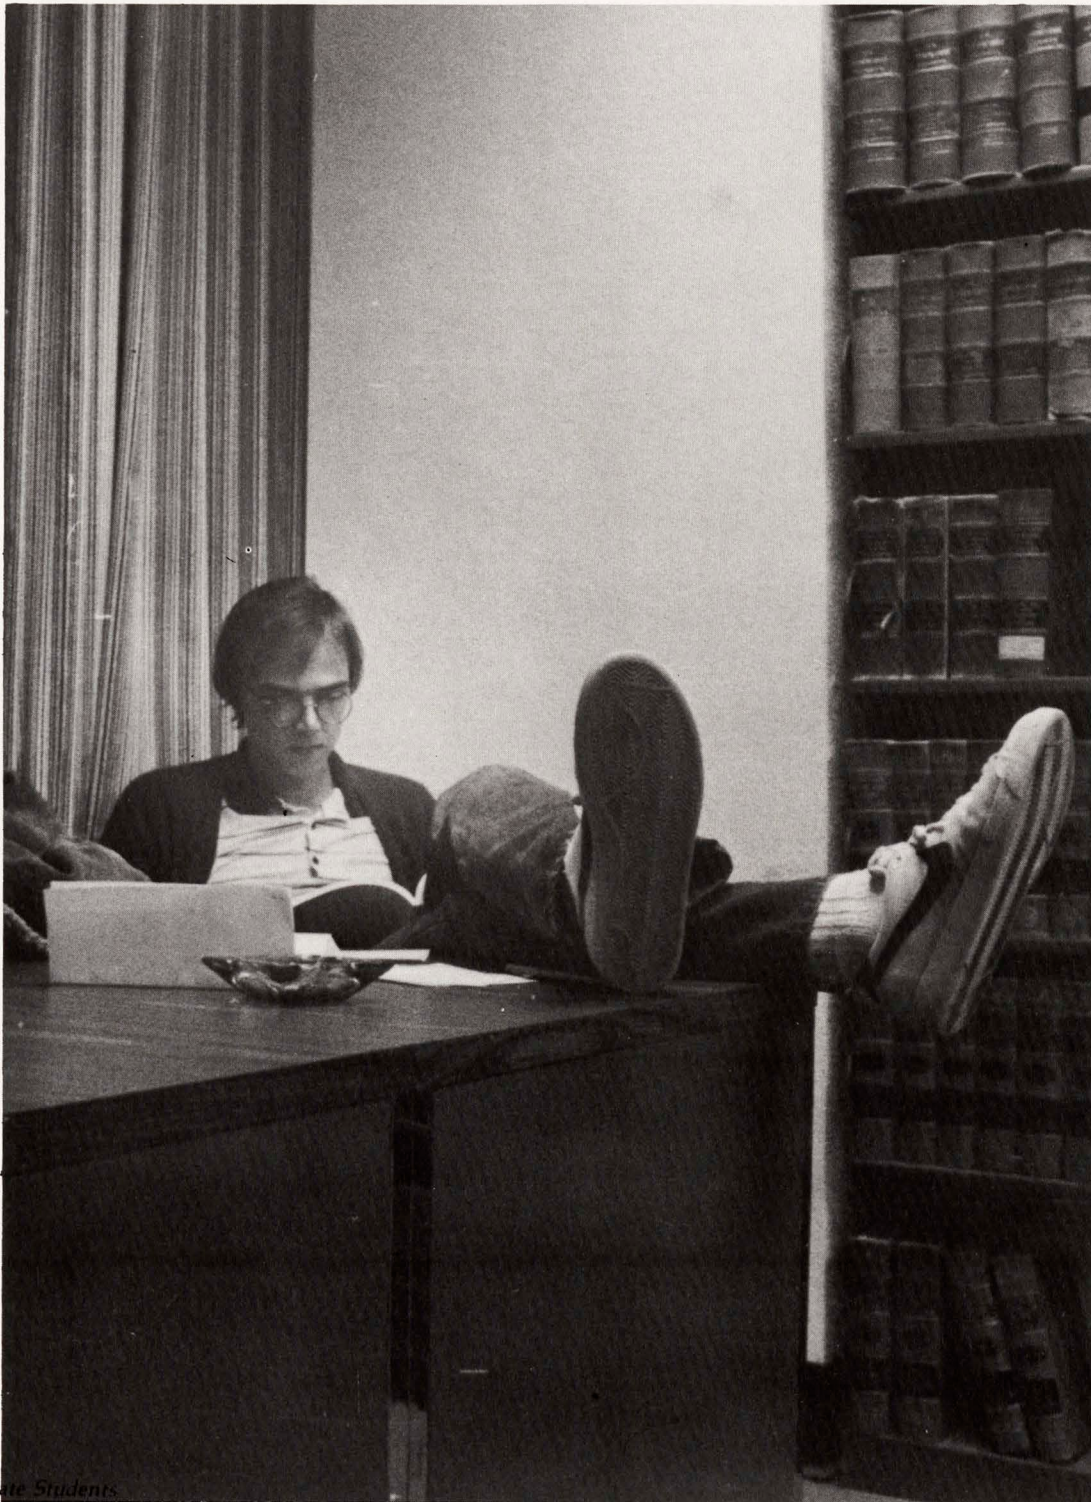

Degrees at the University Graduate School (with offices in Ozark Hall) ranged all the way from a Doctor of Philosophy to a Master of Music to a Master of Science in Mechanical Engineering.

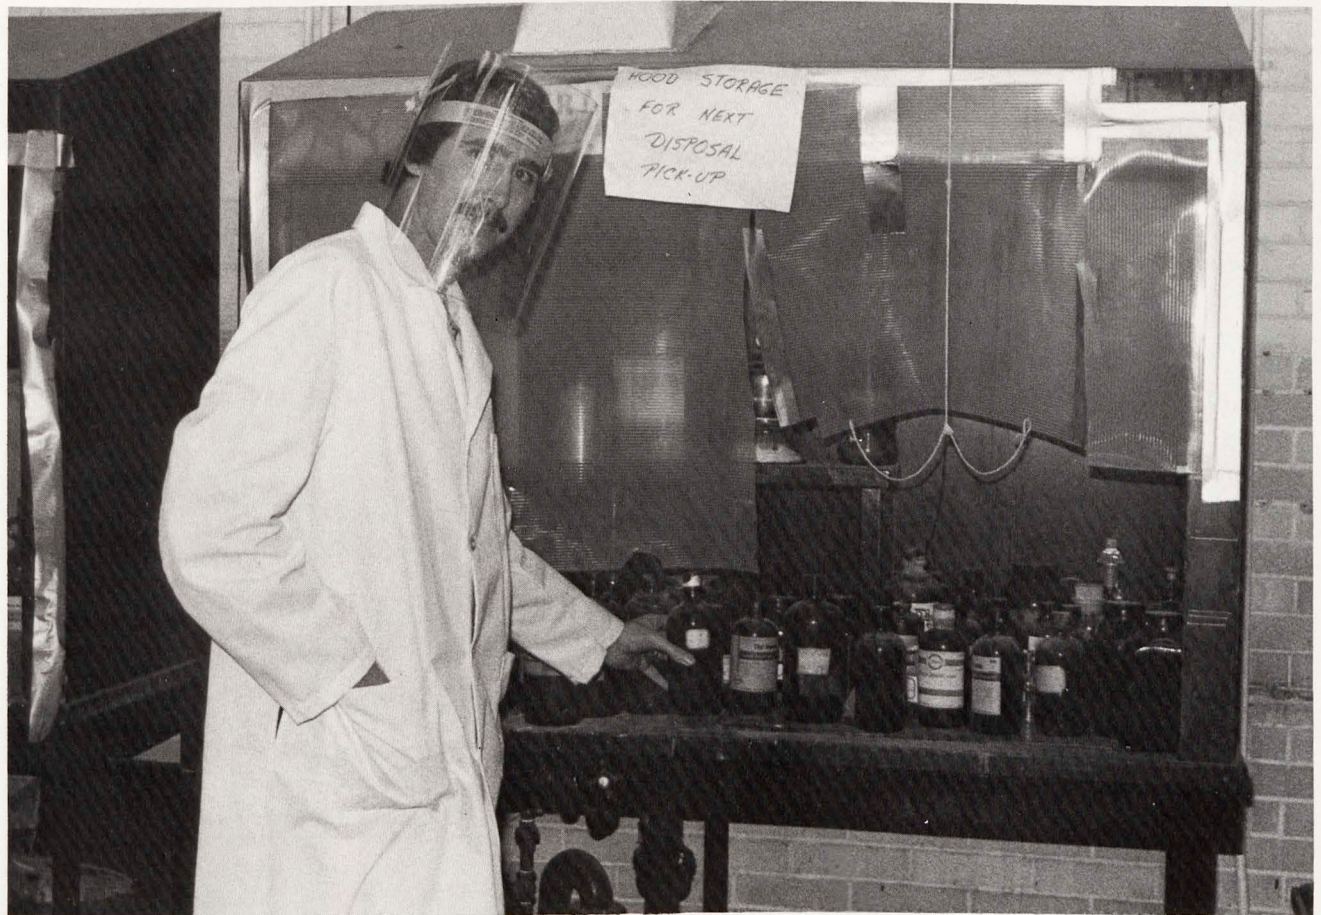

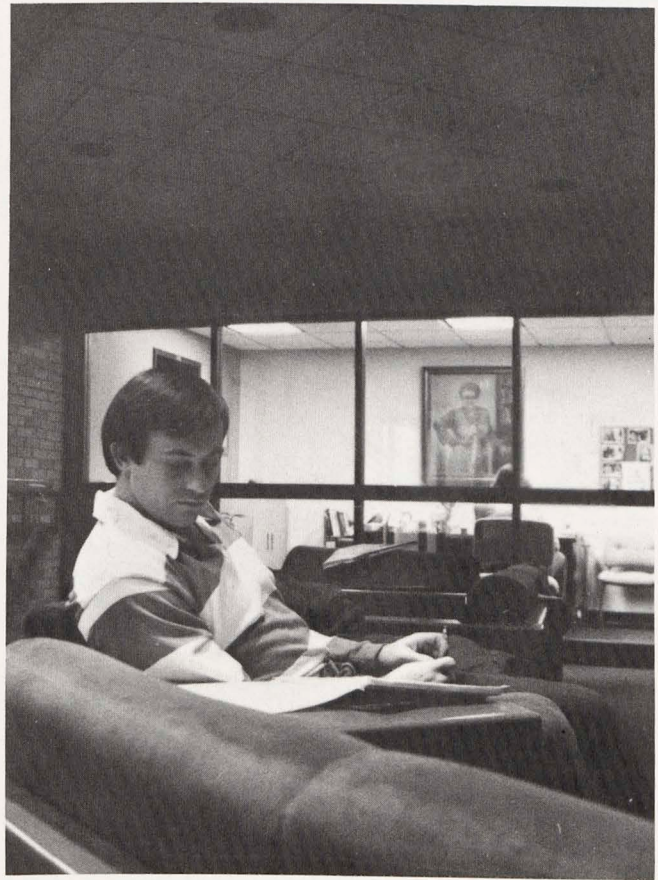

According to the catalogue of Graduate Studies, the purpose of the school became the "advancement and dissemination of knowledge."

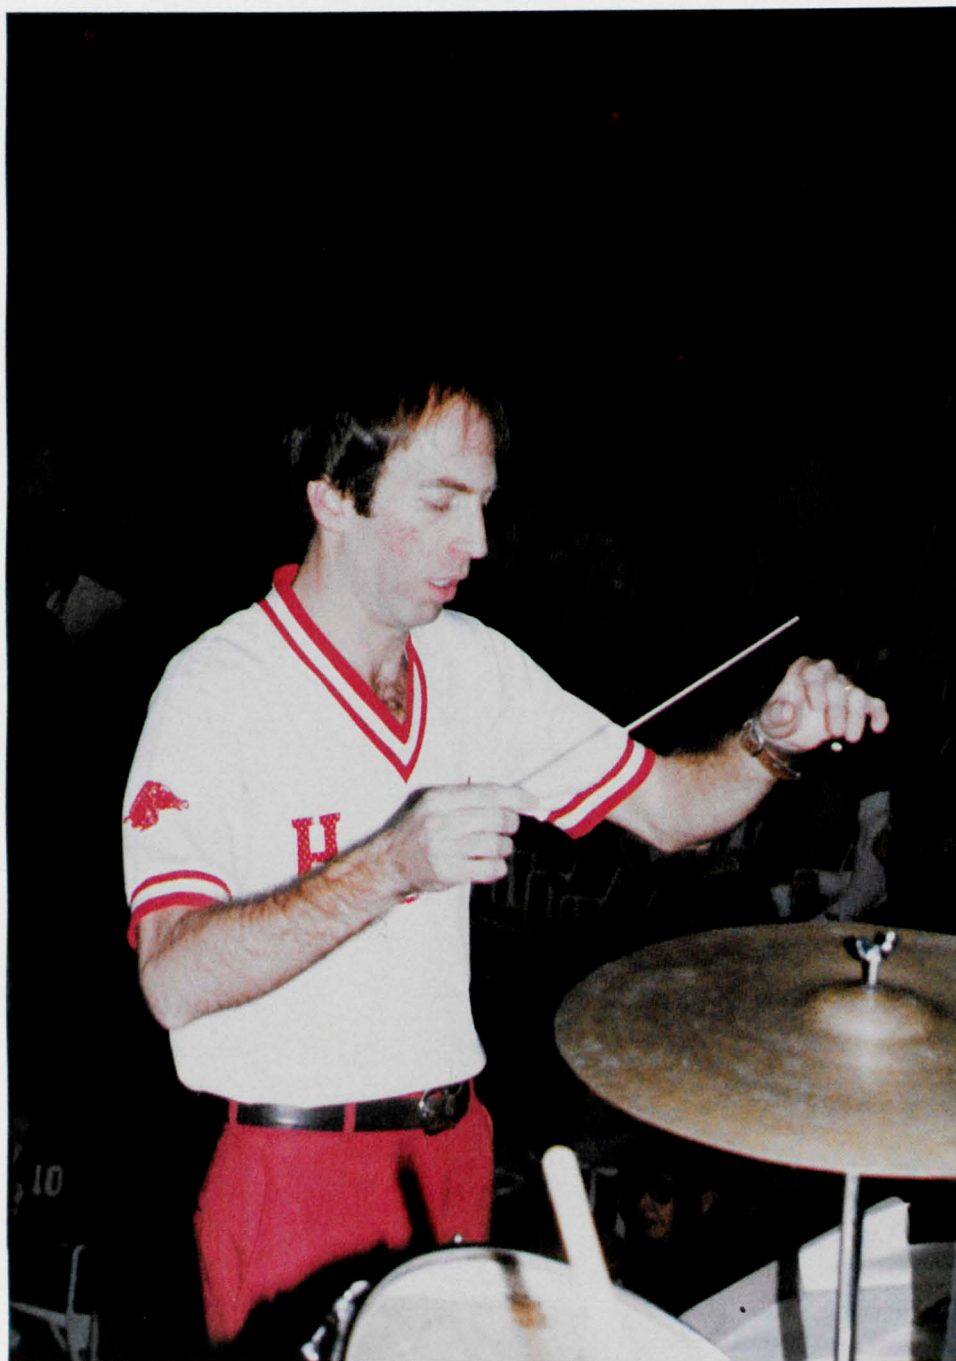

Many students took advantage of the Graduate Assistantships offered in their department. Recipients of such awards served as laboratory assistants, research assistants, readers, and teaching assistants. In order to participate in such a program, students had to carry a limited program of graduate studies.

A great many graduate students had already participated in "the real world" and had come back to school for higher education resulting in higher pay. However, the "professional" students could always be found.

Whether doing hours of research for a professor or an "all-nighter" writing on a thesis, students still looked forward to that day they could be "free at last."

Tie a yellow ribbon . . .

January brought not only a new year, but a new president and the renewed lives of fifty-two American hostages held captive in Iran.

Returning to ticker-tape parades and songs such as "America the Beautiful," the former hostages took pride in the revived patriotism of the "Land of the Free."

"Tie a Yellow Ribbon Round the Old Oak Tree" became the theme song for the ordeal, as yellow ribbons dotted the countryside in Fayetteville, as well as the rest of the nation.

A lot of changes had taken place since the "take over" in November of 1979. Arkansas saw a change in governors, while Cubans found refuge in Ft. Chaffee.

Arkansas, while jubilant over the return of two native sons, Robert Blucker and Steven Kirtley, grieved over the death of George Holmes, Jr., Crew Chief of the brave attempt to rescue the Americans.

Holmes, brother of University of Arkansas junior Rick Holmes, hailed from Pine Bluff.

Rick Holmes, along with his father George Holmes, Sr., appeared on Tom Snyder's Tomorrow Show after the hostage release to discuss the role of his brother.

Following their release, some of the former hostages went on the lecture circuit, while others attempted to resume every day life. The entire situation could have been said to have given true meaning to the phrase, "There's no place like home."

Off the Hill

by Mary Meadows

Apartment dwellers and off-campus students are the unsung heroes of the University of Arkansas. Without their keen insight of the University system and the surrounding community, the Fayetteville campus would lack variety and the means of gaining worldly knowledge beyond the boundaries of the University grounds.

By living off-campus, a student assumes a responsibility above and beyond his calling. Coping with grocery and utility bills may prematurely age the most determined of apartment dwellers, although Dad's credit card and a tearful call home can alleviate most financial problems.

Most off-campus students are former Dormies who wanted to escape the cafeteria cuisine. After a year or two of abused taste-buds and developing an iron stomach, a student often seeks refuge in an apartment complex. There, in the tranquility of his own kitchen, he may concoct delicacies to his hearts delight. The common diet of an off-campus student consists of hamburgers, Kraft Macaroni and Cheese, and generic green beans. Eggs provide for a versatile treat fried for breakfast, boiled for lunch, and made into an omelette for dinner.

A more conscientious student prefers not to have left-overs, the reason being that there is usually not enough room in the refrigerator. A close look at the Fayetteville off-campus student lifestyle reveals that most refrigerators are stocked with two cases of beer, a jar of grape jelly, and a moldy chunk of cheese left over from last month's wine-and-cheese party.

The pantry is stocked with only the most basic of essentials - crackers, a can of tuna, a roll of toilet paper, Ajax, dishwashing detergent, and a can of Lysol spray. Learning to live with these bare essentials develops character and integrity in the apartment dweller.

Apartment decor ranges from modern to traditional depending upon the individual. Most off-campus students own a variety of houseplants hanging from the ceiling, perched on countertops, or sprouting under the grow-lamp in the closet.

Posters on the wall add a colorful accent to every room, and no apartment is without an ashtray stolen from Pizza Hut or Holiday Inn. An apartment without a backgammon board or deck of cards is unheard of. Off-campus students cannot survive without a stereo, reel-to-reel, cassette player, and a pair of earphones - an apartment without music is like a refrigerator without beer. All soap operas start at 11:00 A.M. so a television set is a necessity to keep off-campus students informed of current events.

Off-campus students are invariable socialites and know the location of every restaurant, club, and bar in Fayetteville. They also know where to cash checks after 6:00 P.M. A true apartment dweller has knowledge of at least three parties every night or at best knows where to call to find one. His well-stocked refrigerator assures him of a good time if he stays home, but should he choose to socialize elsewhere, his car had been trained to deliver him safely and soundly to his front door.

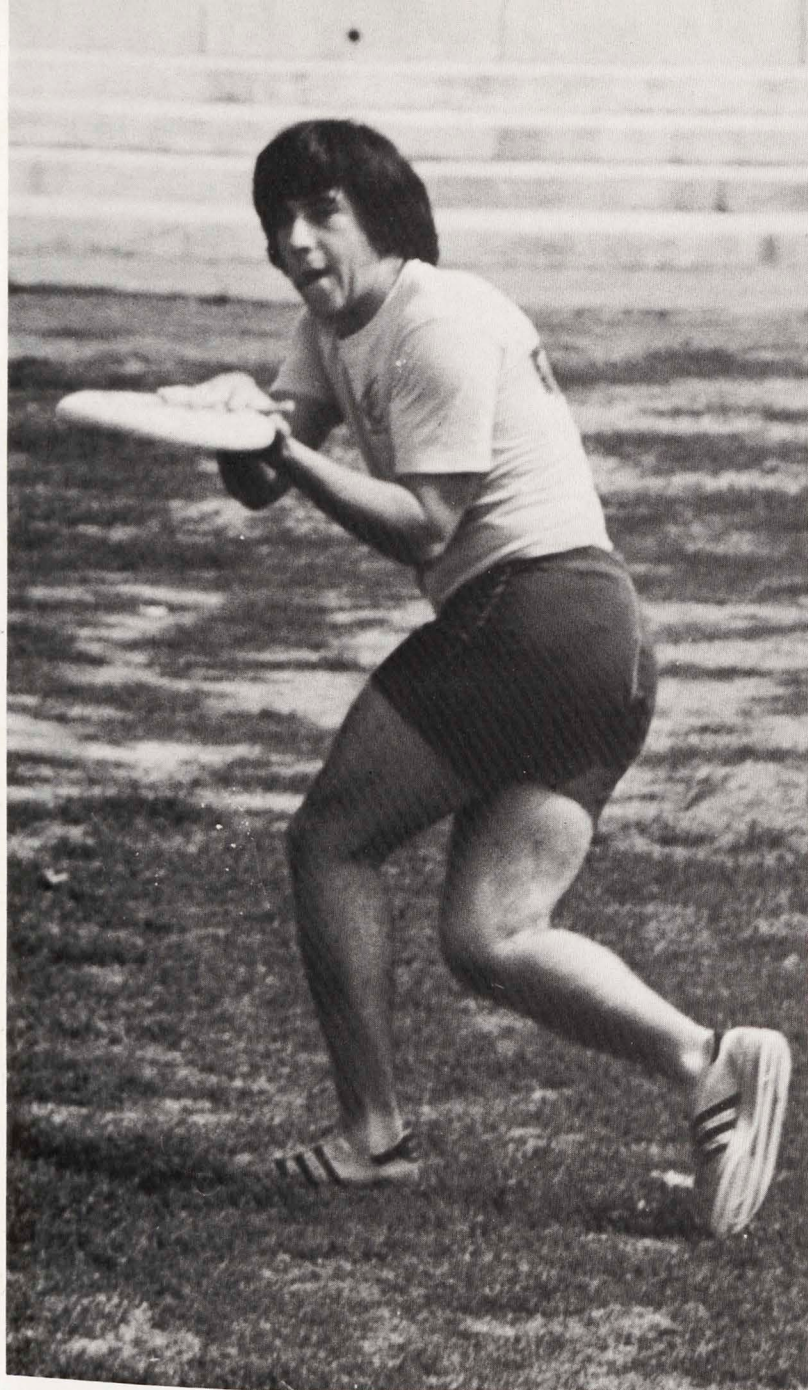

During the summer months of the year, the off-campus students' social center is the complex pool. It is here that the student scopes out the finer points of the complex's population and finds a challenge in meeting the neighbors head-on. Students who live off-campus during the summer months are recognized for their deep tans, rosey cheeks, and brown noses.

The idiosyncracies of off-campus must be tolerated by those unfamiliar to that particular lifestyle. From drinking from Mason jars to saving breadwrappers, all the quirks of the student living on his own are to be respected and regarded as highly individual. Without the presence of this influential sector of the college crowd, the current fads of University students would quickly fade into obsolescence.

Going strong now

No more "Goldfish swallowing" and forget the "phone booth cramming" and "streaking," because the biggest fad at the U of A and the rest of the nation became . . . Exercising.

The "pitter-patter" of Nikes, Adidas, and Pumas on University pavement could be heard more than "Woo-Pigs-Soooo" in Razorback Stadium. Gatorade probably could have ranked second as the favorite campus drink.

Exercising ranged all the way from Aerobic Dance in the Fine Arts Building to "Pumping Iron" at Barnhill or the Power Company.

Runners could be seen at all hours touring the campus. Solar belts also became the rage as students attempted to ride themselves of a few unwanted inches, (possibly caused by the number one drink on campus).

The fresh smells of Spring in Fayetteville could have quickly been recognized as "Heat" and "Ben-Gay." Ace bandages should have been placed as a "must" in the Preppy Handbook.

Nobody ever said that exercise had to be boring as stereo headphones could be seen on many would-be Olympians.

One collapsed, sweat drenched jogger commented, "I don't necessarily enjoy running, but I hear it's good for you."

Events, such as the "Fun Run" and "Hog-Eye Marathon," capitolized on the interest of many enthusiasts.

However, when it came right down to it, many never became willing to sacrifice their Cap'n Crunch" for wheat germ or cheese omlettes for "Rocky Style" raw eggs.

Two heads better than one

Another faction of students at the University included married students. The U of A provided 334 units which became available to young couples.

To gain a perspective of the life of married students the Razorback talked with Steve and Lisa Richards.

Steve, a Senior journalism major, hailed from West Minster, Colorado. He worked for the U.A.P.D. as a ticket writer while going to school.

Steve's wife, Lisa, from Tulsa, worked toward a degree in the Business School and also worked part-time.

Coming to the University as an out-of-state student proved to be a cheaper rate for Steve. He met Lisa when the two lived in Holcombe and Futrall respectively. They married May 31, 1979 and moved into Carlson Terrace apartments in August of that year.

Steve commented that studying comes a lot easier because of the released atmosphere "The pressures aren't on you to go out that much."

"Being realistic and supportive" became the most important virtues according to Karen. She held no regrets whatsoever. "It sure beats living together."

Because of financial burdens, children hold no place in their near future. The couple later hope to take that long awaited honeymoon to the "Emerald Isle."

Steve and Lisa obviously appeared to be very happy. That fact added optimistic hope for those here at the U of A campus to receive that dreaded "M.R.S. Degree."

The best cure for insomnia

by Mary Meadows

For all students attending the University of Arkansas, there are four inevitable events that will occur sometime within their college career: term papers, the recognition and familiarity with drop-add slips, a computer screw-up on their new class schedule, and classroom boredom.

The first three are usually taken care of in a matter of days or weeks, but classroom boredom is by far the worst. It is a burden the student carries for the duration of the semester, only to be lifted when the final test is taken and the student walks, yawning, out the door.

Some U of A students recommend taking a cup of coffee to class when confronted with such a tiresome ordeal. In fact, a classroom littered with styrofoam coffee cups is a sure sign that the previous class had been subjected to the same treatment. One must realize, however, that a constant exposure to classroom boredom may lead to an addiction of caffeine, and some students have been known to take a nip of other beverages before coming to class - for variety, of course.

The more experienced students offer the following suggestions to counter-act the various techniques used by professors to lull their students into dream-land.

Write letters. You can kill two birds with one stone by catching up on your correspondence and looking as though you are furiously scribbling down notes. Instructors are impressed by the students who constantly take notes, as this indicates their interest in the class. However, a word of caution must be imparted to students who use this ploy often: Do not start the answers to your essay test with "Dear Mom and Dad."

Doodle. Many instructors do not realize that they have been the inspiration for many aspiring Picassos. Page after page in thousands of notebooks have been covered with works of art, famous quotes, and explicit fourletter words done in expert calligraphy - a trade learned through years of exquisite boredom.

Many students revert to their second childhood as a result of boring classes. The art of passing notes is perfected, and many professors don't realize that the unexpected twitter of laughter was a result of a paper airplane sailing through the air, not his poor attempt at humor.

The most common means of dealing with classroom boredom is sleeping. Many students take a radical approach by cradling their poor, aching head in their arms on the desktop. Although taking a snooze is highly recommended, it is suggested that no breach of etiquette be attempted. To take a nap with your head up and eyes open is ideal and risks no loss of reputation or respect with your instructor.

Classroom boredom is an inevitable occurrence at the University of Arkansas. Most Professors realize this but believe that a long, drawn-out oration on a given subject builds character and perseverance in a University student.

State News

News from the "Land of Opportunity" varied as much as it did on the national scene.

Listed below (not necessarily in order of occurrence) are the news makers from the state of Arkansas.

An explosion at the missile silo, caused an evacuation of the residents of Damscus, Arkansas.

Little Rock businessman Frank White surprised the state by being elected governor of Arkansas over incumbent Bill Clinton.

18-year-old James Taylor of North Little Rock was shot and killed by a U.A.P.D. officer, after holding members and pledges of Delta Delta Delta sorority at gunpoint.

Mark David Chapman, a former resident of Ft. Chaffee, Arkansas, shot and killed John Lennon in front of his apartment building, The Dakota, in New York City.

The Creation/Science Bill, passed by the legislature and signed by Governor White, forced public schools to teach the Genesis version of creation along with Darwinian Evolution.

Mary Seenburgen, of North Little Rock, won an Oscar for best supporting actress.

Cubans found refuge at Fort Chaffee in Fort Smith, as the situation became a heated political issue.

West Memphis won the over-all state high school basketball championship.

Construction finally began on the bridge crossing Lake Norfolk on Highway 62 East.

Two Arkansans returned to the state after being held 444 days in Iran.

Head-shops closed because of legislative action.

State News

Former Governor Faubus promoted the sale of his home in Huntsville as a State Park.

Television viewers saw "Crisis at Central High," a T.V. movie concerning the integration of Little Rock's Central High School in the late-50's.

Ma Bell tried it again, but the state refused her rate increase.

Arkansas Nuclear One in Russellville operated properly, for a change.

The majority of Arkansans voted for a Republican presidential candidate, as Arkansas ballots were the last reported in.

A Pine Bluff resident was killed in the attempted rescue of the American hostages in Iran.

A bus crash on Highway 7 near Jasper killed 20 people and left 13 injured.

A new constitution was proposed, but voted down by Arkansas residents.

15 Arkansas county judges were indicted for taking kickbacks.

The summer of 1980 brought a record breaking heat wave to Arkansas and the nation. The summer was followed by a mild winter and a cool spring with ample rain to aid Arkansas farmers from the previous year's drought.

Governor White traveled to Asia to encourage foreign investments in Arkansas.

A Fayetteville police officer was shot by an escaped convict. The convict was killed as he exchanged gunfire with police from his refuge in a Westfork barn.

Governor White cut building funds and jeopardized the UA engineering school.

National News

National news came into the spotlight at the University of Arkansas, as issues directly confronted students.

Listed below (not in order of occurrence) are a sampling of the nation's news-makers.

The hostages in Iran experienced their first year of captivity.

America became increasingly concerned over Soviet intervention in Poland and Afghanistan.

Hunger-striker Bobby Sands died in Ireland after not being granted political-prisoner status by the British government.

Queen Elizabeth rejoiced over the birth of her first granddaughter.

The world's most eligible bachelor, Prince Charles of England, chose his future queen.

Ronald Reagan became the 40th President of the United States of America.

The Hostages in Iran returned to America after 444 days in captivity.

Jimmy Carter refused to debate Ronald Reagan and Independent candidate John Anderson.

The Space Shuttle made its maiden voyage a complete success.

Conflicts in El Salvador increased tensions in the United States as Americans feared another Viet Nam.

The Middle East again became a hot-bed for turmoil, as Syrian missiles destroyed Israeli jets.

Vernon Jordan became the victim of an assassination attempt.

National News

Pope John Paul II survived an assassination attempt in St. Peter's Square in Rome, as conspiracy entered everyone's mind.

John Lennon was shot and killed in the presence of his wife, in New York

Rumors flew about the reunion of the remaining three Beatles for a tribute album to Lennon.

Colonel Sanders died.

Carol Burnett won a land-mark slander suit against the National Enquirer.

Pleasant Colony moved 2/3 of the way toward a Triple Crown by capturing the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

Mt. St. Helens erupted in a fury in the state of Washington.

The Philadelphia Phillies won the World Series by beating the Kansas City Royals.

Boston added still another title to their record by defeating the 76'ers in the N.B.A. Finals.

Indiana won the N.C.A.A. Basketball Championship at the Spectrum in Philadelphia.

Sugar Ray Leonard recaptured his boxing title from Roberto Duran (and also turned 7-up).

Black children became the victims of senseless murders in Atlanta, Georgia, as mourners donned green ribbons in their memory.

Jerry Falwell and the "Moral Majority" delved into the political spectrum.

Postage rates rose to 18¢ a letter.

Gasoline hit $1.40 a gallon for unleaded.

John Hinckley allegedly shot and seriously wounded President Reagan, Presidential Press Secretary James Brady, Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy, and a Washington Patrolman, for the recognition of actress Jodie Foster.

Once termed "a washed up old movie star, who had become too old, too simple, and too far right to be president," Ronald Wilson Reagan swept Jimmy Carter from the Oval Office with his "time for a change" conservatism.

Reagan's 51 to 41 percent margin at the polls and 483 to 49 sweep in the electoral college led a surging Republican party that took control of the Senate for the first time in 60 years.

However, the 69-year-old Reagan became the target of jokes concerning his age. A bumper sticker reading "Reagan in '80, Bush in '81" appeared throughout the country. The motif in a year ending in zero dying in office seemed to hold fast in people's minds.

Perhaps even more stunning than Reagan's victory was the "changing of hands" in the Senate. By picking up 11 seats in the member chamber, Republicans gained majority control. They also picked up 33 seats in the House.

The Moral Majority, a religious-political organization headed by Rev. Jerry Falwell, laid claim to many of the liberal upsets. Democratic Senators McGovern, Bayh, and Church became casualties in the war waged by conservatives.

John Anderson, the "alternative" independent candidate did not capture any electoral votes, but did capture enough popular votes to qualify for matching federal funds.

Arkansas, which remained "too close to call" throughout most of the returns night, finally swayed toward Reagan, giving him the "Land of Opportunity's" six electoral votes.

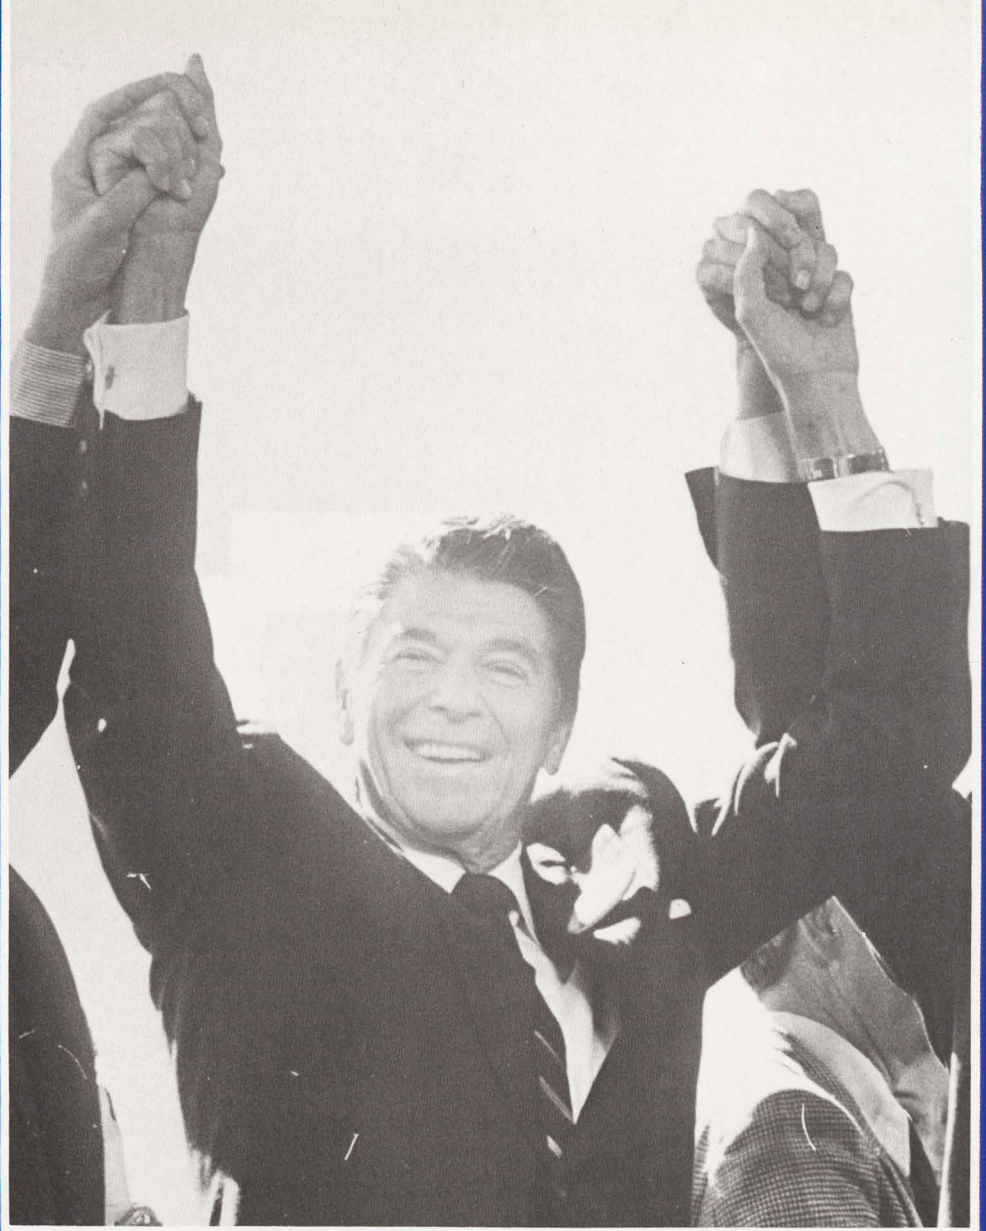

However, in Washington County, the margin for Reagan was almost two-to-one, with the Republican capturing 20,788 votes as compared to Carter's 12,274. John Anderson collected a modest 1,737 votes.

In Arkansas' Senatorial race, incumbent Dale Bumpers won over strong opposition from Bill Clark. However, in Washington County, Clark gained 16,313 votes as compared to Bumper's 15,400.

However, the biggest upset in Arkansas came with the election of Republican Frank White over incumbent Bill Clinton. White, 48, a Little Rock savings and loan executive narrowly derailed the nation's youngest governor with a campaign that turned the 34 year-old Clinton national celebrity against him.

It was only the third time in sixty years that a Democratic governor in Arkansas had been denied a second term.

In the Lt. Governor's race, Winston Bryant defeated James Canfield.

Local News

Debates raged at the Fayetteville campus during the school year, giving life and bringing to light topics that have been dormant for some time. Students had more to do and see than usual and judging by campus conversations, they cared a little and learned a lot.

The list below recalls some of the events of greater impact on the hill and on the earth.

Professors claimed grades were inflated while students huffed and puffed.

Sister Cindy fell into a hotbed of sin on the UA campus and tried to persuade students to clean up their act. Even after a week-long assault the students held their ground and continued to sin.

Louisville lost on a 49-footer by U.S. Reed. Even after dethroning the national champs, the Arkansas team went on to lose to LSU.

Celebrity Showcase actually coaxed bands into Barnhill Arena. Kansas, Molly Hatchet, Heart, Charlie Daniels and the Commodores all appeared in ONE year.

Smoking paraphernalia became unavailable in the state of Arkansas. The same logic brought about the passing of a bill to teach creation-science in public schools. Only in Arkansas.

A 30-foot cowboy was reported missing from Dickson Street. It was never found.

Arkansas Governor Frank White packed the house on Lincoln Day and only weeks later froze building funds for state projects. The quickest image change in Arkansas history.

Dick Gregory and Gordon Liddy appeared on campus in the same year.

KUAF became "The Album Station" overnight.

The UA band didn't get to Birmingham, but the Hogs took the color out of the Green Wave. Al Hirt stood in.

Students can travel with ease since the bus routes cover every square kilometer of town.

A reverse discrimination suit was filed because a cheerleader didn't make the squad. Go Hogs Go.

An invisible Frisbee golf course was set up on campus. Par is debatable.

The Who's Who list came out and went back and came out and only the vote counters know for sure.

Jerry Falwell and the Moral Majority popped up. More moral than majority.

Old Main was set on fire twice, but didn't burn. Too old and crusty.

SOS (Save Our School) formed and confronted Governor White. They got as far as Little Rock.

Texas won again . . .

... and everything nice

Ah, those Southern Belles.

Texas may have some and Harvard may buy them, but Arkansas harvests them. When visitors visit our scenic campus, what do people (males) notice first? It's not Old Main, and forget the Ozark Mountains. Our beauty lies in our Razorback ladies.

The Beach Boys Song was all wrong, it could have more appropriately started, "I wish they all could have been Arkansas Girls."

Some may question this idea. We consider it pride, and we are indeed proud.

Early fall and late spring are the best times to view this splendid beauty as campus contests such as "Daisy Mae" and "Yard-of-cloth" feature our prized "beauties."

T-top taxis cruise the hill for glimpses of sun-bathing beauties on dorm and sorority roofs. Winter seems to drag on forever in Fayetteville.

One visiting student commented when visiting during Row Parties, "I've been here two whole days and haven't seen one ugly girl yet."

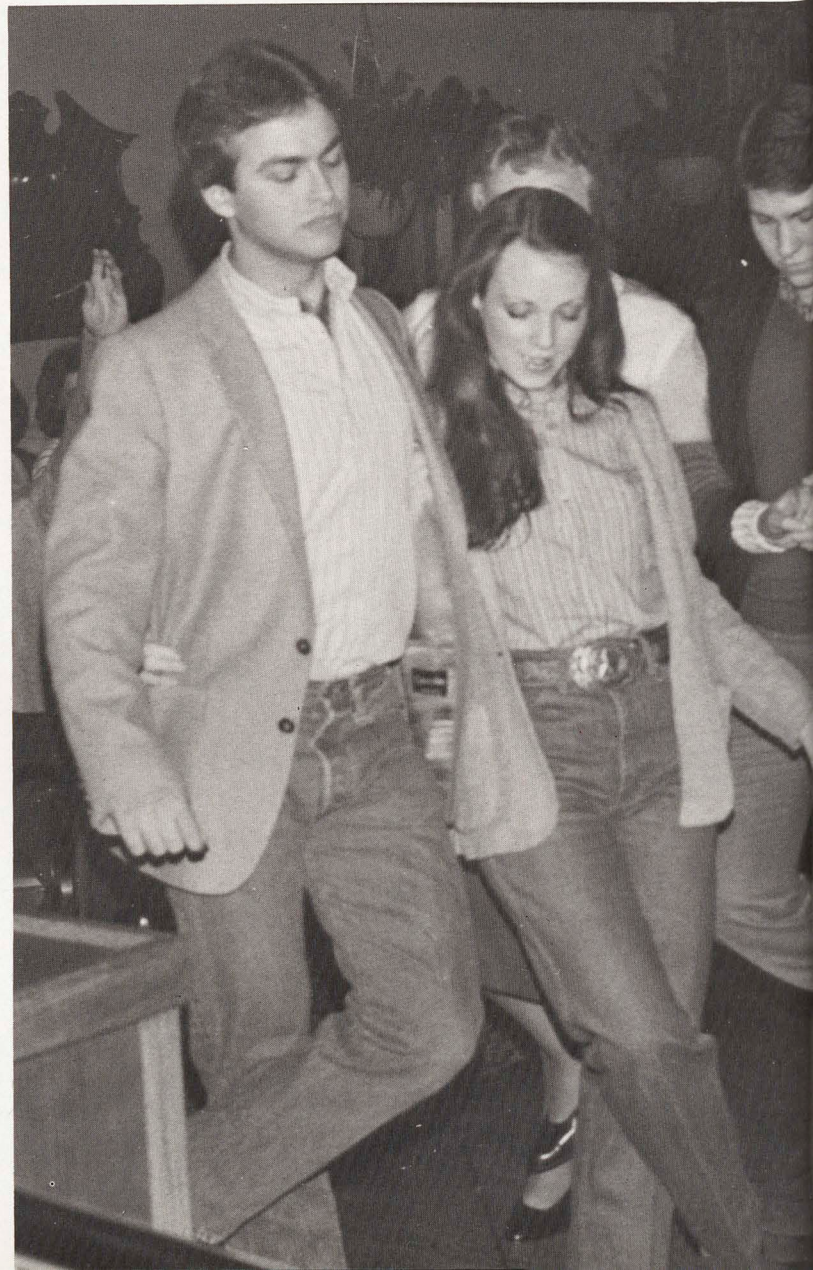

It's been said that Fayetteville is the only city in the Union where you can call a person a hog and get away with it. But, you had better look again before you refer to our "belles" as such.

Girls are attracted to the University of Arkansas because as one girl put it "there must be something in the water."

For as long as we continue to boast such lovely ladies, new life comes into the phrase "The SOUTH will rise again!!!"

Western Disco Fever

Justin, Dan Post, Pendleton, and Stetson all became common place in Fayetteville, as the Western rage took over Northwest Arkansas and the rest of the country.

While for some the Western fashion meant no change at all, others strove to fit the part of "drugstore" cowboys. Inspired by the motion picture "Urban Cowboy" the Western craze seemed to still be going by the end of the '81 school year.

Fayetteville practically became Pasadena, Texas as The Old Post Office hosted a weekly "Western Night" and the newly opened "Ya'll Come Back Saloon" (complete with mechanical bull) catered to a strictly Western theme.

Entertainers such as Mickey Gilley and Hank Williams Jr. brought a packed house to the Rink.

"Gilleys" inspired themes to several campus functions and parties, while Country and Western music made a major advance in popularity.

Dances such as the "Two-Step" and "Cotton-Eyed Joe" left enthusiasts with that "down-home," true-to-America feeling.

The Western look could have been said to be the only fashion to gain its roots from America.

Students didn't need to worry about the craze dying out as they waited for a "booster shot" from "Urban Cowboy II."

The entire Western attitude gave students a needed escape from the everyday pressures on "the hill." After all, how many times does a song/dance give you the opportunity to scream "B.S." in the middle of it as "Cotton-Eyed Joe" did.

New Alumni Center

Twenty years ago, Andy Lucas took over the editorship of the Alumni Newsletter. Finally, his and many other's dream became reality. A new Alumni Center materialized.

During 1980-1981, the Alumni Center consisted of a two-story, former private residence located behind the Delta Gamma Sorority House. The offices had been located in any open space the University possessed (another year and the offices would have met in one of the Physical Plant storage buildings).

Receptions couldn't be held at the facility because of limited space, so after-game receptions took place at anywhere from the Holiday Inn to the Fayetteville Country Club.

Two years ago, Fred Livingston (Batesville), president, decided that the new center shouldn't be put off any longer. Letters went out soliciting Alumni as well as friends of the University for donations.

Ground-breaking for the center took place July 10, 1980 during the presidential term of Ed Stevenson (Mena). Actual construction began two weeks later.

The new center, funded 100% by donations, featured 8,000 square feet with 2,200 sq. ft. designated for public use. The public area took the shape of an octagon, while the office space took a rectangular shape.

The new center features computerized record storage and a modernized mailing system.

The association planned to move into the new $850,000 complex in late July of 1981, under the direction of Executive Director John Rosso.

The center, built across from Razorback Stadium, provides a convenient meeting place. The Association hopes that students, faculty, and alumni will be able to use the public area which could hold 300 persons for reception type events.

For the first time since their commencement, graduates of the University of Arkansas will have a place to actually call home.

If you're fortunate enough to be a part of the U of A Transit System clientele, you will emerge from the University of Arkansas a better educated, well-rounded person. Riding on the bus gives a student variety and entertainment all rolled into one pleasure cruise.

You can always tell if someone is a member of the "transit crowd." The majority of them live off-campus and view the University as another place to go amid the busy schedule of the day. They are the ones who carry back-packs and always have a pen or comb within easy grasp.

Topics of conversation are versatile and unlimited — as examples: The effects of schizophrenia on current economic policy, and the phrase "substantial penalty for early withdrawal" as it relates to the new Pepsi Light commercial.

Of course, the bus drivers themselves play an important part in the daily routine of the Transitor. Their cheerful hello in the morning sometimes surprises a student who crawls on the bus with a hang-over, while their recognition of you as a person often impresses other members of the transit crowd.

Often, the drivers provide music to brighten your morning by playing their favorite songs on a tape recorder. Although the song "Another One Bites the Dust" does nothing for your spirits before an Econ mid-term, a Transitor takes this in stride and appreciates the efforts of the driver to make the trip as pleasant as possible.

Another interesting fact of riding the bus is the chance to meet members of the opposite sex. Your best bet is to find out that time that gorgeous individual catches the bus and to be conveniently at the same bus-stop the next time you think they will appear. Although some may be well aware of your game plan, conversation openers (commonly known as B.S. . . . Bus Stuff) are relatively easy and you are guaranteed at least a few minutes of conversation.

On-campus students and aliens to a particular route are spotted immediately. They chat easily with the bus driver and ask him to let them off at an unmarked stop - breaking an unwritten rule and the Code of Respect of the die-hard Transitor. They are often seen carrying bags of groceries filled with popcorn, potato chips, kool-aid, and a package of Oreo cookies.

These strangers are tolerated by Transitors who view them with indifference and with perhaps some respect for daring to embark on the sacred ground of the Transitor.

All-in-all, the Transitor is a unique individual. From braving the heat, snow, or rain to catch the bus, to pushing his way to the front of the line to assure himself of a seat, his character is flawless and should be commended.

ENTERTAINMENT

"Heart" begins season

The "first ladies" of rock came to Barnhill Arena on Sept. 4, as "Heart" played to a crowd of over 8,500 fans.

Robert Palmer, primarily known for his hit of two years ago, "Bad Case of Lovin' You," opened the power-packed evening. However, one U of A student commented that Palmer sounded "far better on record than live."

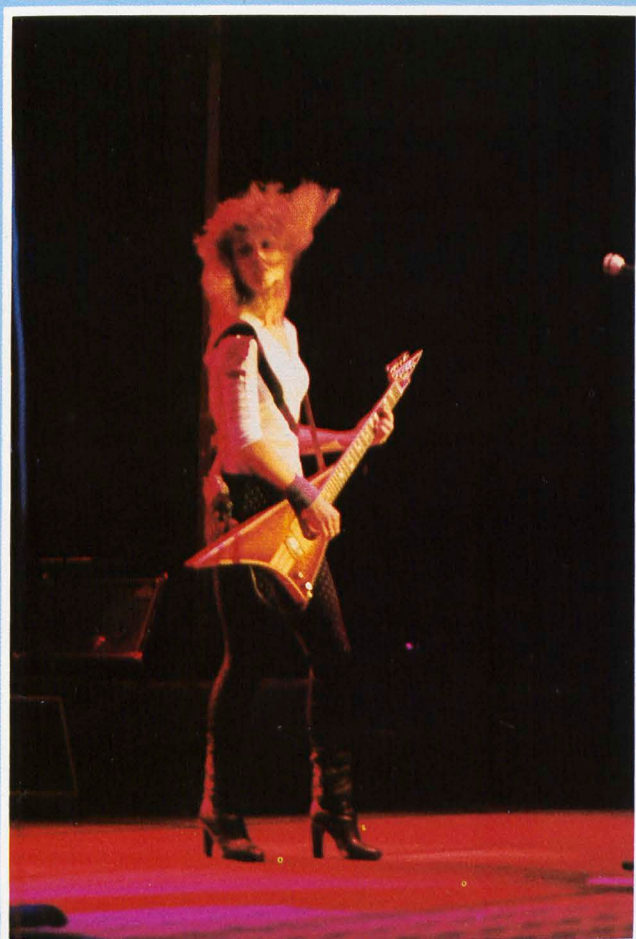

Barnhill could have truly been said to house "hot rock" that late summer evening as the unairconditioned arena steamed with heat.

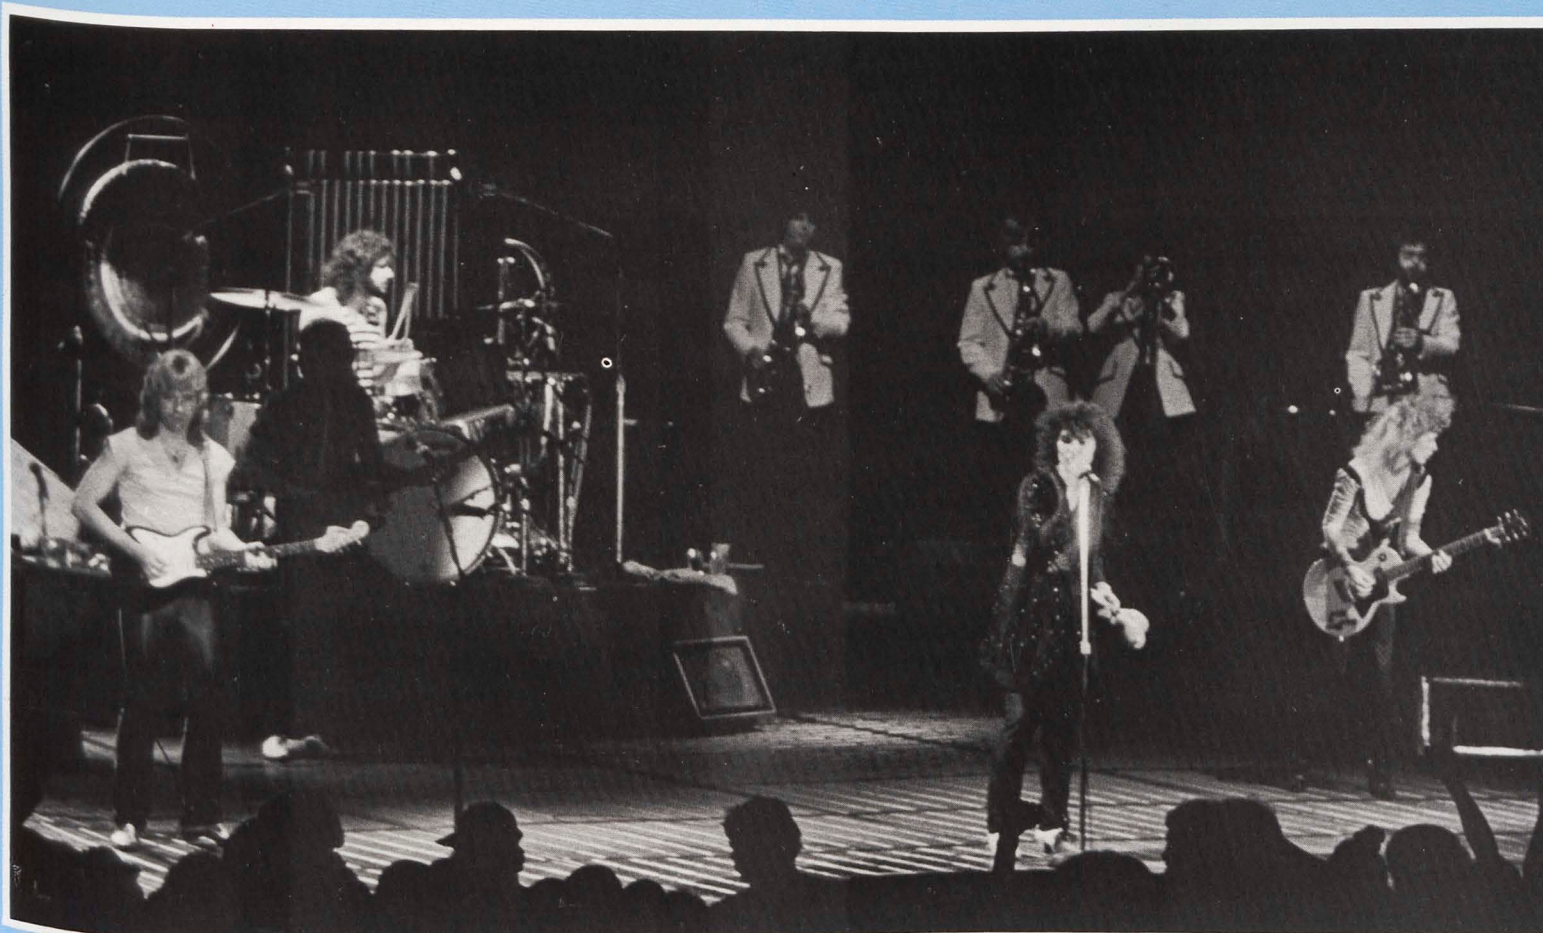

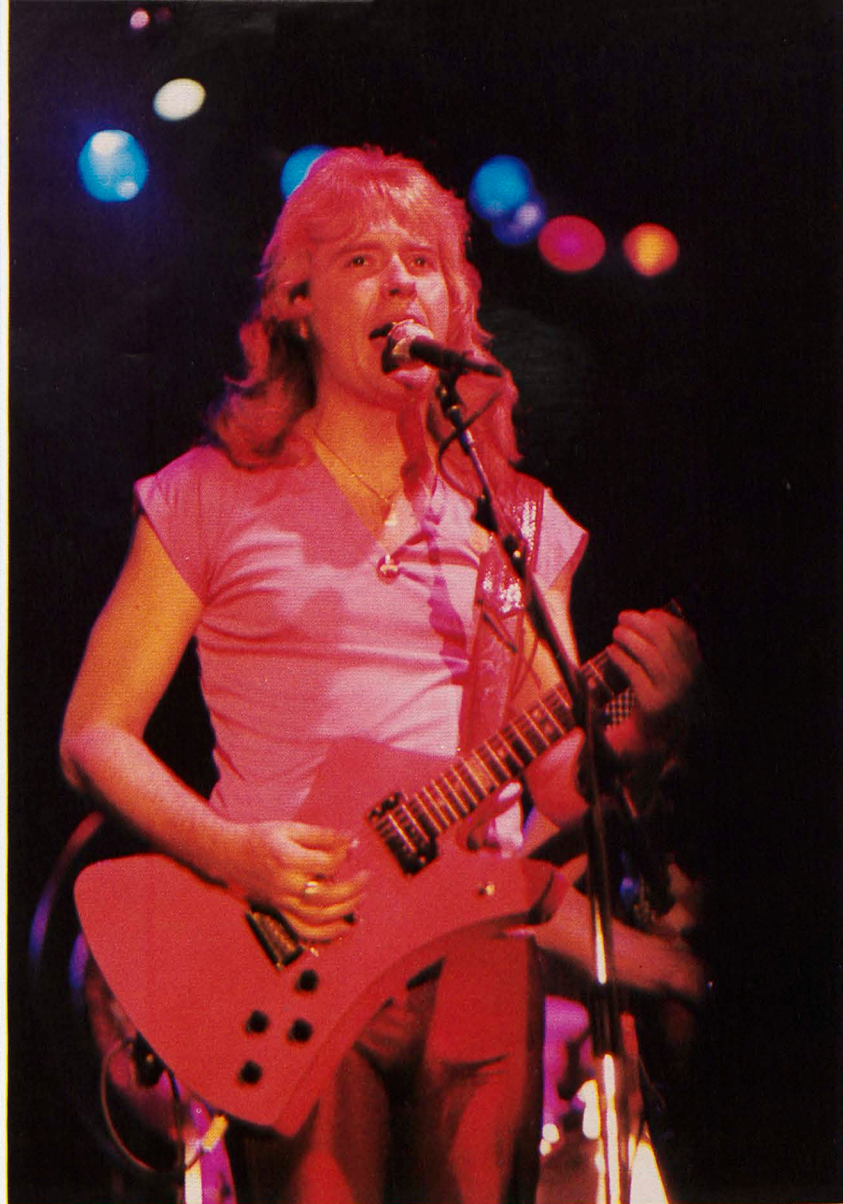

Ann and Nancy Wilson, the sister originators, headed the group which played for an hour and forty minutes to the largest concert audience during the fall semester.

A special effects show, which utilized fans to blow the girls' hair, highlighted a show which featured such hits as "Dream Boat Annie," "Barracuda," and "Dog and Butterfly."

Plane trouble caused a hectic beginning for the group, but the receptions to "Rockin' Heaven Down" and "Even It Up" seemed to move the show into a smooth performance.

The receptiveness of the audience could best be characterized by the three encores following the performance. Fayetteville certainly did not experience "Heart" failure that night.

"The Devil Went Down" to Arkansas

As the sun set in the Ozarks on Oct. 7, "The Full Moon Tour" brought Charlie Daniels to Fayetteville.

The "Charlie Daniels Band" played to over 6,400 fans in Barnhill Arena.

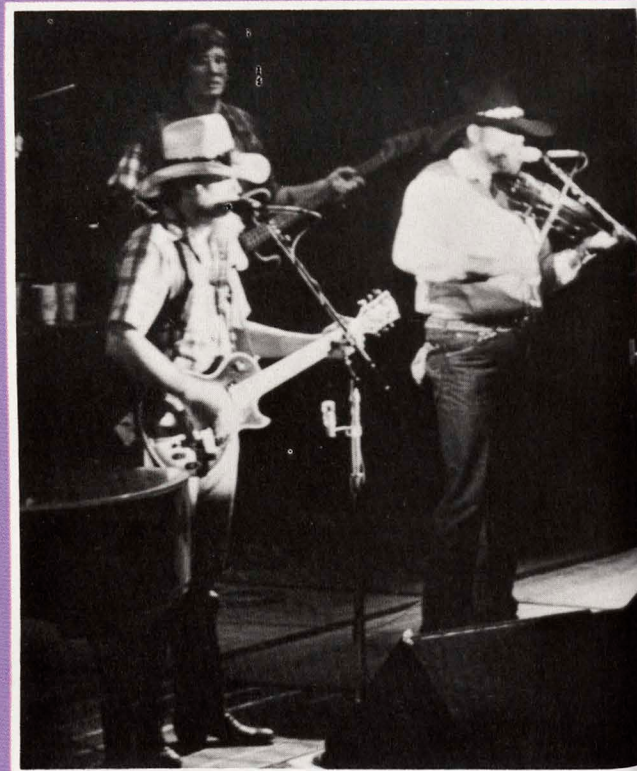

Matt Meadows, of Celebrity Showcase, commented that Daniels, his staff, and crew proved to be the easiest group in recent years to work with. "Charlie Daniels has been on the road so long that every aspect of the show moved like clockwork," Meadows said.

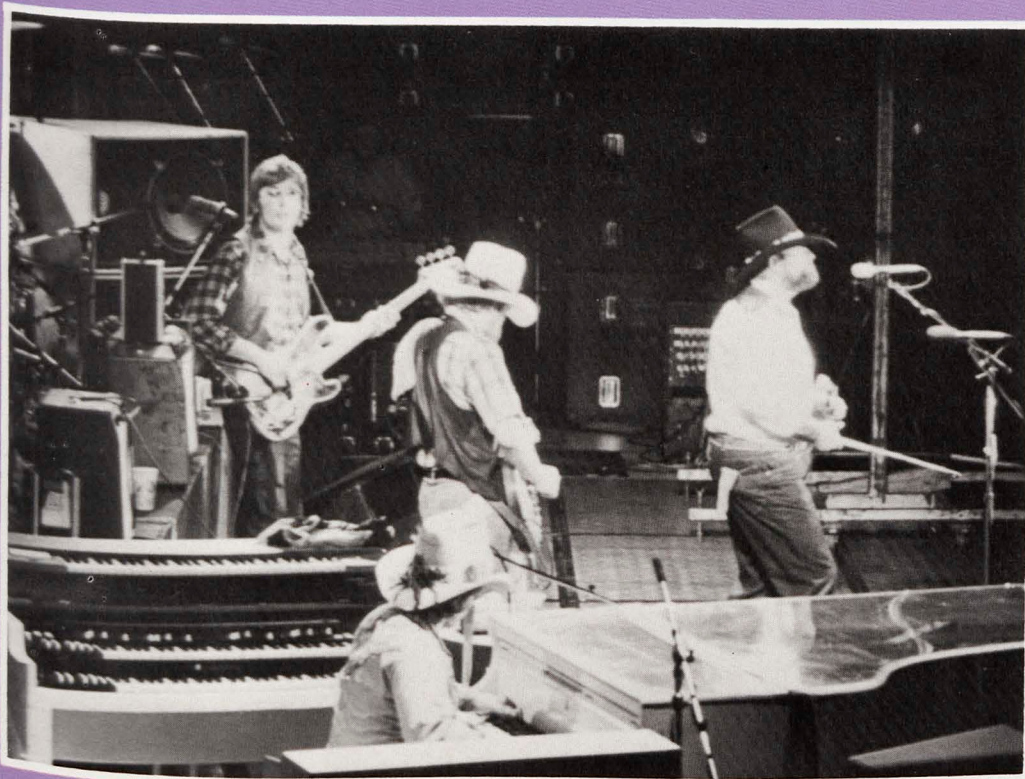

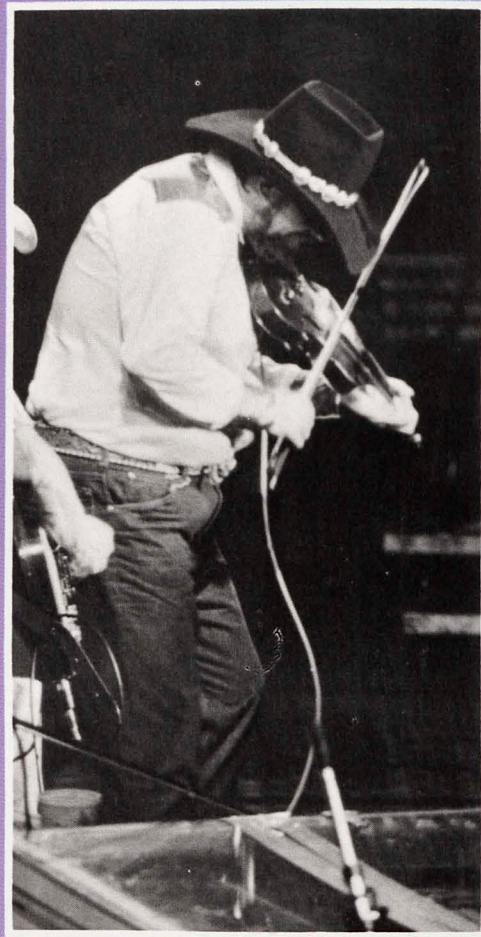

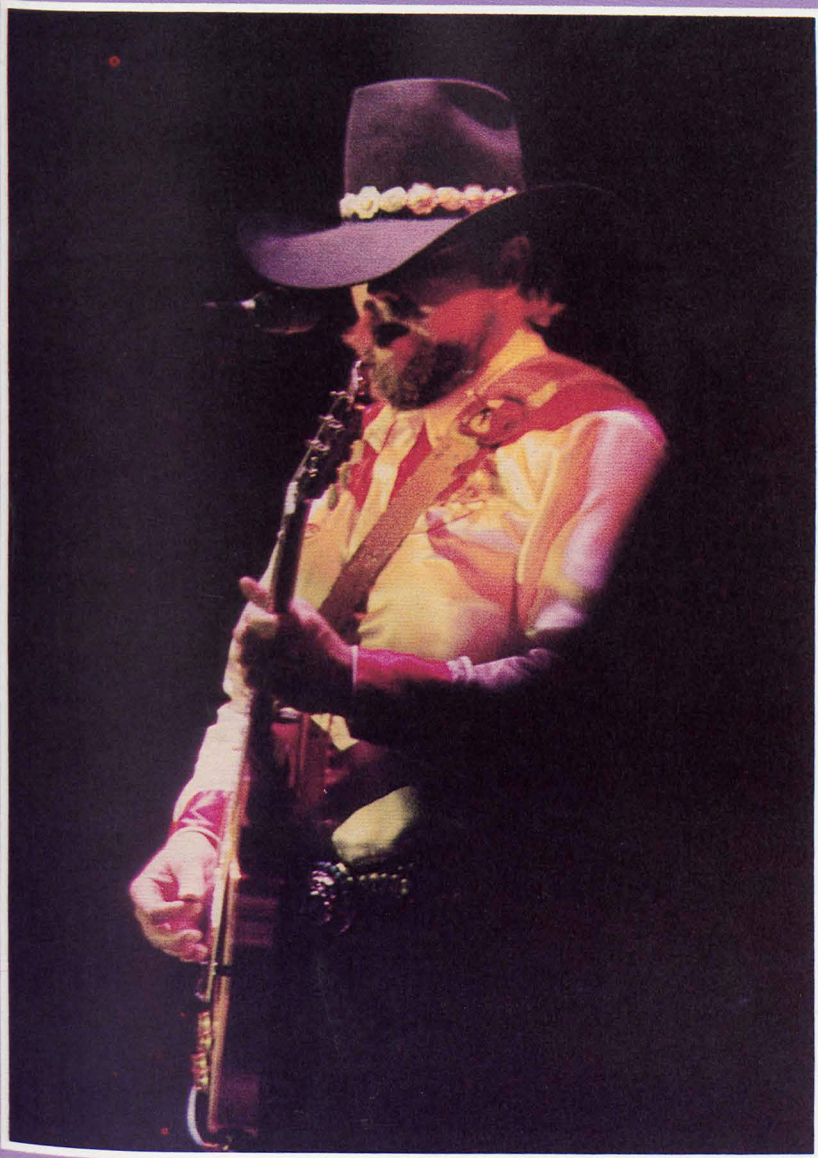

Special effects included a huge screen behind the group featuring swamp pictures during "Wooley Swamp" and candids of deceased artists during "Reflections," from their "Million Mile" album. "Grand Ole Opry" square dancers also added to the countrified atmosphere.

Louisiana's "LeReux" opened the evening, high-lighting such hits as "New Orleans Lady."

Playing to a sea of cowboy hats, the Daniels group featured such tunes as "In America" and "The Devil Went Down to Georgia."

Mid-South Productions promoted the group, which ended the show with two encores for a very receptive and appreciative audience.

Midnight Magic

Traveling to Fayetteville from Cookville, Tenn. didn't prove "Easy" for the "Commodores." Their semi carrying the lighting equipment broke down during the six hundred mile trip.

The lighting finally arrived around 7:30 p.m. Show-co, an independent staging company, and members of the Celebrity Showcase stage crew built the stage, which is the largest on the road, in less than three hours (usually an eight hour job).

With opening act 14-year-old Stacy Latisaw unable to perform because of school obligations and Kurtis Blow's set failure, the "Commodores" began their show around midnight.

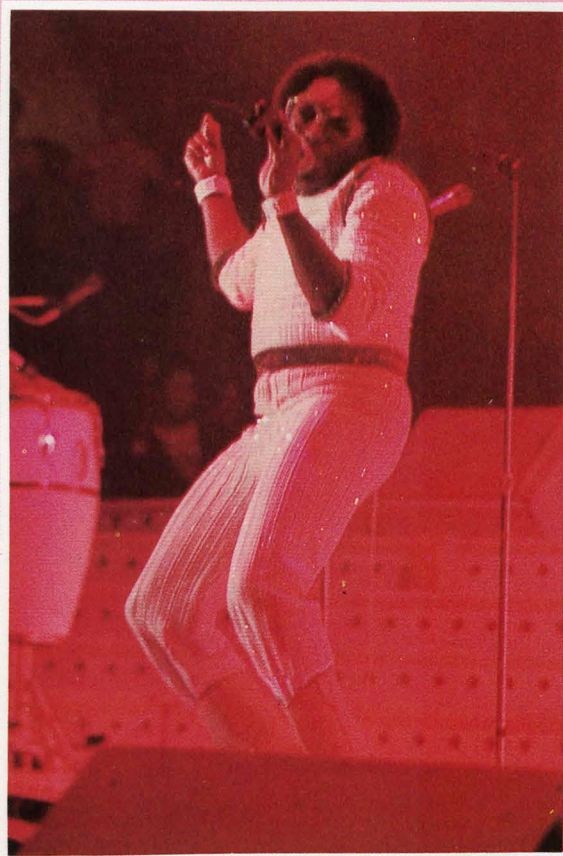

The group performed the show, uncut, to over 6,500 unusually patient fans. Members of the group commented that Fayetteville was one of the best places, as far as audiences are concerned, that they had ever played, and they "would be back!"

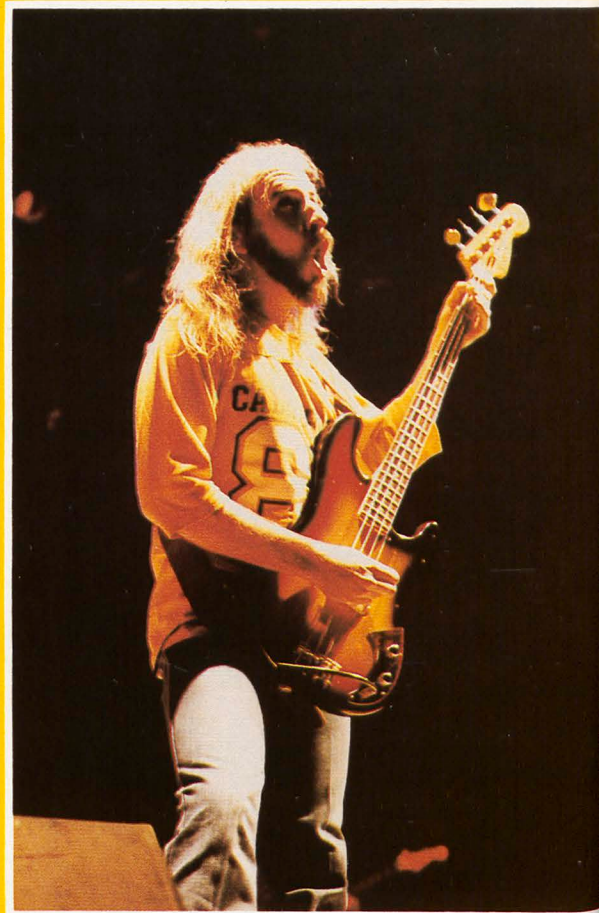

Lasers, a clear piano, an exploding entrance, and colorful costumes highlighted the "Too-Hot-Ta-Trot" show.

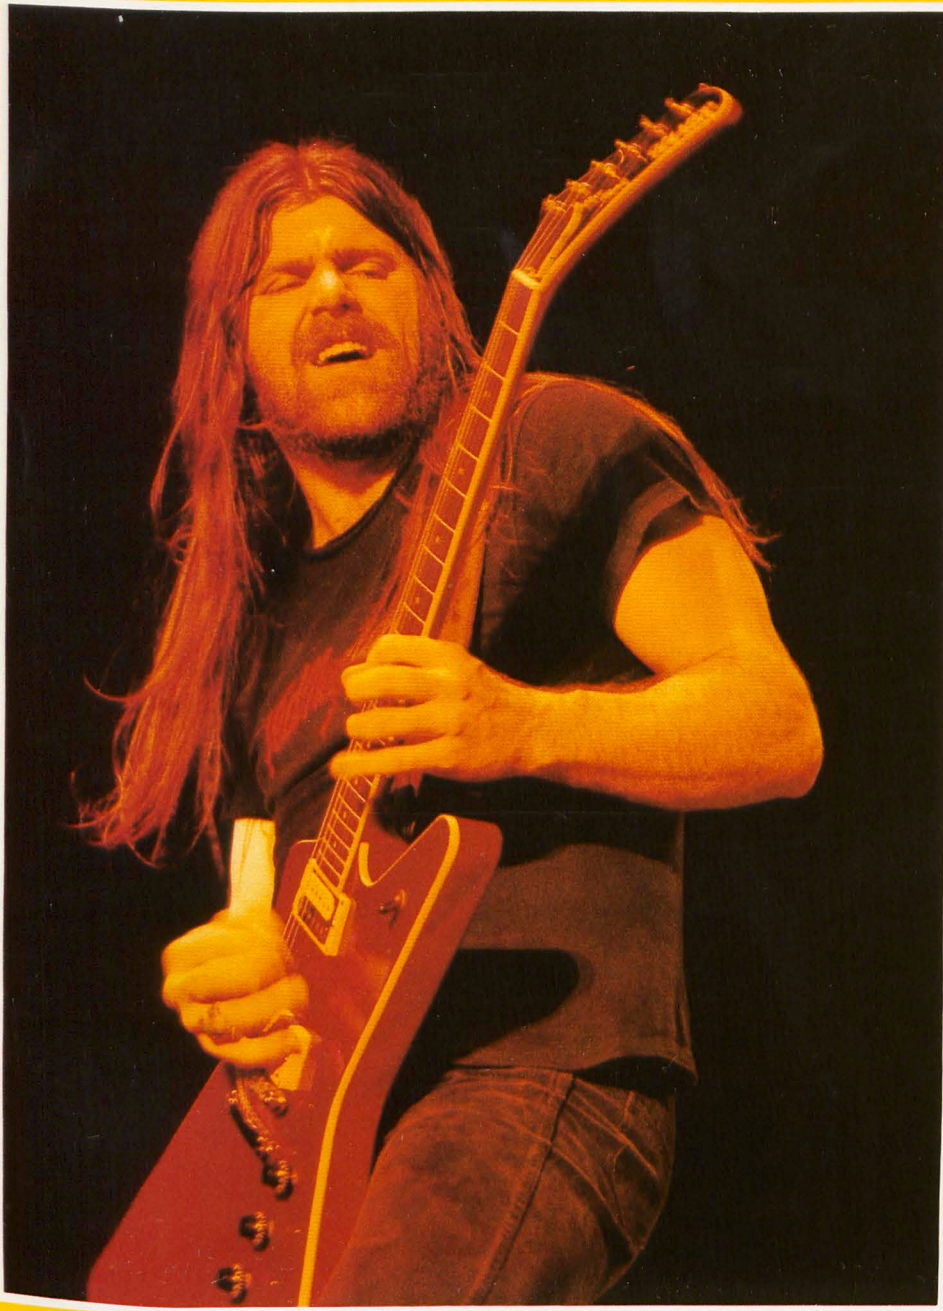

Songs such as "Brick House," "Still," "Heroes," and "Jesus is Love," which featured religious back-up singers, showed the group's versatility.

Even though the clock approached 2 a.m., the crowd presented a very enthusiastic response, which promoted no encore from the prestigious group.

Molly Hatchet flirts with disaster

"Molly Hatchet" brought their road-show to Barnhill Arena for a smaller than expected crowd.

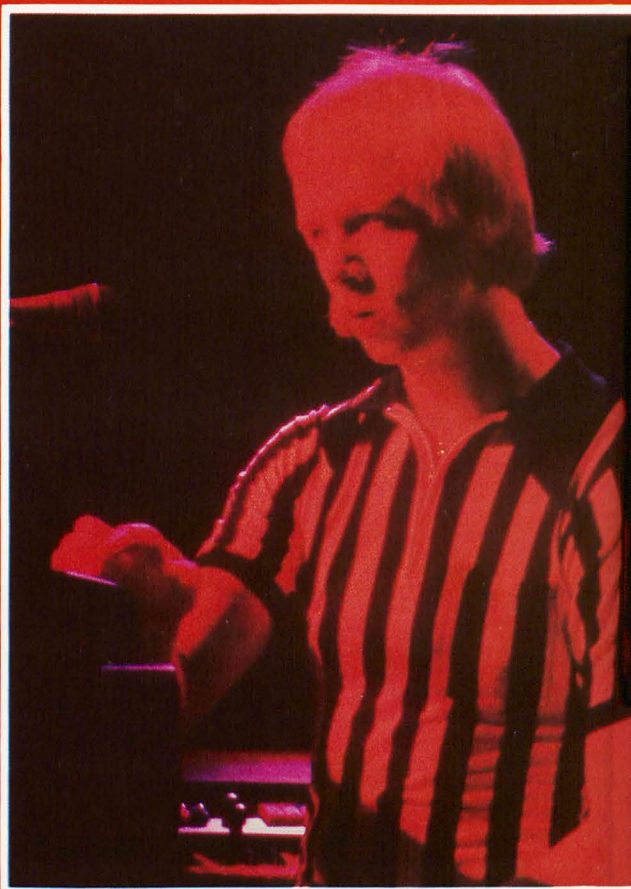

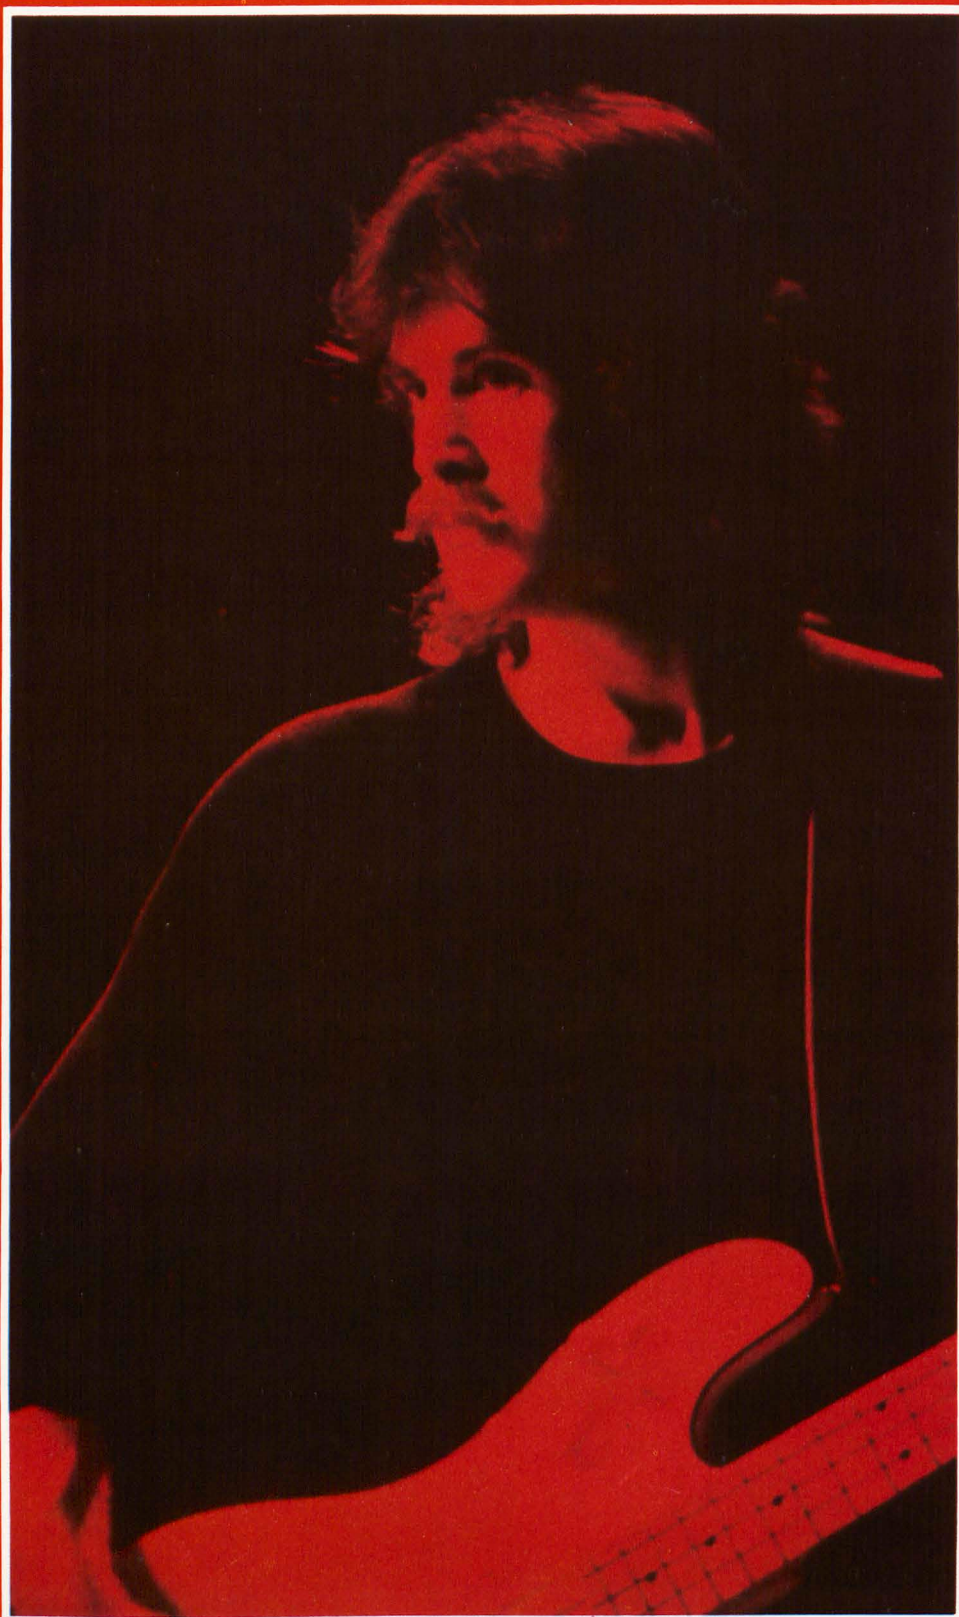

Although ".38 Special" cancelled at the last minute, "Molly" performed to a very receptive Northwest Arkansas crowd of "die-hard rockers" as one fan put it.

".38 Special's" cancellation prompted the termination of their opening-act contract with "Molly Hatchet." According to a Union Programs spokesperson, "The '.38 Special' cancellation was nothing new."

"Molly" performed to 5,100 "reasonably well-behaved spectators, (considering the wildness of the show)."

One of the highlights of the show came when the group began their biggest hit, "Flirtin' With Disaster."

Kansas sells out

Union Programs' Celebrity Showcase closed its 1980-81 Concert Season with its best show of the year, when "Kansas" came to Fayetteville.

Performing to an advance sell-out crowd of well over 8,500, "Kansas" brought most to their feet with hits such as "Carry On My Wayward Son" and "Dust in the Wind."

Celebrity Showcase officials stated that the concert turned out to be a "dream." It became "by far the best crowd and best show we've had all year."

Equally as spectacular that evening was the hot new group "Loverboy," whose hit, "Turn Me Loose" sent all 8,500 to their feet in appreciative response.

The entire show could have been said to have sent Barnhill Arena truly to "The Point of Know Return."

1981 Commencement

Anticipation . . .

There you are, standing in a robe that reminds you of singing in the church choir many years ago. Everyone is sweating, although the temperature is mild. The air is tense. The day you thought would never come . . . is here. You're finally . . . graduating.

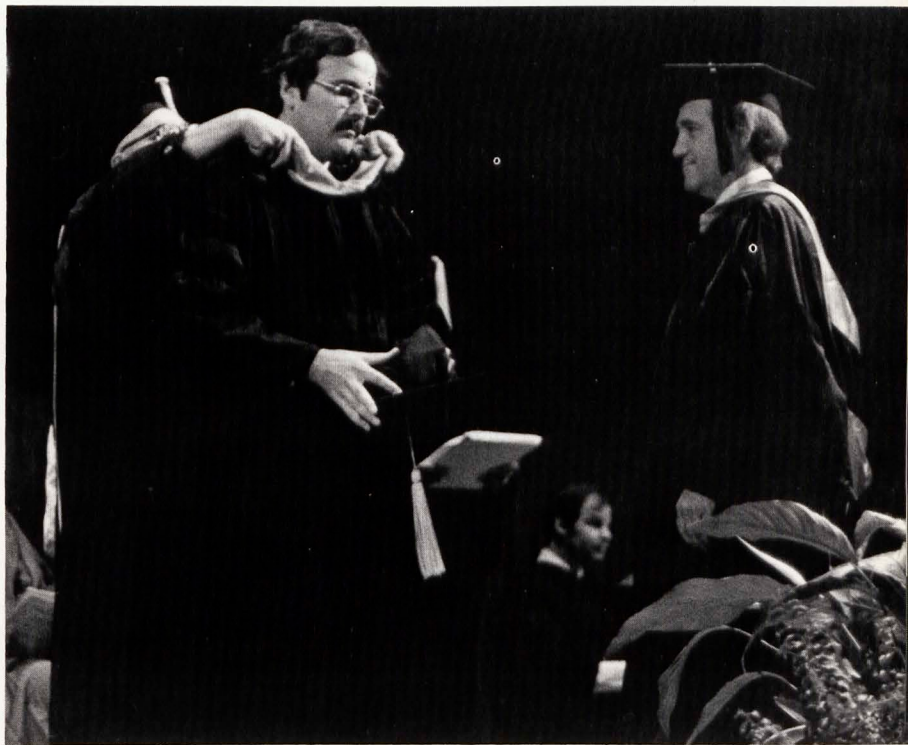

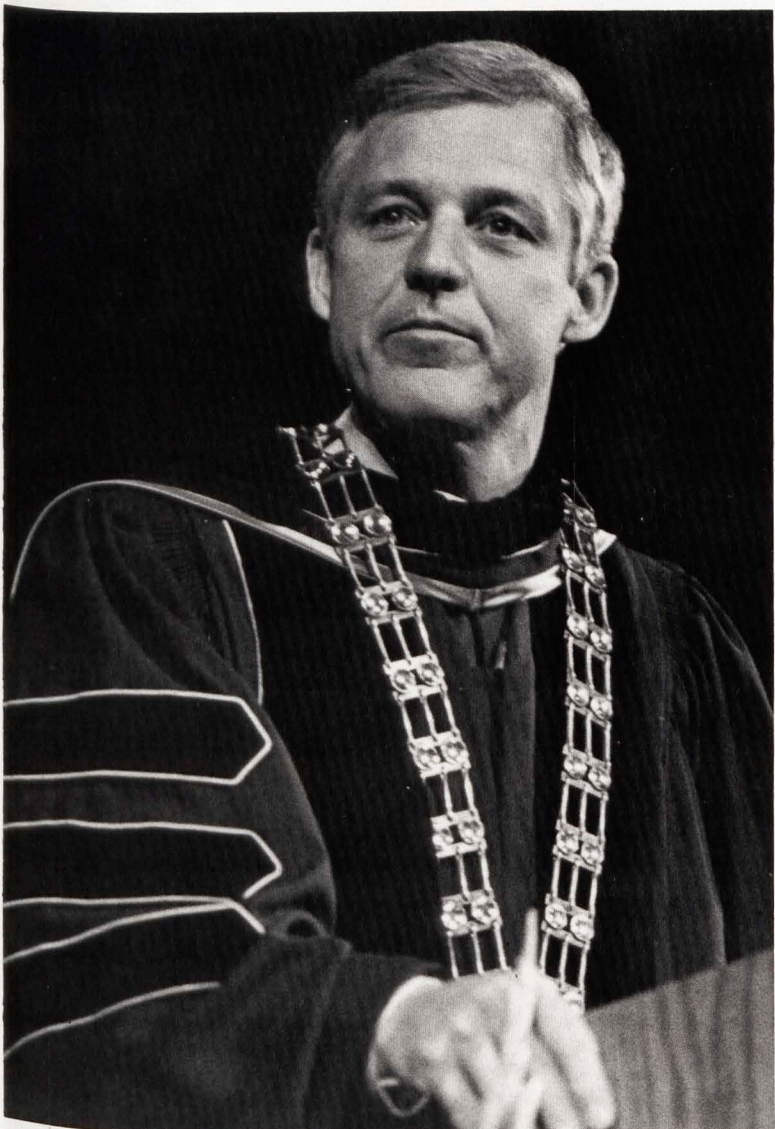

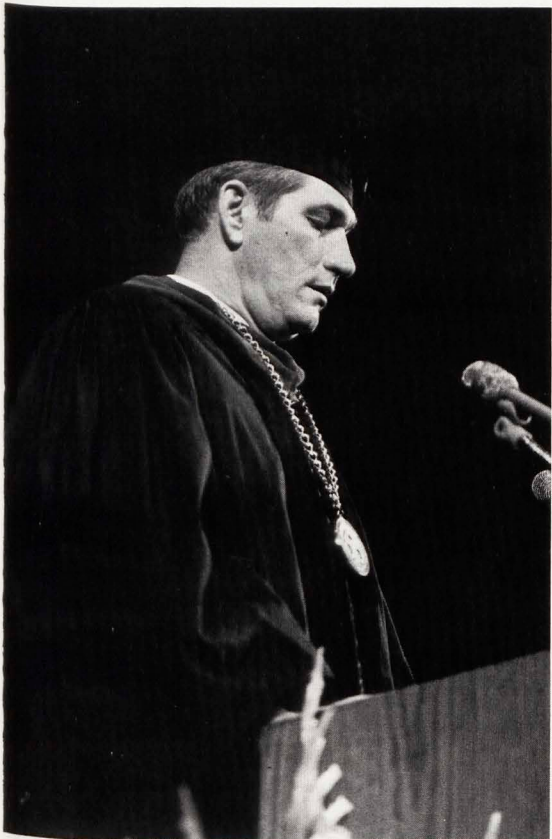

Dr. William S. Banowsky, President of the University of Oklahoma, delivered the commencement address in Barnhill Arena, Saturday morning, May 16, 1981. Masters and doctoral degrees were conferred upon 192 students at commencement. A total of 2,900 students received degrees from the University of Arkansas this spring.

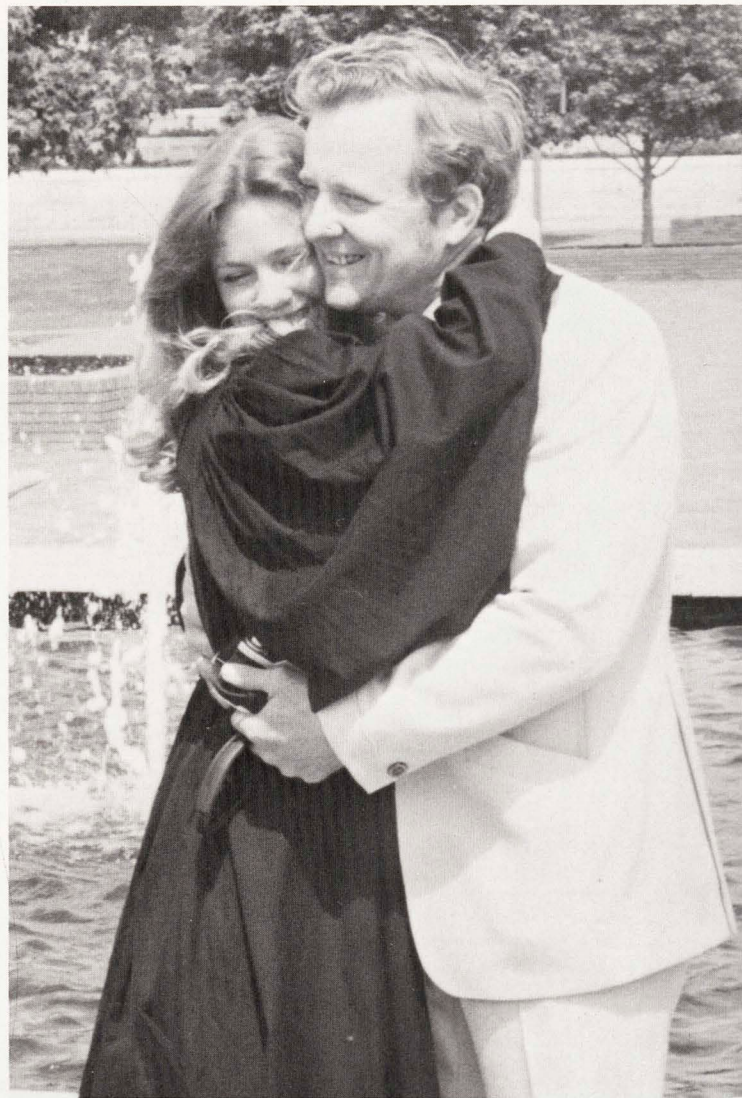

The Mace, a staff made from the newel posts from the original main staircase of Old Main, was carried by the Chief Marshal, Arthur E. Spooner, Professor of Agronomy. Dr. Spooner is the current chair of the Campus Faculty.

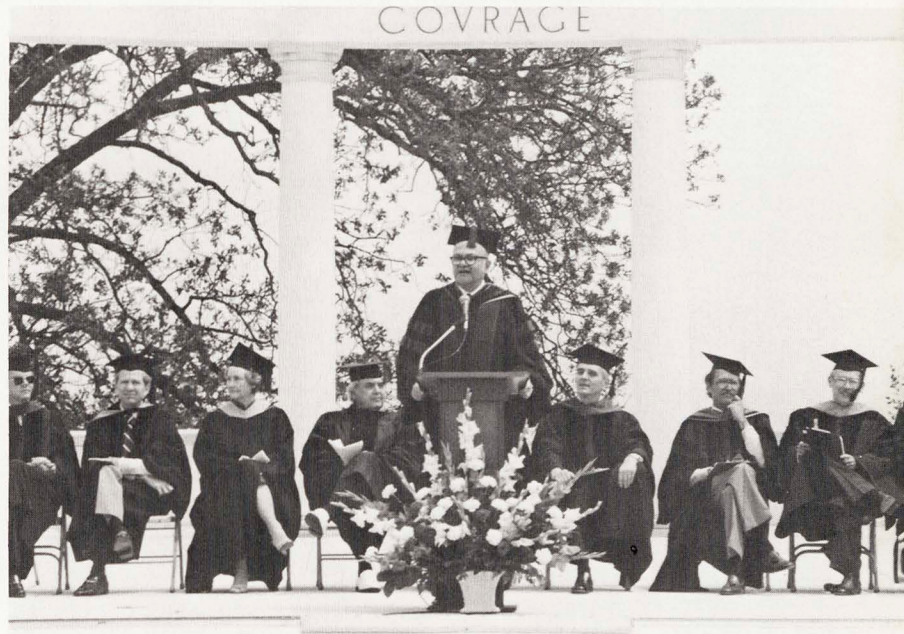

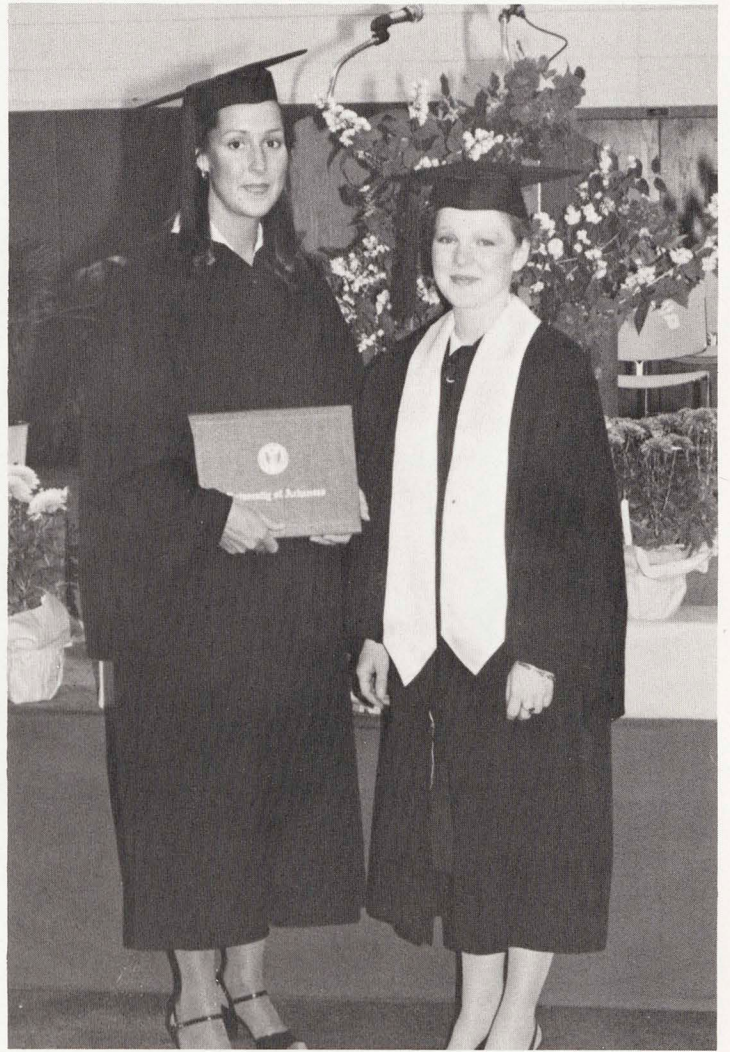

Each college within the University had their own respective commencement exercises Saturday afternoon. Former Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton addressed 237 students receiving degrees at the Arts & Sciences ceremony. Dr. Betty Battenfield, chairman of the College of Nursing, delivered the commencement address to the spring class of the 70 graduates. June Maples, highest ranking graduate in the College of Education, addressed those present of the 286 education graduates. Robert Knowlton, Professor of Law, delivered the School of Law commencement address to 165 graduates. Ray C. Adam spoke to the 148 graduates attending the School of Engineering exercises. Arnold Berner addressed those present of the 180 graduates from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The small percentage of graduates that participated in commencement experienced a feeling of pride only known to those who actually walked across the stage to receive their diploma. Mixed emotions filled the air when it was all over . . . exultation, fear, sadness of leaving friends, excitement for the future, and most of all --- relief.

COVRAGE

SUMMER

June

Sun. 1 — Between 2000 and 3000 Cuban refugees rioted at Fort Chaffee. There were 16 state troopers and 46 refugees injured in the incident.

ACADEMICS

Williams, Hugh Chalmers, Jr., Hall B. McAdams III, Louis Ramsay, Jr., Kaneaster Hodges, Jr.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

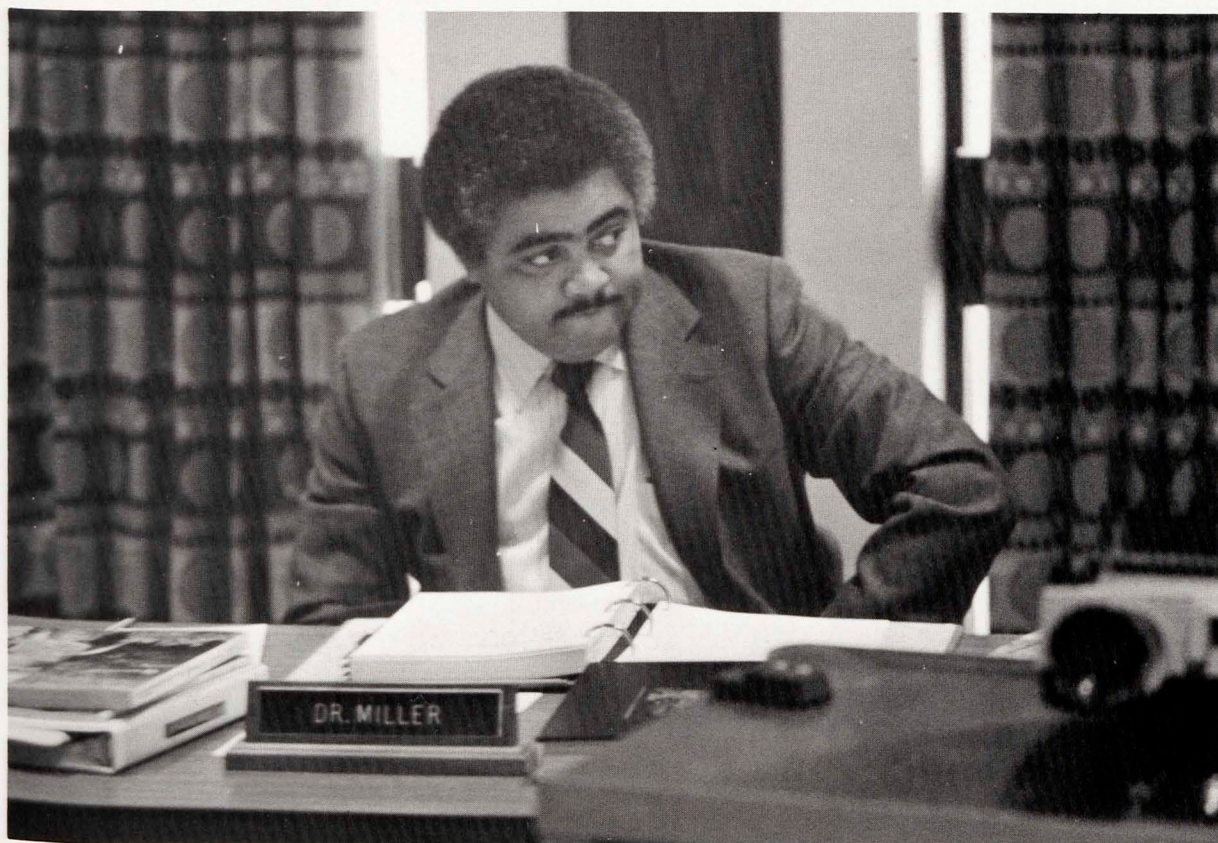

Kaneaster Hodges and Jacqueline Douglas listen attentively during meeting.

The Board of Trustees consists of ten members with at least one member from each of Arkansas' seven congressional districts. The other three members are appointed from the State at large. The Governor is responsible for the appointment of these trustees who each serve a ten-year term. The at-large members must be alumni of the University.

Board members take suggestions from Fayetteville Administrators concerning various construction proposals.

As chairman this year, Dr. Miller is responsible for directing the Board of Trustee meetings.

PRESIDENT JAMES E. MARTIN

On August 2, 1980, by action of the Board of Trustees, Dr. James E. Martin was named the 16th president of the University of Arkansas. The following comments were made by President Martin on September 19, 1980, when he presented his first annual report to the University's Board of Trustees.

"This year a major planning effort occurred during which we have defined objectives for the University for the first half of the new decade. Our planning was rendered more difficult because of financial uncertainties; however, we believe that realistic goals are being delineated for the University's future development.

The Fayetteville Campus will place the quality of its academic programs above all other concerns. It will seek to achieve, within five years, national recognition for excellence in carefully selected academic fields. The library shall be improved substantially, with the goal of meeting the standards of the Association of Research Libraries. The University Press will be more fully implemented. New efforts will be made to attract academically superior students, and increased incentives will encourage additional research funds from grant and contract sources. An aggressive campus wide development effort for acquiring unrestricted research and capital funds will be pursued."

"In the implementation of these plans, extreme care will be taken in the review of existing programs and establishment of new programs to insure the following: that existing programs have been evaluated and those which are not justified have been eliminated; that the need for each program proposed will enhance quality education at the University of Arkansas; that existing programs are adequately supported; that a careful evaluation has been made of the resources required to support each new program, and that such resources are either on hand or will be provided in the regular budgeting processes of the University, beginning with the next fiscal year operating budget."

"Modest academic program expansion and enrichment occurred throughout the University. The National Science Foundation has provided a $2,628,000 grant through an EPS-COR project covering a five year period to enhance the scientific capabilities.

At Fayetteville, the College of Arts and Sciences evaluated each of its departments to assess strengths and establish priorities for funding and support. The College of Business Administration and the School of Architecture were reaccredited by their professional associations."

It was another good year for the Agricultural Experiment Station with $2.9 million in grant and contract support, an increase of over one million dollars. One of the outstanding achievements was a genetic approach to preventing cancers in chickens which may have application to humans."

"At Fayetteville, minor renovation is in progress on several small facilities. A significant expansion of the utility plant has been completed. A major portion of the poultry science facilities is finished and work is continuing on the project. The renovation of Old Main and the construction of a Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Building are both under way. The University has acquired a 150,000 square foot facility on 19 acres of land for use by the College of Engineering and other Fayetteville units."

"We will continue to place emphasis in the coming years on the importance of the University's role as a discoverer and creator of knowledge. It is a matter of concern to me that the University of Arkansas has not achieved a strong status as a research institution. It does not, in fact, rank among the top 100 universities in the country with respect to expenditures in research programs. There is an average of two premier research institutions per state, yet Arkansas does not appear in the select list."

"To make the leap into the top 100 should be a high priority goal of the Fayetteville Campus in the decade of the eighties.

Our agricultural and business research programs, along with such promising projects as the University's new Biomass Research Center, the Engineering Experiment Station located at South Engineering Center and the EPSCOR project, give us strong potential for such progress. I think the University and the State should move forward in this area with increased support for research, an objective that commands our earnest attention."

In terms of the future, Dr. Martin also made the following comments to the Board of Trustees in September.

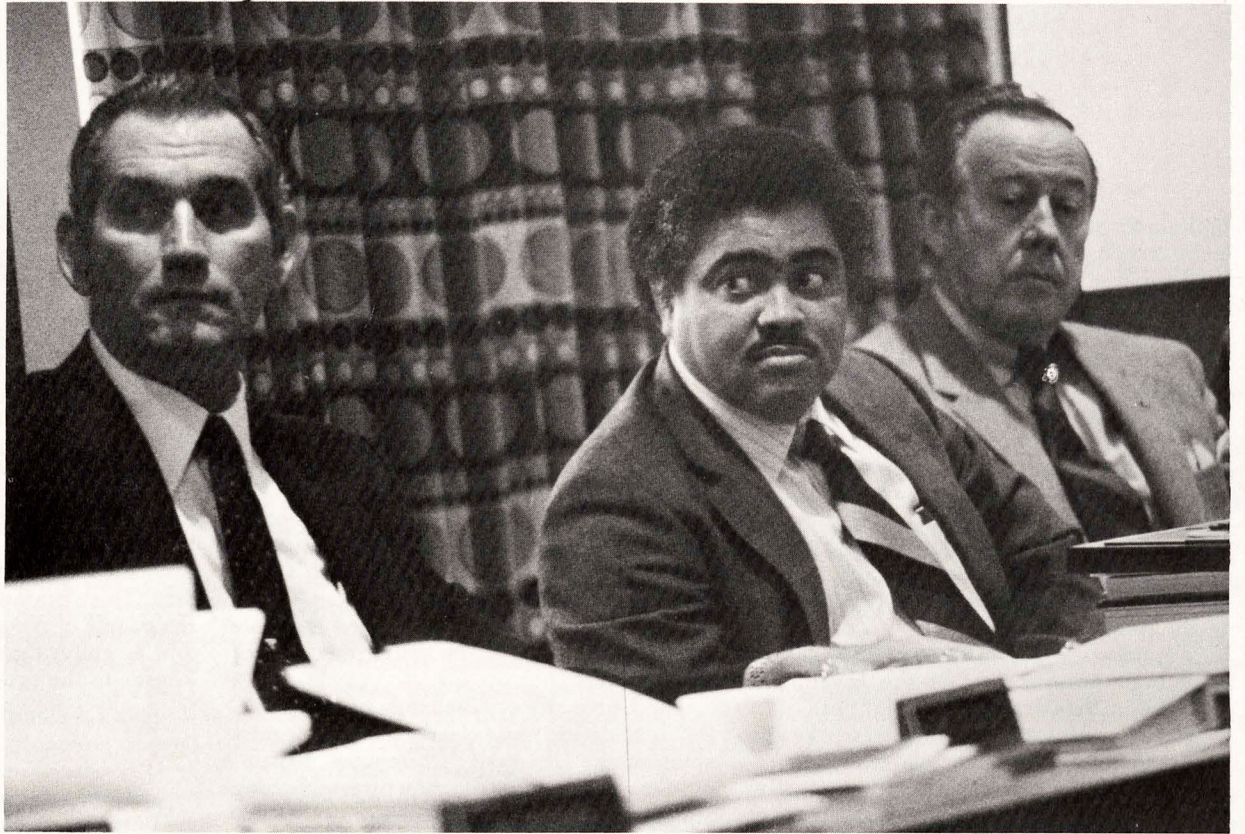

"We must and will provide the professional and technological programs which will prepare our children for the best job opportunities. We must and we will provide a balanced curriculum and place the proper emphasis on the liberal arts and humanities. We must and we will be creative in our scientific and technological research. We must do everything possible through outreach to enhance the human resources of Arkansas and insure an economic development of the State that will enable it to be called the land of opportunity!

The University's "Challenge of the Eighties" is to define more clearly the unique missions of the University's campuses, to support our campuses adequately by establishing student fee structures for each campus comparable to that of similar institutions in the Southern region, and to make every effort to obtain the state appropriations per student which are comparable to those provided similar institutions in the Southern region.

If these goals can be accomplished, the University of Arkansas can become competitive with similar universities in the Southern region in every aspect of high quality teaching, research, and service programs. The goal for the 1890's might then become that of national educational eminence!

The University of Arkansas, perhaps as much as any other institution in the State, is a creature of the State and the creation of the people who live in it. From the moment of its founding more than a century ago, it was intended to be a people's university whose constant commitment would be to public service. This commitment of the University to the people of Arkansas can only be as strong and as enduring as the commitment of Arkansas to the progress of the University."

AGRICULTURE & HOME ECONOMICS

"One of the things that the University and the division of Agriculture are proud of is the contribution that we've been able to make in terms of research not only in the state of Arkansas, but in our region" says Associate Dean of Agriculture and Home Economics, Nolan Arthur. Indeed, the Agricultural department of 1400 undergraduates has concentrated heavily on research. Projects include everything from a solar heated poultry house to high yield plant hybrids including innovative irrigation practices.

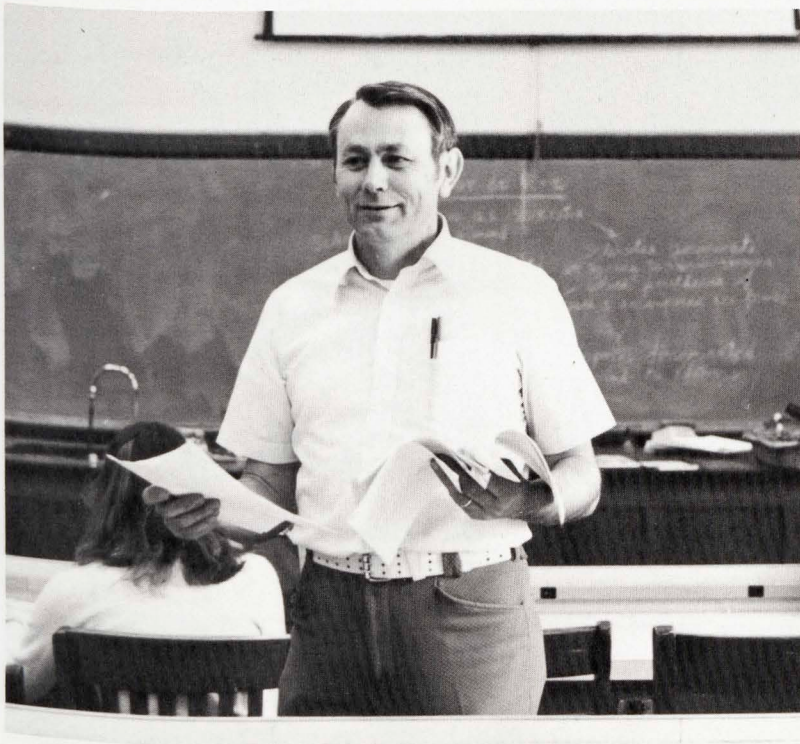

A major result of this job-oriented attitude in research is the high level of success of graduates in the job field. Both departments profess an obligation to the recruited students toward job searching and placement. The Home Economics department, which enjoys rapid growth in the areas of Housing and Interior Design, Fashion Merchandising, and Foods and Nutrition, reports that last year's average graduate received an average of four offers and a starting salary of 13,000 dollars.

Both departments now await the completion of the Plant Sciences building that will house more class and lab space.

ARCHITECTURE

According to Architecture Dean C. Murry Smart the excellent national reputation of Architectural design education "is not a direct result of money or unusually gifted students." He thinks that it is a result of the fact that it is a small college and of the tremendous amount of time that the students spend in what they are doing. "The students get to know each other and the faculty very well. They develop a feeling of commitment to their professional goals and to this school."

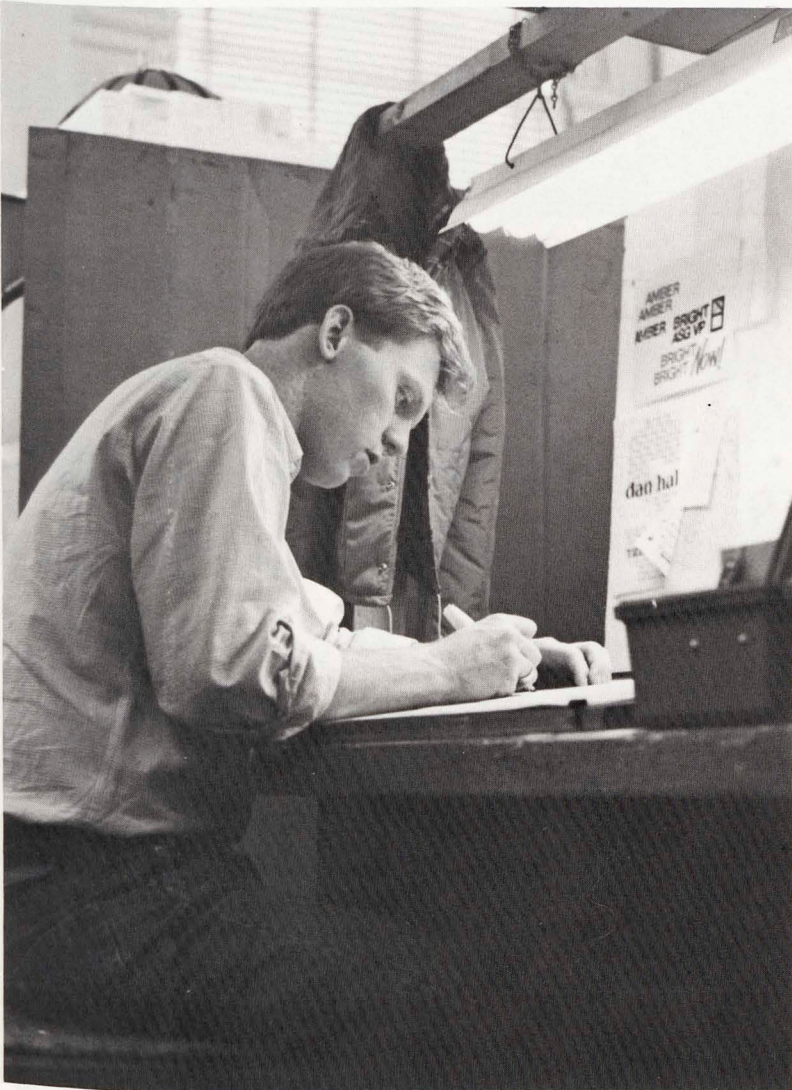

Exponents of its effectiveness occur with some degree of regularity. Faculty member Jim Lambeth has been instrumental in explaining the use of architecture design with respect to solar energy. This year the school received an award from the National Endowment of the Arts for student's work to be completed during the summer and next fall. Each student this year has been involved in an energy competition program sponsored by the Department of Energy.

The future focus of the School of Architecture will concentrate on making sure that their programs retain the present quality they enjoy. Also, despite money problems the school will have to make some necessary changes to meet the challenges of the new decade.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

"During the past five years the enrollment in the College of Business has doubled. This growth has occurred due to the increasing demand for business administrators in our society and the excellent placement of our graduates in their respective job fields. As of last fall, this enrollment reached approximately 4200 students including the undergraduate and graduate programs.

The Data Processing and Quantitative Analysis Department has experienced the most steady growth. In turn, the federally-sponsored Small Business Development Center has continued to serve our surrounding community and our students seeking consultant experience.

On a more serious note, as the number of students entering the College of Business increases our existing programs must expand. With a very limited budget 'survival' will be imperative during these tough economics times. Seeking outside sources of support such as an Alumni Association have seriously been considered and more than likely will be persued in the near future."

ENGINEERING

"The main reason I chose the role of an academic administrator was to stay in contact with the many quality students that come through our program. Engineers are having great success in the industrial sector of our society's work force. On the average, seniors receive an average of 3.5 job offers and starting salaries of $2,000.00 per month. The recent energy crisis has stimulated this demand for engineers in mechanical, electrical, chemical, industrial, and agricultural areas.

A new area of our college is the Speech Improvement Center which is designed to improve the engineer's communication skills. Through industrial support, students prepare videotape oral presentations of lab work which in turn are graded by their instructors. The program is manned by students and 300 of these presentations have been scheduled for this semester. In other areas of research, ongoing projects to design industrial equipment have been underway. Our Visual Interaction Processing Lab is working on ways to transmit and display graphically various types of data. The Chemical Engineering Department is working with the problems of hazardous chemical spills. In fact, this department has gained national recognition in this area."

SCHOOL OF LAW

"The University of Arkansas School of Law has changed and is changing. Additional highly qualified faculty members, a fine growing library of approximately 150,000 volumes, a building that was enlarged in 1971 and is being remodeled now, extensive videotape equipment that makes it possible for us to videotape student work in courses in Trial Advocacy and Interviewing, Counseling, and Negotiation are four major changes we have experienced.

In short, we should not and will not change 'just to do something different' or copy other schools. Rather we should and will change to improve the education that we provide our students and to meet the changing needs of the people of the State of Arkansas."

Recruiting Razorbacks

Left: Razorback Recruiter- Buddy Ball of the Arkansas Athletic Department organized and co-ordinated its recruiting efforts. Razorback Recruit- Ricky Norton of Okolona, Arkansas became one of the most highly recruited athletes to ever attend the University.

Every great athletic program had one thing in common in 1980. USC had it in football, Kentucky had it in basketball. Recruiting became so important to athletic programs that it took on almost as much interest as the sports themselves.

Buddy Ball, recruiting coordinator at the University of Arkansas, found and screened prospective student athletes.

Ball began with over a thousand names (from Alumni, recruiting services, newspapers, etc.). "When we got a name, we sent the prospect a questionnaire.

The questionnaire included the obvious inquiries: position (offense, defense), speed (100, 50, 40 yds.), age, height, and weight.

It also asked about his parents' alma mater, church preference, friends at the University, athletic injuries, and other sports."

Coaches then made requests for player game films. The assistant coaches evaluated the prospects position while viewing the film and rated the players on a scale from one to ten in the following areas: running ability, quickness, physical toughness, mental toughness, feet, hands, throwing ability, etc.

The coaches then compared the recruits to a player already on the team and recommended recruitment or cut.

Ricky Norton, a highly recruited guard from Okolona commented on the closing of the recruitment process.

"I was very glad to see it (recruitment) end. The process had begun to worry my mother and me." Norton also stated that "choosing the U of A was the best thing to happen to me."

A strong lineman from Texas, Ron Fautot decided to sign with the Hogs because of the smaller campus (as compared to Texas schools) and the winning tradition.

"I'm excited to come and be a part of the Arkansas Razorbacks."

Hogs v. the four seasons

Arkansas' season literally could have been divided into four seasons, and in the long run it hurt the Razorbacks.

Season One consisted of the Texas game. The Hogs had geared a great deal of their spring practices and all of their fall practices (which actually began in mid-August) toward this match-up on September 1st. Arkansas lost 23 - 17, and in the process the Hogs saw most of their goals go up in smoke. Arkansas did not play again until September 20th.

Season Two consisted of the non-conference teams (and T.C.U.). Arkansas, for the most part, breezed through this part of the schedule. The Hogs had their best game of the year against T.C.U. winning 44- 17. It was the 22nd consecutive time the Hogs had beaten the Horned Frogs.

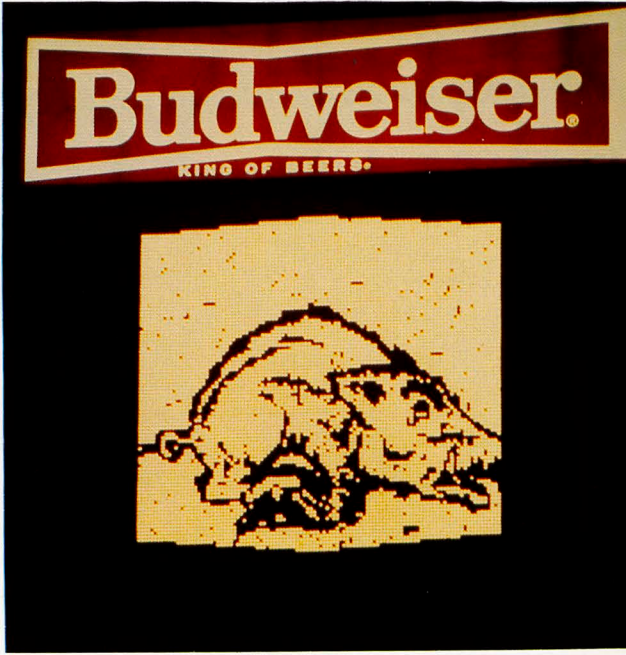

Season Three became the remainder of the conference schedule. The long season began to take its toll in injuries, and the Hogs lost three in a row before rebounding against Texas A & M at Homecoming.

Season Four came as a surprise. The Hogs, at 6 - 5, still received a bid to the Hall of Fame Bowl in Birmingham, Alabama. The time off between the end of the season and preparations for the game gave the Razorbacks a chance to heal. A fresh group of Hogs, in particular Gary Anderson, enabled them to drub Tulane 34 - 15.

Although a 7 & 5 season isn't what Arkansans have come to expect, the Hogs ended on an upbeat note, and hope for the future.

Roone Arledge 23, Hogs 17

Looking back, most Razorbacks would agree that moving the Texas game to September 1st for the sake of ABC-Television was a mistake. But Arkansas and Texas did receive the "honor" of being the opening game for the 1980 decade of NCAA football.

Although the game was played in Austin, the Hogs didn't seem overwhelmed by the crowd (Memorial Stadium isn't nearly as intimidating as Fayetteville or Little Rock). However, the Razorbacks went into the game with several defensive casualties. LB Bruce Sutherland: lost to grades; LB Gary Williams: kicked off the team; LB Ozzie Riley: forced to quit due to a neck injury; DE Mark Dewey: quit the team.

Despite these adversities, the Razorbacks still had two very capable and experienced linebackers in Teddy Morris and Steve Douglas. But early in the first quarter, a reverse handoff, raced around right end 39-yards for a touchdown. The Longhorns answered on their next possession with a wind-aided 52-yard field goal.

The turning point in the game came on the Hogs' next possession. On the first play from scrimmage, David Haynes fumbled, and Texas recovered on the Razorback 10-yard line. The Horns capitalized on the turnover with A.J. Jones, who ripped the defense for 165-yards on 29 carries, scoring from two yards out.

On Texas' next possession, quarterback Donnie Little caught the Hogs in a blitz and hit tightend Lawrence Sampleton, who had gotten behind the single coverage. The 28-yard reception put the Horns on the Arkansas 1-yard line, and Jones scored on the next play.

The Razorbacks threatened to score on their second possession of the second half. Anderson's 38-yard run put the Hogs in field goal position, but Ordonez' 49-yard attempt was again wide to the right.

Aided by a very short Texas punt, the Hogs scored on their next possession. Tom Jones (12-18-1, 177 yards) hit Bobby Duckworth racing down the sideline. The ball was slightly underthrown, and Duckworth was bumped out at the 5-yard line. Unable to take it in for a touchdown, the Hogs settled for a field goal.

The Horns answered the Hogs on their next possession with Little scoring from 10 yards out. The score stood 23-10 after Goodson shanked the extra point.

Here, the Hogs began a rally what would eventually fall short. Aided by a pass interference call that put the ball on the two, Daryl Bowles scored to make it 23-17. With third and long late in the game, Little boot-legged for a first down and ended any realistic chance for the Hogs.

After the game, Arkansas head coach Lou Holtz said, "We have no alibis or excuses. We had our chances. We came back int he fourth quarter with three-something to go and couldn't get the ball back. That's why they're (the Longhorns) over there yelling and our players are in there red-eyed."

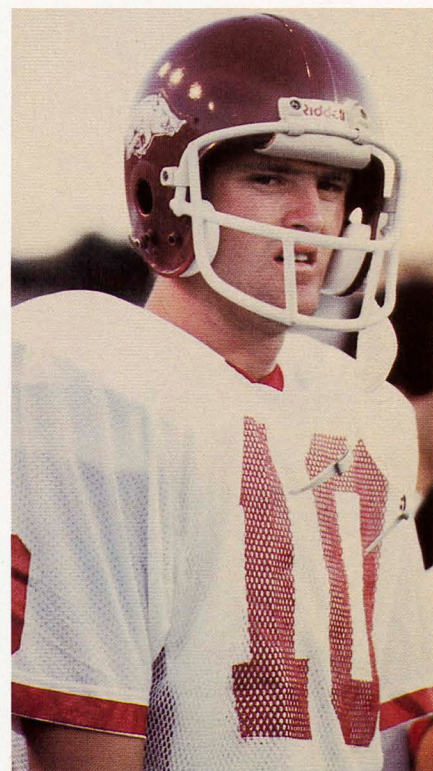

"We have no alibis or excuses. We had our chances."

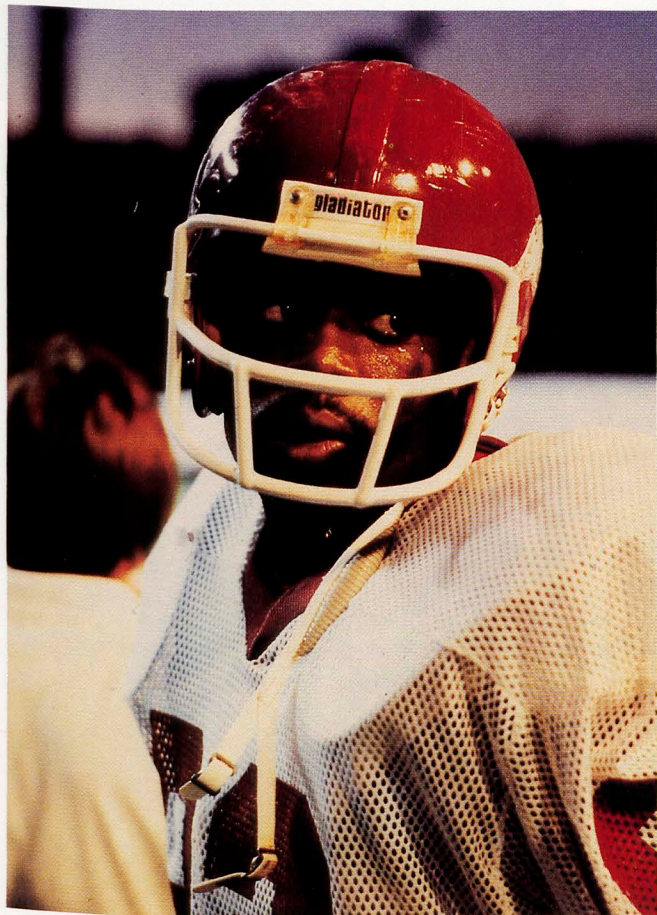

Douglas went out with an ankle injury. His replacement, Ed Desherow, went out later in the first half with a knee injury. The duty then fell on freshman Bert Zinamon.

The Longhorns double- and triple-teamed defensive tackle Billy Ray Smith, and the Razorback linebackers and defensive ends were unable to compensate. The defense finally did assert itself in the third quarter, but the game was already out of reach.

In the first quarter, the two teams exchanged missed field goals. The Hogs' Ish Ordonez pushed his 41-yard attempt wide to the right, and the Horns' John Goodson hooked his 39-yard attempt wide to the left. The highlight of the quarter was an 86-yard punt by Steve Cox — the longest in Razorback history.

On their first possession of the second quarter, the Razorbacks opened the scoring. Gary Anderson (9 carries-103 yards), faking

Arkansas entered its game with Oklahoma State not knowing what to expect. The Hogs had lost to Texas in the opening game of the season. In that game, the defense had "looked bad", but that was three weeks ago. In addition, this was the final game in a long, and for the Cowboys, bitter series. OSU would be trying to make up for all the past humiliations in a single game.

Both teams started slowly. Arkansas' only score of the first half was set up by Gary Anderson's 43-yard return of a 39-yard punt. After four plays had put the ball on the Cowboy 7-yard line, Thomas Brown swiveled his way around left end for a touchdown.

Oklahoma State came back to tie the score in the second quarter. Running back Ed Smith scored from one yard out to cap a 62-yard, 12 play drive.

In the second half, Thomas Brown ignited the Hogs by returning the opening kickoff 53 yards to the OSU 47-yard line. Eight plays later, Ish Ordonez kicked a 40-yard field goal to break the deadlock.

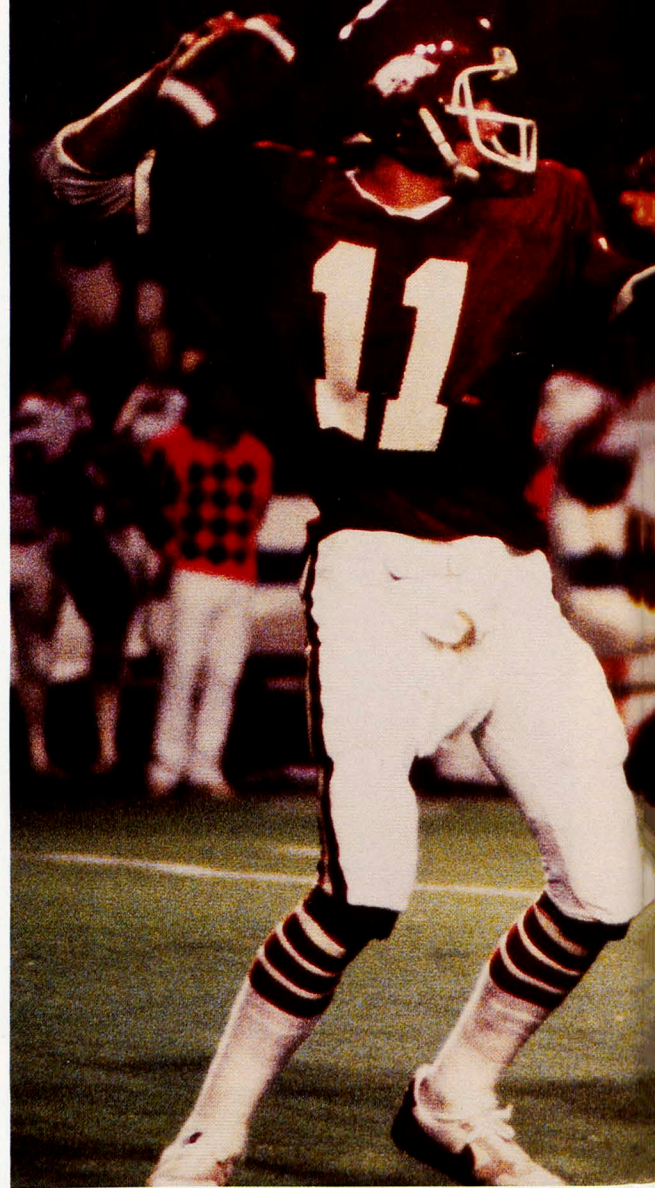

On their next possession, OSU head coach Jimmy Johnson, who played on Arkansas' national championship team of 1964, gambled. Facing fourth and one at their own 29-yard line, OSU went for the first down. Smith was hammered for no gain by Steve Douglas and Teddy Morris, and the Razorbacks took over there. Three plays netted a negative 4-yards but Ordonez converted the 50-yard field goal.

The next series proved even more costly for the Cowboys. They were again unable to move, and on third down, OSU quarterback John Doerner suffered a broken leg when he was sacked.

After a 14-yard punt return by Anderson and a 10-yard run by Brown, Tom Jones hit Bobby Duckworth with a 35-yard touchdown bomb. This time the extra point was good, and the score stood 26-7.

Brown closed out Arkansas' scoring 10 minutes left in the fourth quarter. Starting around left end, he cut back across the field and outraced everyone 28-yards to the goal line.

Former Hog, Houston Dale Nutt (who was roundly booed as he came on to the field as one of the Oklahoma State captains), led the Cowboys to two late scores, but they came when the game was already over. The game ended with the final score, Arkansas 33 and Oklahoma State 20.

Hogs survive the Hurricane

The Hogs survived the Hurricane — just barely. The Tulsa game that is usually a rout, played in stifling heat turned into a cold, rain soaked squeaker.

The game began innocently enough. Arkansas won the coin toss and elected to receive. Starting at the twenty, the Hogs moved easily down to the Tulsa five. There, Coach Holtz became conservative, and the Razorbacks were stopped cold on three plays up the middle. Ish Ordonez kicked the field goal, and the score stood 3-0 Arkansas.

On Tulsa's first possession, the Hurricane fumbled (one of five for the game), and the Hogs recovered. The Razorbacks drove for what appeared to be a touchdown, when Thomas Brown fumbled the ball into the endzone. Tulsa recovered, and the ball came out to the twenty. Brown, who had earlier said he was dissatisfied with his second-team status, quit the team after the game.

After having a chance to be up 14-0 and only leading 3-0, the Hogs lost all offensive momentum.

In the second quarter, Tulsa stunned the Arkansas defense with a 46-yard pass play to the Razorback 14-yard line. On third and eight at the Arkansas 10-yard line, Ken Sessions went in for the touchdown, and Tulsa led 7-3.

Arkansas' next score was set up by another Hurricane fumble in their own territory. Tailback Gary Anderson took the pitch 20 yards around left end for the touchdown, and Arkansas was back on top 10-7.

With 19 seconds left in the first half, Tom Jones' "Hail Mary" pass was intercepted. Tulsa's Kenny Jackson threaded a 46-yard pass between two Razorback defenders, and Stu Crum kicked the field goal to tie the score at 10-all just before the half expired.

Neither team scored in the third quarter, but it wasn't without excitement. On the Hogs' first possession, they had to punt. A high snap from center caused punter Steve Cox (a transfer from Tulsa) to be sacked on the Hogs' 7-yard line. Fortunately for the Hogs, Tulsa fumbled the ball back immediately.

In the fourth quarter, Ish Ordonez had two chances to win the game. His first attempt with 10 minutes left in the game missed; however, his second attempt with 7 minutes left traveled between the uprights for three points.

Tulsa did have a chance to tie the game with less than 3 minutes to play, but Crum's 46-yard field goal attempt veered wide to the right. Arkansas won the game 13 to 10.

No shocker from Wichita

Whata' catch- Falling backwards as he receives the ball, Bobby Duckworth makes another reception for the Hogs. Tripped-up- With a defender hanging on, Tom Jones crawls for a first down.

Arkansas finally got rolling offensively in the fourth game of the season. The unfortunate victims became the TCU Horned Frogs, who lost to the Hogs for the 22nd consecutive time.

Utilizing veer options out of the I-formation, the Razorbacks kept TCU off-balance all day. Arkansas marched 80 yards with the opening kick-off (all on the ground) for a touchdown.

Before the game ended, the Hogs had racked up 610 yards total offense (475 yards rushing). David Haynes, whose fumble in the Texas game proved so costly, redeemed himself by rushing for 98-yards on 8 carries, and James Tolbert led all rushers with 115 yards on 20 carries.

The game ended with Arkansas on top 44-7. The Hogs next opponent was Wichita State.

The Razorbacks started like they would blow the Shockers off the field. Two Wichita State fumbles set up two quick touchdowns, and the Hogs led 14-0.

However, at the start of the second quarter, lightning struck. Wichita State quarterback Prince McJunkins escaped being sacked when he heaved up a "lame duck" pass. The ball miraculously landed in the arms of a receiver at the 20-yard line. The two Razorback defenders on the play collided with one another, and the receiver ran 20-yards untouched into the endzone. The half ended with the Hogs ahead 14-7.

Arkansas couldn't seal the victory until the fourth quarter. With 11 minutes left in the game, Bobby Duckworth made a spectacular 38-yard reception to set up Tom Jones' 1-yard touchdown pass to Daryl Mason.

Arkansas scored again on its next possession, but missed the PAT. The game ended with the Porkers on top 27-7.

Hogs Fall to Coogs

Arkansas went into its game with Houston realizing the "make or break" situation in the Southwest Conference. Unfortunately for the Hogs, they lost.

Houston converted a 38-yard field goal on the opening possession of the game, but it didn't take long for Arkansas to answer back. Diminutive Derek Holloway fielded the ensuing kick-off at his own 7-yard line and raced 93-yards untouched to put the Razorbacks on top 7-3.

Arkansas then blew a golden opportunity when Houston fumbled away its next possession in their own territory. On third and two at the 25, the Hogs drew a penalty for procedure and then could not convert the first down. Ish Ordonez, who might have been thinking back to a year earlier when he had his attempt at a game-tying field goal blocked, miss-hit his 47-yard attempt, and the Hogs came away empty.

On Houston's next possession, they again fumbled the ball away in their own territory, but this time the Hogs took it in for a touchdown.

Gary Anderson broke loose on a 24-yard run to set up Tom Jones' 16-yard touchdown pass to Bobby Duckworth in the near corner of the endzone. The score stood 14-3, but it proceeded mostly downhill from there.

In the second quarter, Houston converted a fumble and an offsides penalty for one touchdown and a short punt and a long return for a second touchdown to put them back on top 17-14.

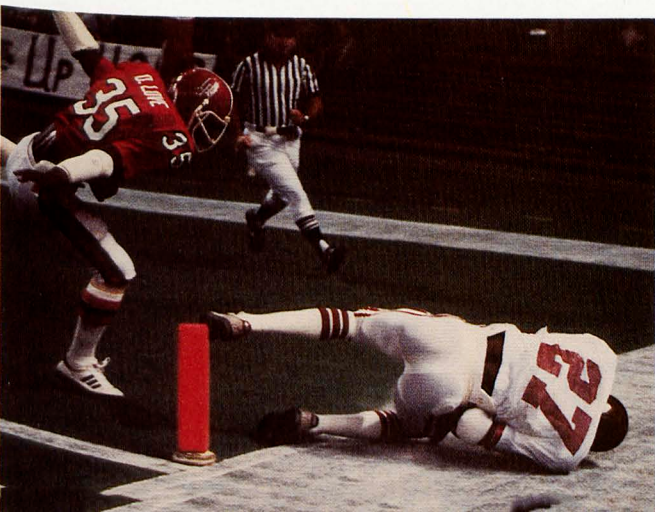

On the Cougars' second possession of the second half, they extended their lead to 24-14 on a 59-yard, 8 play touchdown drive.

In the second half, the Hogs suffered from incredibly bad field position and could only come up with a field goal.

Arkansas lost the game, 24-17.

Razorbacks Choke on Rice

Rice got a Christmas present from Arkansas about two months early. To the amazement of most, the Owls won (or better said, the Hogs lost).

In the first half, the Razorbacks blew four different scoring opportunities but still led 9-0. Arkansas' first score came on the third play of the game. Gary Anderson broke over left-guard and outran the Owl secondary for a 71-yard touchdown. Ish Ordonez could not convert the point after (an omen of things to come), and the Hogs led 6-0.

Ish did convert a 28-yard field goal on Arkansas' second possession, but then everything began to fall apart.

Arkansas began driving for a score on four separate occasions when: (1) freshman Bill Pierce (subbing for an injured Tom Jones) made a wild pitch, (2) Pierce fumbled, (3) Ordonez had a field goal attempt blocked, and (4) Pierce threw an interception. On each drive, the young quarterback showed his talent as well as his inexperience.

At the start of the second half, the Hogs looked like they would put the game away. On the Owls' first possession, the Hogs sacked the Rice punter and took over on the eight-yard line. On third down and five for the touchdown, Pierce passed to Daryl Mason for the score. This time, the point-after was good, and the Razorbacks led 16-0.

In the fourth quarter the roof fell in. Rice scored its first touchdown on a 61-yard, 12 play drive. Their second touchdown came off a Razorback turnover.

Freshman Mark Mistler had just entered the game (Pierce was shaken up on the play before), when he fumbled, and Rice took over on the Razorback 34-yard line. Seven plays later, the Owls scored on a third down pass from Randy Hertel to Hosea Fortune.

With 1:55 left in the game, the Hogs didn't handle the Owl rush, and Steve Cox had his punt blocked.

With 21 seconds left, Kenneth Sam (who looked more like an offensive lineman than a kicker) became the unlikely hero of an even more unlikely game, when he converted a 31-yard field goal to win the game for the Owls, 17-16.

Clockwise from center: Ouch!- Phillip Moon grimaced in pain from a knee injury he suffered in the Houston game. "It's mine."- Darryl Bowles clutched tightly on to the ball as he picked his way through a group of Cougar defenders. Tripped (Part I)- Bill Pierce is tripped up as he tried to scramble away from the Rice rush. Tripped (Part II)- Derek Holloway is caught from behind by a Rice defensive back. Touchdown in Triplicate- Bobby Duckworth made a spectacular catch in the near corner of the endzone (as documented by this series of photographs).

Bay(lor) of Pigs

Arkansas and Baylor met on November 8th in Waco, with both teams having been upset the week before. Baylor had lost to San Jose State, while Arkansas had lost to Rice.

The Hogs were hurting both offensively and defensively. The offensive line missed George Stewart, Phillip Moon, and Steve Korte, and the defensive line lacked Jim Elliot and Danny Phillips. In addition, Gary Anderson and Tom Jones saw only limited action because of minor injuries.

With Bill Pierce starting in place of Jones, Arkansas could manage only one first down in the initial quarter — this coming on a roughing the kicker penalty. However, the Hogs did recover a Walter Abercrombie fumble on the Bears' 6-yard line to set up a score. The touchdown pass from Jones to Daryl Mason tied the game at 7-all.

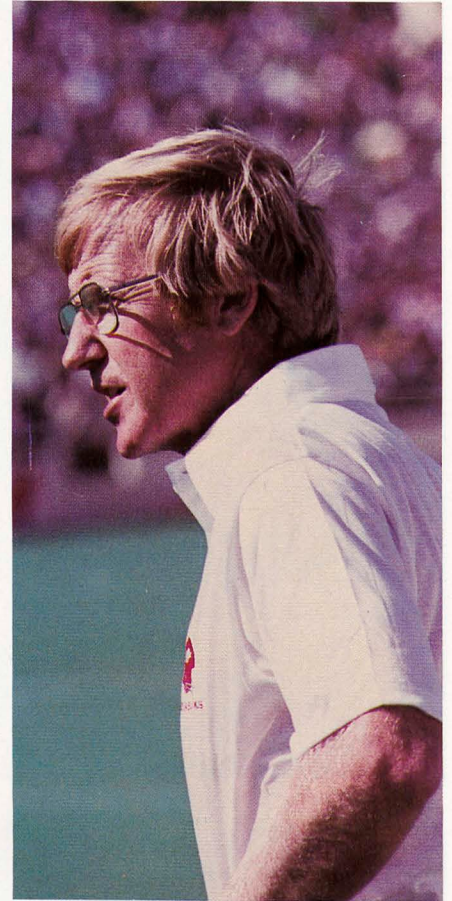

Baylor's superior strength and size began to dominate the statistics and the scoreboard in the second quarter.

The Bears racked up 21 unanswered points to lead 28-7 at halftime.

Arkansas opened the second half with an impressive drive. Pierce moved the Hogs to the 7-yard line but fumbled it away. The Bears marched right back with a 93-yard, 14 play touchdown drive, and the "party was over."

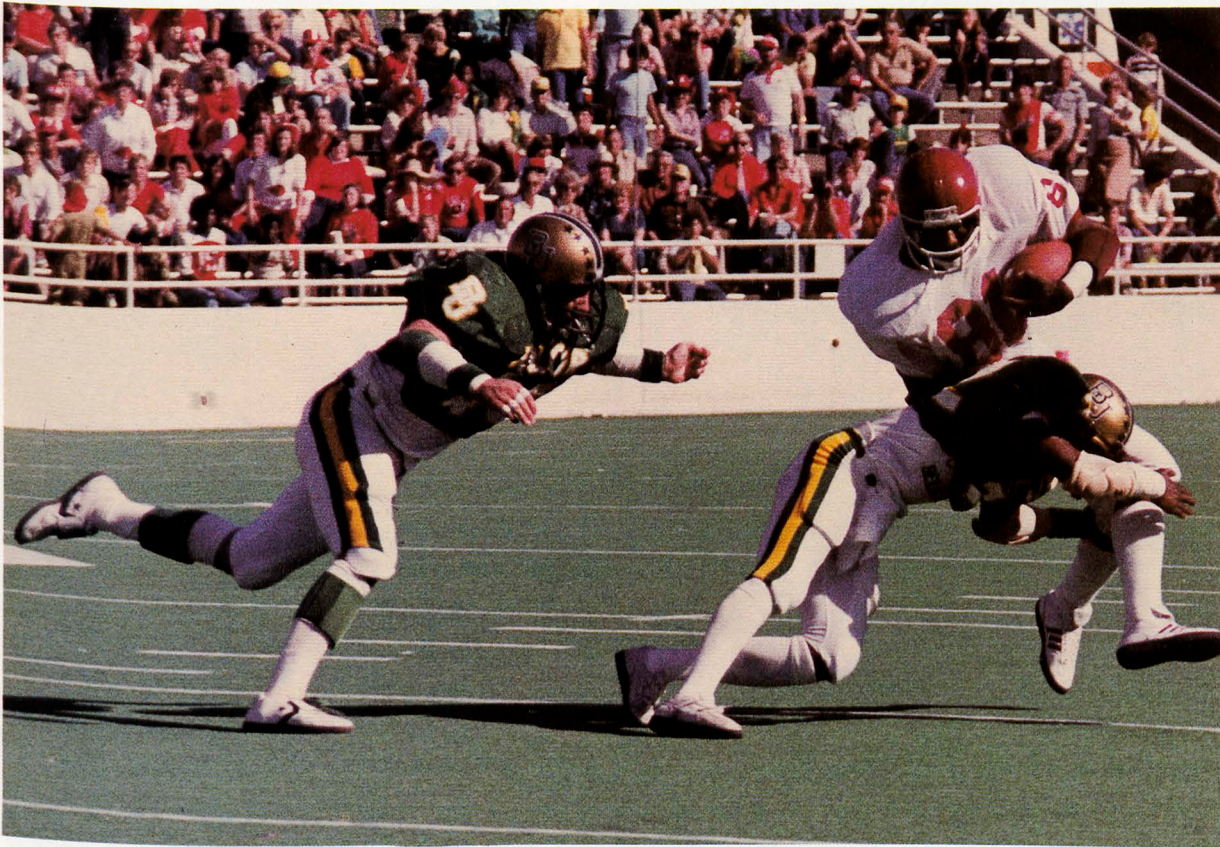

One of the few bright spots of the game occurred in the fourth quarter. Ron Stowe of Baylor was attempting to punt when his own blocker backed into the kick. The ball rolled in the endzone, and Keith Burns recovered for an Arkansas touchdown. Mark Mistler passed to Danny Walters for a two-point conversion, and the Hogs trailed 35-15.

The Bears hustled in a late touchdown to make the final score 42-15. Baylor marked the third straight loss for the Razorbacks and the low point of the season. The Hogs slipped to 4 & 4 overall and 1 & 4 in the conference.

Homecoming 1980

The joke's on the Aggies

Arkansas and Texas A&M entered their match-up searching for answers. The Hogs had a 4-4 record (1-4 in the conference) and had lost their last three games. The Aggies, after two superior recruiting campaigns, had expected big things for the season. Instead, A&M, suffering through a drug scandal and another mediocre season, produced very little in the first half.

Arkansas scored first by capitalizing on an Aggie fumble. James Tolbert scored from two yards out behind the block of freshman linebacker-cum-fullback Milton Fields.

In the second quarter, the Hogs moved out to a 24-0 lead. David Haynes scored from the one culminating a 77-yard, 10-play drive; James Tolbert scored again from two yards out after a 60-yard, 6-play drive; and Ish Ordonez kicked a 42-yard field goal.

The second half, however, was an almost complete turn around. Mistakes and conservative play by Arkansas gave A&M momentum, and the Aggies rallied to tie the score at 24-all.

From there on, the defense refused to budge, but it took the offense two tries to win the game. Arkansas drove 57-yards with Ordonez' 40-yard field goal attempt being wide right. After the defense held, the Hogs began moving again but had to convert a fourth and two to keep the drive alive. Tom Jones passed to Gary Anderson swinging out of the backfield, and "Lightning" gained 8 yards before slipping down. With 12 seconds left, Ordonez converted a 27-yard field goal to seal the Hogs' Homecoming victory.

Passes Lead to Split Decision

In games against SMU and Texas Tech, a missed pass was the key play in each game that resulted in Arkansas winning one and losing one.

Against SMU, Arkansas was trailing at the half 10-7. On their first possession of the second half, the Hogs gambled, and it back-fired — big. The Mustangs were rushing 10 men on a punt, when Steve Cox attempted a pass. The receiver was wide open, but the pass fell short. SMU took control of the ball and the game, and before the Ponies blitz ended, they had racked up 31 points to Arkansas' 7.

“I thought a lot of fans would go duck hunting and those that didn't would bring their guns to the game.”

Against Texas Tech, Arkansas' pride was on the line. The 5-5 Hogs were faced with the reality of going to a bowl game with a losing record if they didn't win. Coach Holtz remarked before the game, “I thought a lot of fans would go duck hunting (It was the opening day of duck season.) and those that didn't would bring their guns to the game.”

At the half, Arkansas was trailing 14-10. However, in the second half, the Hogs went ahead 22-14. Sandwiched between two Ish Ordonez field goals of 41 and 49 yards, Tom Jones passed 17-yards to Steve Clyde for a touchdown (The attempted two-point conversion failed.). The comeback was quite remarkable considering Jones had broken his nose in the first half and was in severe pain.

Tech, however, was not dead yet. The Red Raiders reached the Razorback nine-yard line inside of two minutes, but Jamie Harris dropped a fourth down pass in the endzone. Arkansas ran out the clock with Steve Cox deliberately taking a safety, and the Hogs won 22-16.

Anderson in Hall of Fame

The Razorbacks' bid to the Hall of Fame Bowl came as a surprise to most fans. That they accepted became an even bigger surprise. The Hogs, 6-5 over an extended regular season, probably would have preferred to call it quits. But Coach Holtz was searching for a way to build momentum for next year, and he found it against the Tulane Green Wave.

Arkansas' initial scoring drive began with Trent Bryant's interception and return to the 32-yard line. The Hogs had just pushed the ball past mid-field when Gary Anderson (156 yards on 11 carries) broke loose on the first of several long runs. The run carried the Razorbacks down to the 4-yard line, and James Tolbert scored three plays later from the one.

Each of Tulane's next two possessions ended in a punt, and both times, Tulane had trouble. Jeff Goff partially deflected the first punt, but the Hogs' ensuing drive was killed by an interception. The second punt, however, proved more costly. Anderson fielded the ball on his 20-yard line and returned it 80 yards for a touchdown.

Arkansas' third touchdown came on a 9 yard pass from Tom Jones to Steve Clyde. The pass culminated a 70-yard, 10-play drive.

The Hogs' final touchdown of the first half (and the game) came on a 46-yard explosion by Anderson. Ish Ordonez converted the extra point, and the score stood 28-0 at the half.

In the second half, Ordonez added two field goals to close Arkansas' scoring. Tulane did score two late touchdowns, but the outcome had already been decided. Throughout the game, the Razorbacks' super quick defensive line of Billy Ray Smith, Richard "Doughnut" Richardson, Danny Phillips, and Ron Fautot kept pressure on the "Greenies" quarterback and forced him into incompletions and interceptions.

During the Hogs' 34-15 victory, thirteen Hall of Fame Bowl statistics became records:

- 1) most points combined, 49.
- 2) most points one team, Arkansas 34.
- 3) most first downs, Arkansas 22.
- 4) most rushing attempts, Arkansas 64.
- 5) most net yards rushing, Arkansas 383.
- 6) most total offense, Arkansas 466.
- 7) most yards passing, Tulane 241.
- 8) Longest punt return, 80 yards, Gary Anderson, Arkansas.
- 9) longest touchdown pass, 62 yards, Nickie Hall to Marcus Anderson, Tulane.
- 10) longest interception return, 26 yards, Trent Bryant, Arkansas.
- 11) most field goals, 2, Ish Ordonez, Arkansas.
- 12) longest touchdown run, 46 yards, Gary Anderson, Arkansas.
- 13) longest field goal, 40 yards, Ish Ordonez, Arkansas.

HOW 'BOUT THEM HOGS

Arkansas wins 4th SWC Title in 5 years

In 1980-81, Texas A&M was supposed to be the class of the Southwest Conference. However, the Aggies evidently spent more time reading their own press clippings than practicing. The Hogs, after a rocky 2-3 start, began rolling, and the supposedly second place team won the conference for the fourth time in five years.

Arkansas opened its seventh season under Eddie Sutton by beating the Polish Nationals at Little Rock. Although the exhibition game didn't count on the Razorbacks' record, it did serve as a tune-up for the regular season.

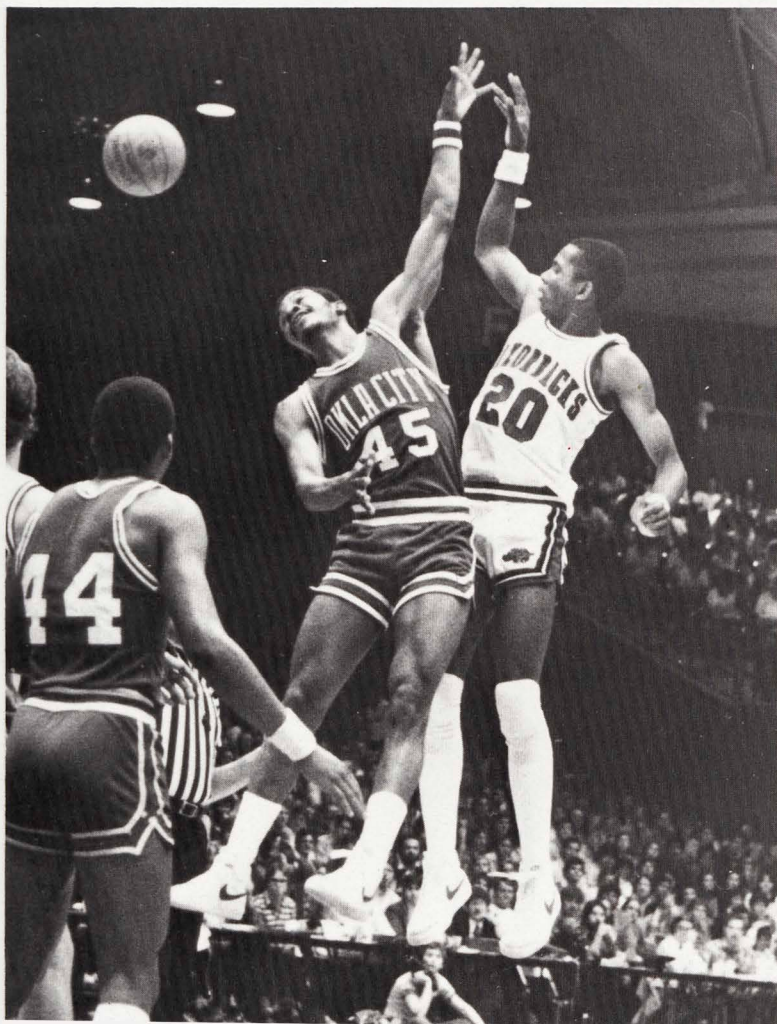

The Hogs then traveled "north to Alaska" for the Great Alaskan Shoot-out. The tournament featured five nationally ranked teams, and Arkansas faced three of them on three consecutive nights.

In the first round, the Hogs "gunned down" Steve Stipanovich and the Missouri Tigers. Arkansas' man-to-man defense took the Tigers completely out of their offense, and at one point in the first half, the Razorbacks led 40-9. During the Hogs' spurt, U.S. Reed treated Mizzou to a 360-slam-dunk. Missouri made a run in the second half behind the hot-shooting of guard Jon Sundvold, but the Hogs held on to win 81-73.

In the second round, the Hogs beat the LSU Tigers at their own game — running and rebounding. Brad Friess and Keith Peterson completely shut down All-American Durand Macklin to lead the defense, and Scott Hastings scored 25 points (with 14 rebounds) to lead the offense. The game ended with the final score being 87-76.

In the championship round, the Hogs lost to North Carolina 64-58. The Razorbacks had already played two tough opponents (North Carolina had breathers over Colgate and Georgetown.), and the physical and emotional drain showed. The Hogs fought to the end, but the deciding blow came when Scott Hastings (the tournament MVP) fouled out with 10 minutes left in the game.

Hogs win 3rd straight at the "Drum"

Returning to Barnhill Arena, the Hogs beat Southwest Missouri State (coached by former Razorback assistant Bob Cleeland) 98-65.

Arkansas' next game was against Michigan in Ann Arbor. A crew of Big Ten officials refereed the match, but they apparently saw only one team. The Wolverines' hot shooting and the "questionable" officiating proved too much to overcome, and the Hogs lost the game 78-65. Afterwards, Coach Sutton vowed to never play under those conditions again.

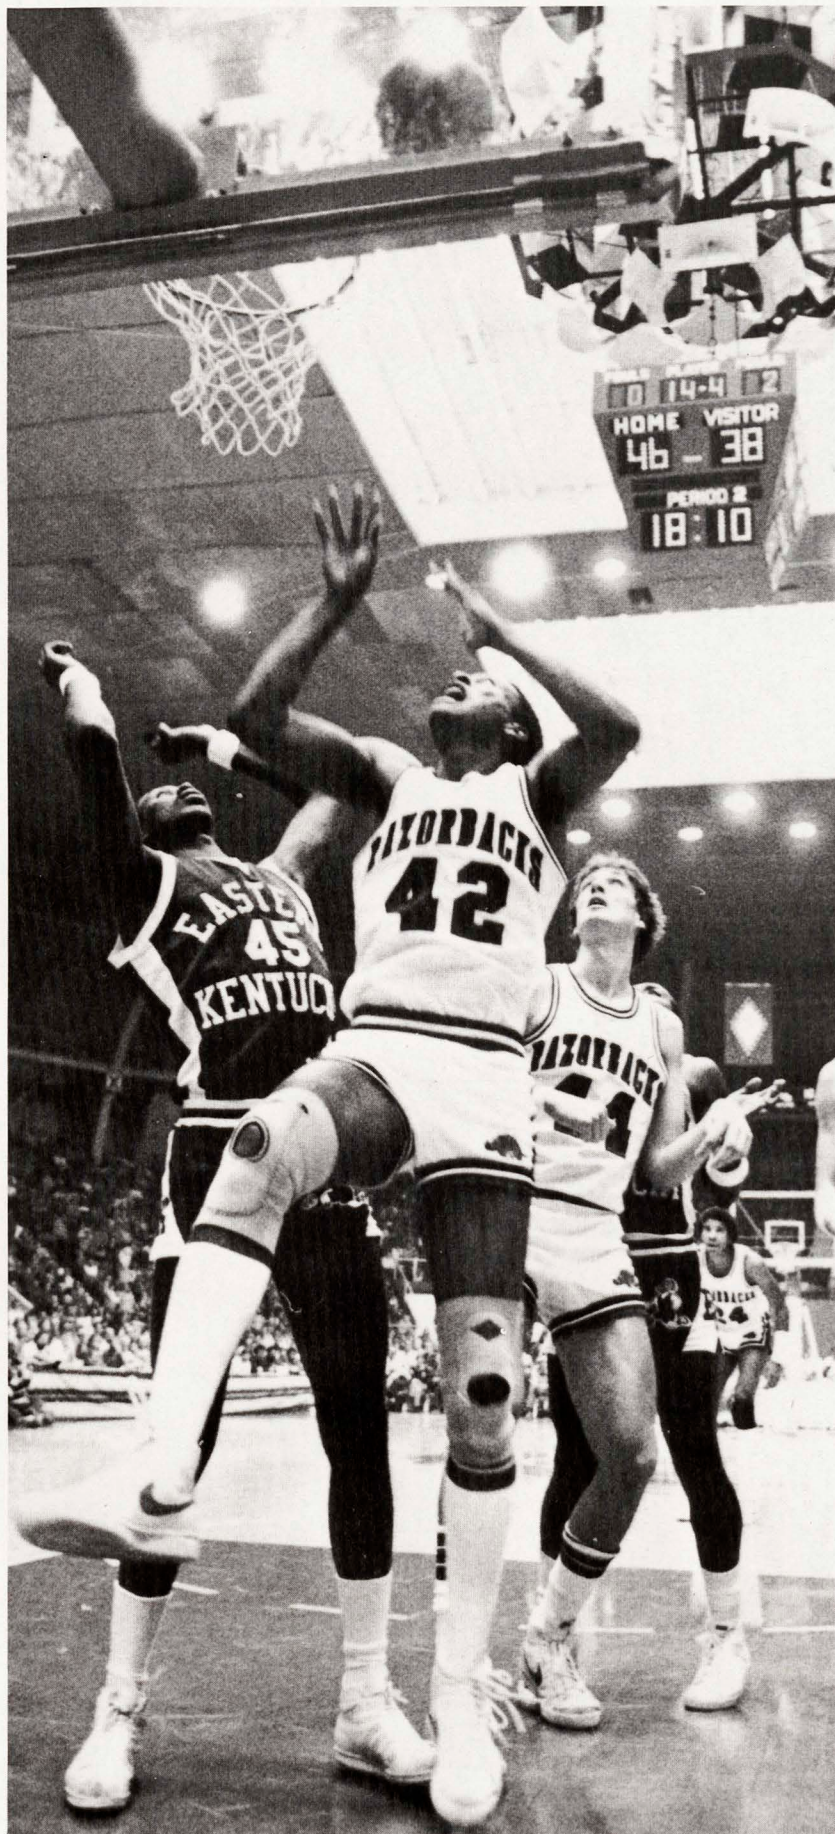

Although Arkansas' 67-50 victory over Athletes-in-Action had no affect on the Hogs' record, it nonetheless held special meaning for many Razorbacks. The game marked the homecoming of former Hogs Marvin Delph and Steve Schall.

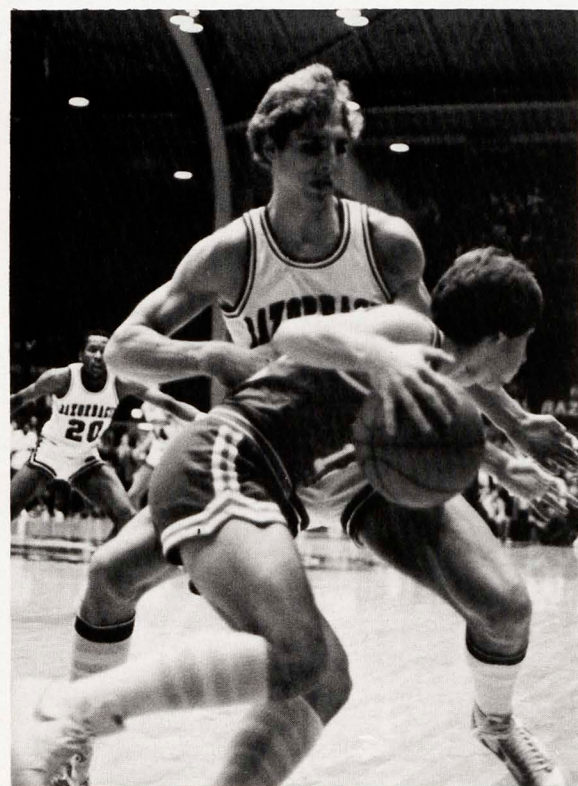

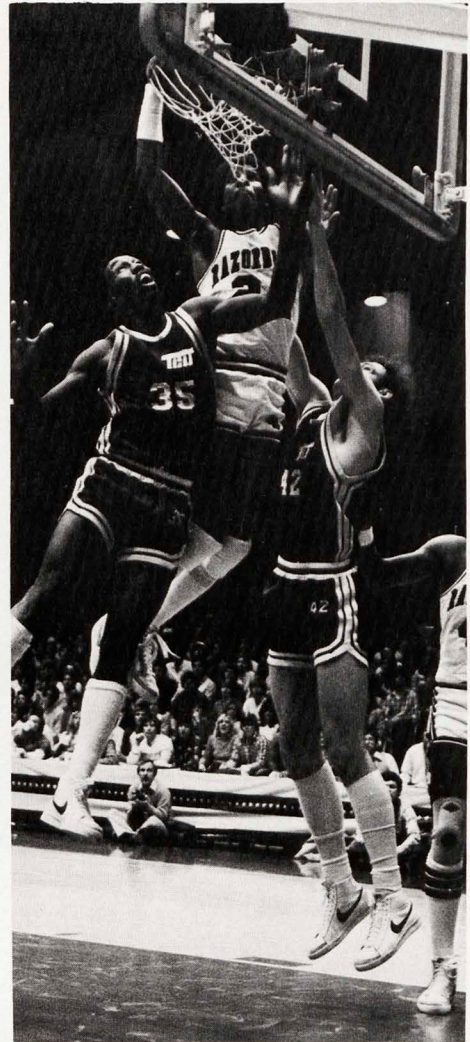

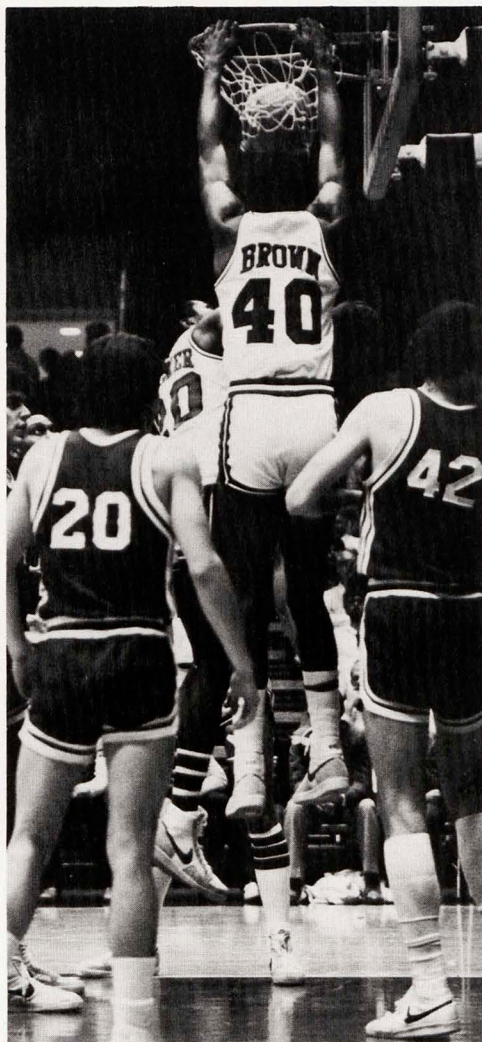

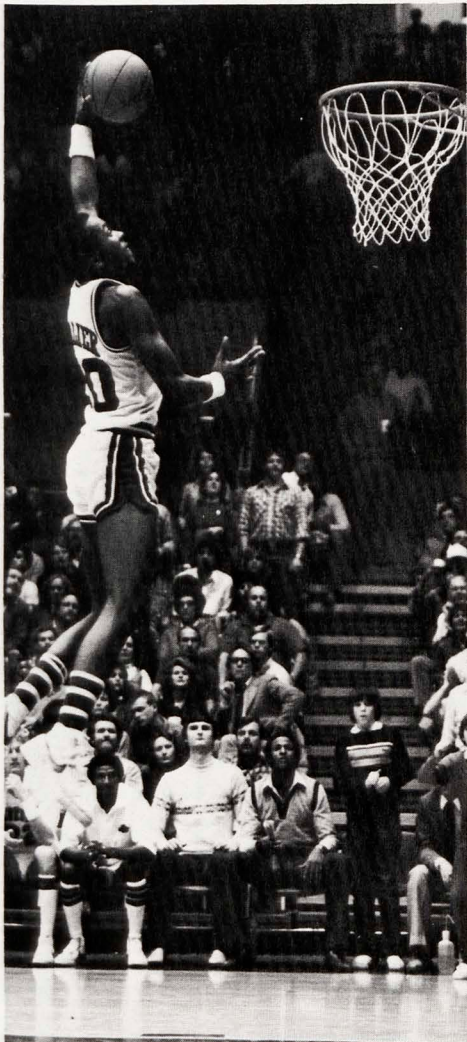

Arkansas reeled off four more victories beating Oklahoma City 76-70, Centenary 78-64, Eastern Kentucky 80-74, and Southern Mississippi 76-68.

Arkansas then met Kansas State in Kansas City. Neither team could pull away from the other, and the game eventually went into overtime. As the clock was running down, Darrell Walker attempted a shot that was blocked. He got the ball back and fired it in the hole, but the referee had ruled jump ball on the previous shot. It was K-State's turn to get the ball, and with two seconds left, they threw the in-bounds pass the length of the court. Scott Hastings, attempting to go for the steal, committed a careless foul, and the Wildcats' Ed Nealy converted the front end of a one-and-one. Arkansas lost 47-46.

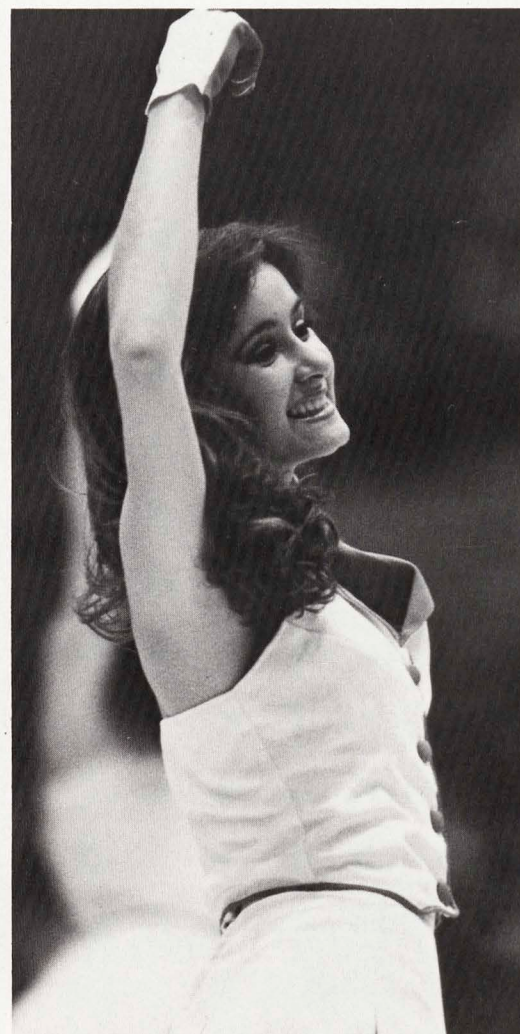

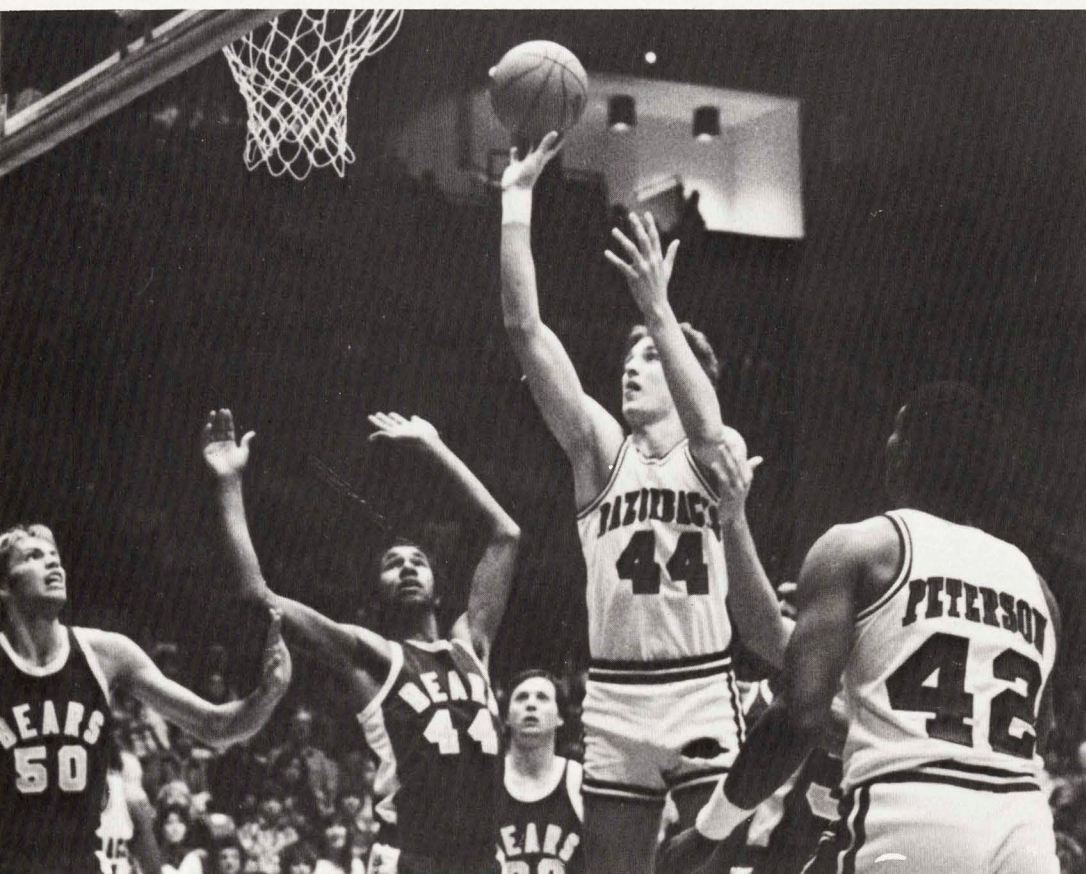

The Hogs then rebounded by thrashing Nebraska 64-52, SMU 92-50 (the worst defeat they had ever suffered in conference play), Alaska 92-58, and TCU 85-51.

Hogs win brawl with Aggies

Arkansas' old adversary Texas came back to haunt them once more. The Razorbacks had won five straight from the Longhorns and had won 22 straight in Fayetteville. However, Texas, playing better than it had all season, ended both streaks with a 62-60 win. The Hogs continued to slump against Baylor 67-58 and Houston 57-54.

Arkansas returned to form against Texas A&M. The Aggies also came into the game in a slump. After winning their first seven games, they had lost six of their last seven to give them a conference record of 1-4. It was a physical game, and Arkansas trailed in the first half. However, in the second half, the Razorbacks tightened their zone, and A&M's lack of leadership began to show. Keith Peterson, playing one of his best games of the season, silenced the more talk less action Aggies with some clutch free throw shooting, and Arkansas won 52-47.

Scott Hastings recovered from his second bout with the flu to lead the Hogs to a 57-52 win over the Rice Owls. Arkansas then ripped Texas Tech 60-35. The game became highlighted by Tech coach Gerald Myer's ejection after an official's none-call in the closing minutes. Eugene "Eugene, Eugene — the Dunking Machine") Nash canned 3 of 6 technical foul shots to send the crowd into a frenzy.

The Razorbacks continued their domination of Texas at the "Drum" without Darrell "Sky" Walker, who did not play in the game for disciplinary reasons. U.S. Reed sealed the victory over the Horns with a steal and dunk in the final minutes, and the Hogs won the "shoot-out" 54-48.

Arkansas beat TCU 63-48 before the largest Ft. Worth crowd in four years. The Hogs then repaid Baylor for an early season loss by slamming the Bears 67-50. Darrell Walker returned to the line-up with a vengeance by scoring 16 points, grabbing 12 rebounds, and defending Terry Teagle into oblivion.

Seniors win 3rd SWC title

Arkansas and Houston then met on regional television with the Hogs trailing the Cougars in the Conference by one game. The game was close until Houston went into a stall trailing 42-39. Cougar coach Guy Lewis reasoned that with two of his top performers in foul trouble he could keep his team in the game and take the crowd out of the game. However, the ploy backfired on both counts. The longer the Cougars held the ball the louder Barnhill got. The Hog Call rumbled down like thunder from the heavens, and Lynden Rose choked up an air ball after Houston had held the ball for more than four minutes. From there, the Hogs blew Houston off the court 70-55.

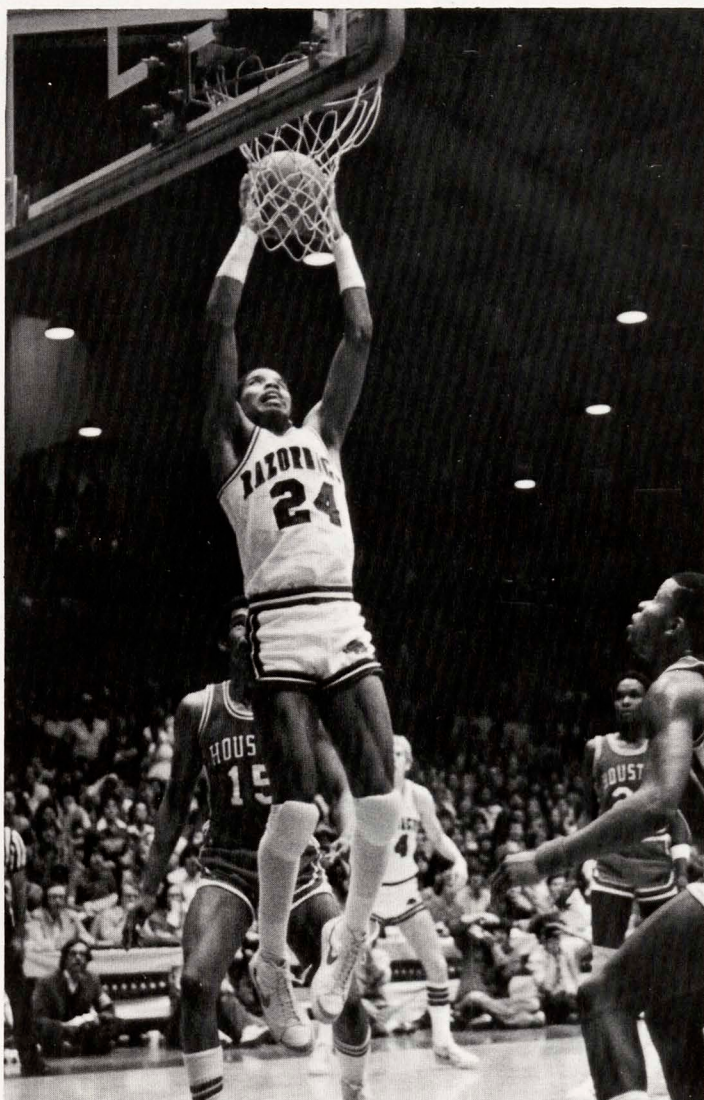

The Hogs then traveled to College Station to "fight" it out with the Aggies. A&M was on a roll, but so were the Hogs. As Arkansas began to dominate play, the Aggies lost their composure, and on three different occasions, they tried to start fights (mostly picking on Scott Hastings). Ironically, the Texas press had earlier in the week criticized Arkansas' fans for their conduct.

On the flight back from A&M, the Hogs learned that TCU had beaten Houston in four overtimes 78-77. The Hogs, now in sole possession of the conference lead, were greeted at Drake Field by Jim Robken and the Hog Wild Band and a bunch of "wild Hogs". Scott Hastings was presented with a pair of boxing gloves labeled No. 1.

The Hogs then held back Ricky Pierce and the Rice Owls 75-59 before facing SMU in the final home game of the season.

The Mustangs tried to spoil seniors U.S. Reed and Mike Young's final appearance in Barnhill by slowing the game down. But the Hogs were unperturbed, and Arkansas eventually turned the tables on the Ponies by playing a slow down game of their own. In the final half minute, "Downtown" Tony Brown broke away for a spectacular 180-slam-dunk, and the Hogs won 47-33.

Arkansas closed out the season by beating Texas Tech at Lubbock. The Hogs next looked to the conference tournament at San Antonio.

U.S. Reed: A Long Shot

If a stranger had walked into Barnhill on the night of U.S. Reed's final home game and heard the chants of "UUUUU ...", he would have never believed the story of how Reed came to Fayetteville.

As a senior at Pine Bluff High School, Reed's basketball skills gained about as much respect from major college recruiters as Rodney Dangerfield. They weren't sure Reed, a 6'2" high school center, could make the transition to collegiate guard. In fact, the Arkansas coaching staff seemed so unsure about Reed's abilities they didn't offer him a scholarship until less than a month before the start of school. However, U.S. believed in himself enough to wait on Arkansas, and the Razorbacks were glad he did.

In his career, U.S. experienced the inevitable highs (and the lows) of competitive situations:

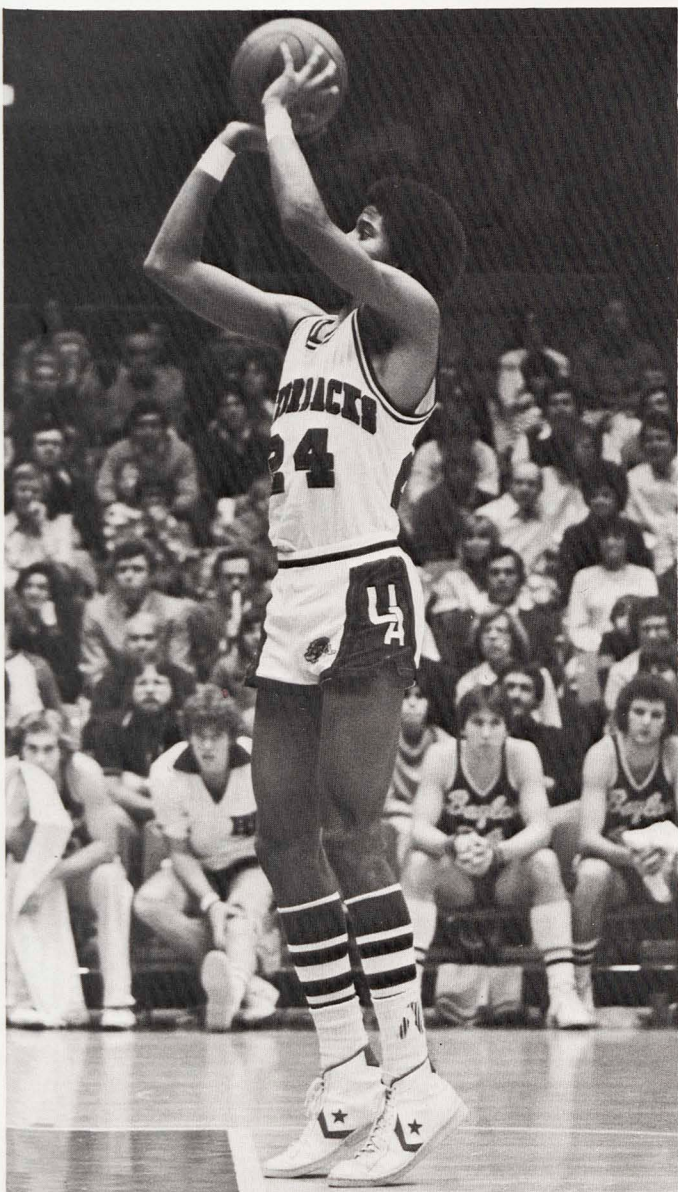

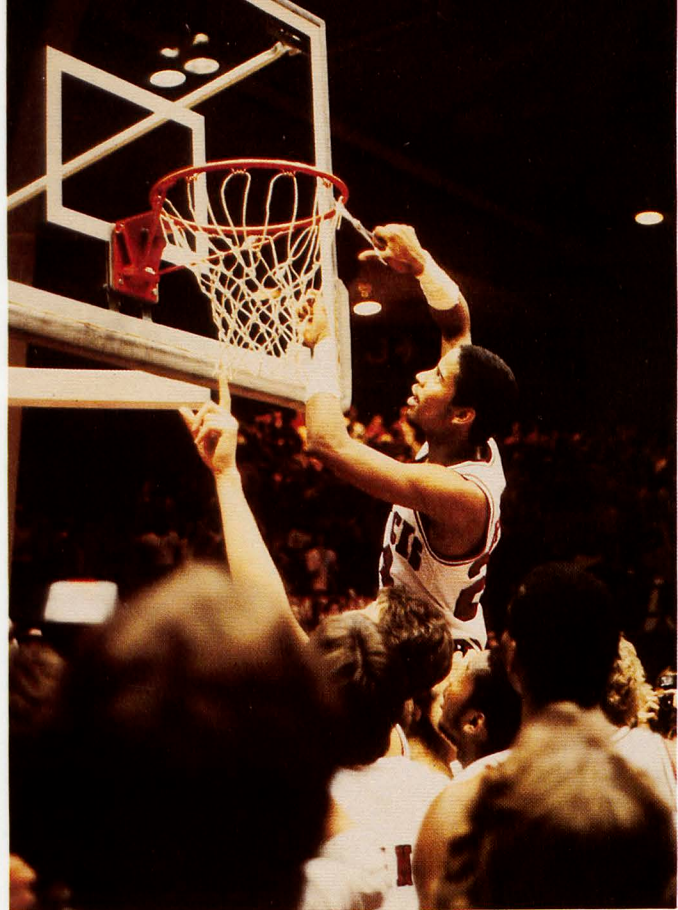

- *As a freshman, Reed came off the bench to score eight critical points against Texas to help the Hogs beat the Horns 75-71.

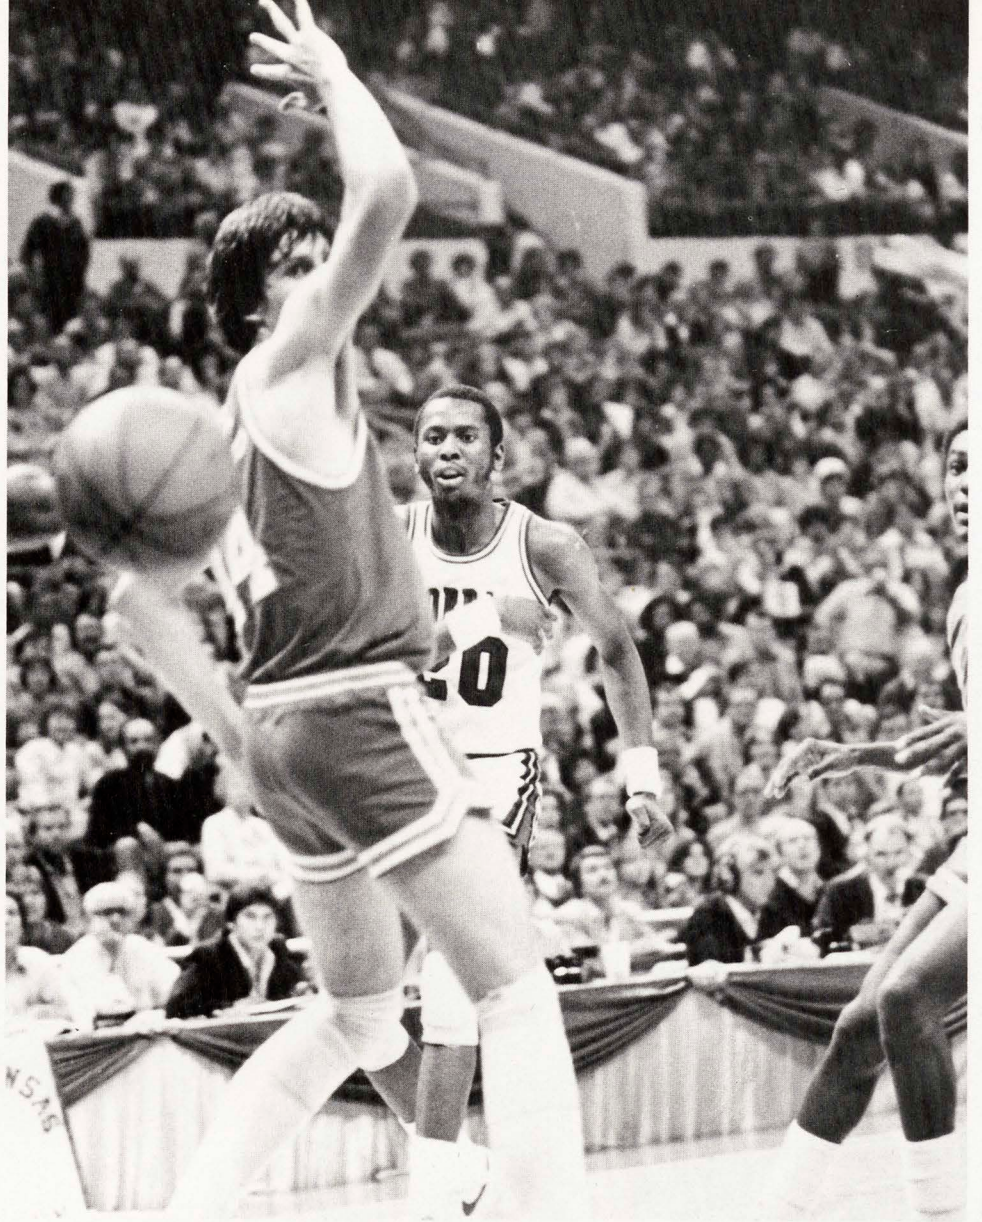

- *As a sophomore, in the quarterfinals of the NCAA tournament, Reed, after being tripped by Indiana State's Carl Nicks, was called for traveling. A subsequent non-travel by ISU cost the Hogs the game.

- *As a junior, Reed gunned down a 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer to beat Texas 60-59.

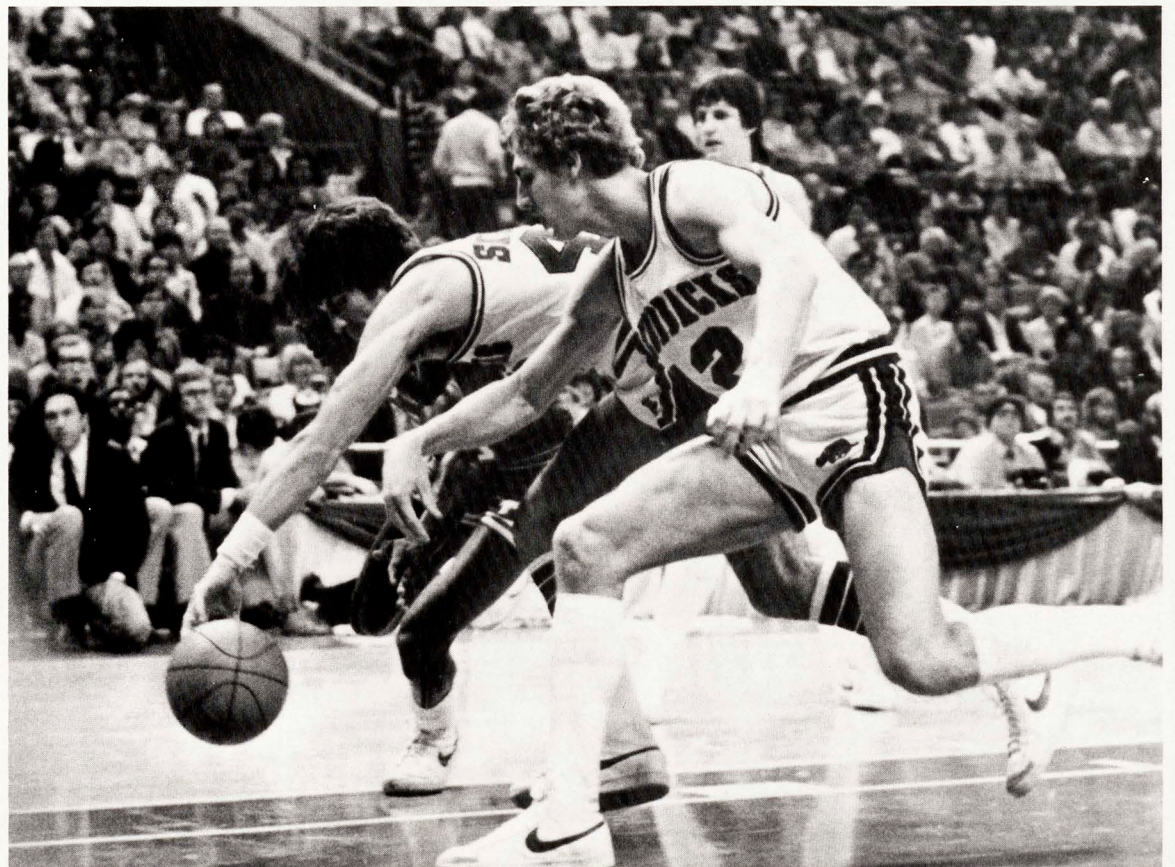

- *As a senior, U.S. sank a shot from half-court to beat Louisville at the wire 74-73 in the NCAA Tournament.

Despite all his deeds, Reed will always be remembered best for his incredible leaping ability — blocked shots, double-clutch slams, above the rim rebounds, and 360-jams. In his four years, U.S. made first or second team All-SWC three years, and he played on teams that combined for over a hundred victories — not bad for a guy who supposedly didn't have what it takes.

Hogs upset at San Antonio

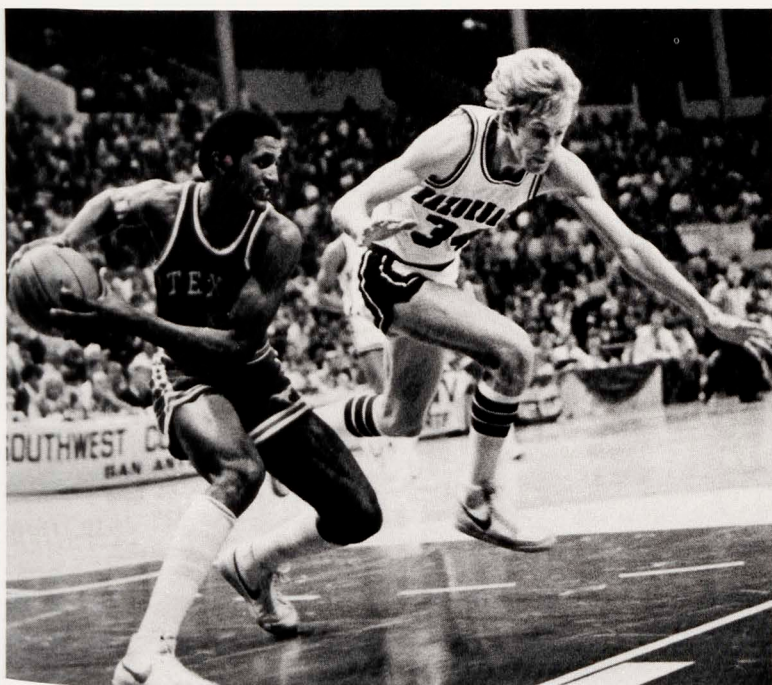

In the first round of the Southwest Conference tournament at San Antonio, Texas upset Arkansas 76-73. In a single game, the Razorbacks have probably never played so well or so poorly.

To begin, the Hogs came out hot to grab a 10-point lead, then faltered horribly as LaSalle Thompson muscled in 21 first half points for a 50-39 Texas halftime lead.

However, at intermission, Arkansas calmed down and even appeared to be in control of the game when they took a 70-66 lead with a couple of minutes to play.

Then Ray Harper, the Longhorns' 5-10 freshman quarterback who proved to be Arkansas' undoing earlier in the season, took charge. He hit an 18-footer and initiated a steal and layup to tie the game at 70-all.

From there, everything fell apart, and Texas pulled away for a major upset. The Hogs had to now hope they would receive an at-large bid from the NCAA.

U.S. Bombs Lou'ville

Arkansas did receive a bid to the NCAA tourney, and the pairings were better than anyone could have hoped for after being upset in the conference tournament — the Hogs faced little known Mercer in the opening round at Austin, Texas.

The Texas fans once again proved their class and conference loyalty by roundly booing the Razorbacks against Mercer. In a lack-luster performance, the Hogs struggled to a 76-67 win.

Arkansas next moved on to face last year's national champions Louisville. Although the Hogs led the Cardinals by as many as seven points with three minutes to play, they needed a miracle to win.

Derek Smith's desperate rebound bucket with five seconds had capped a long Louisville comeback effort to put them ahead 73-72. However, U.S. Reed, who has hit the game winning shot so often, threw up a prayer from midcourt and had it answered. No rim, no board, no cord, the ball just went straight through the hoop, and the Hogs won 74-73.

Even after the fans peeled themselves off the ceiling, no one still believed it, especially Louisville. The Cardinal's head coach Denny Crum lamented, "We don't have any better defense against a prayer shot."

Arkansas' next opponent was LSU. The Tigers proved too tough in home-court area as they blasted the Hogs 72-56 in the Louisiana Superdome.

The Razorbacks had nothing to be ashamed of though. They'd had another excellent season.

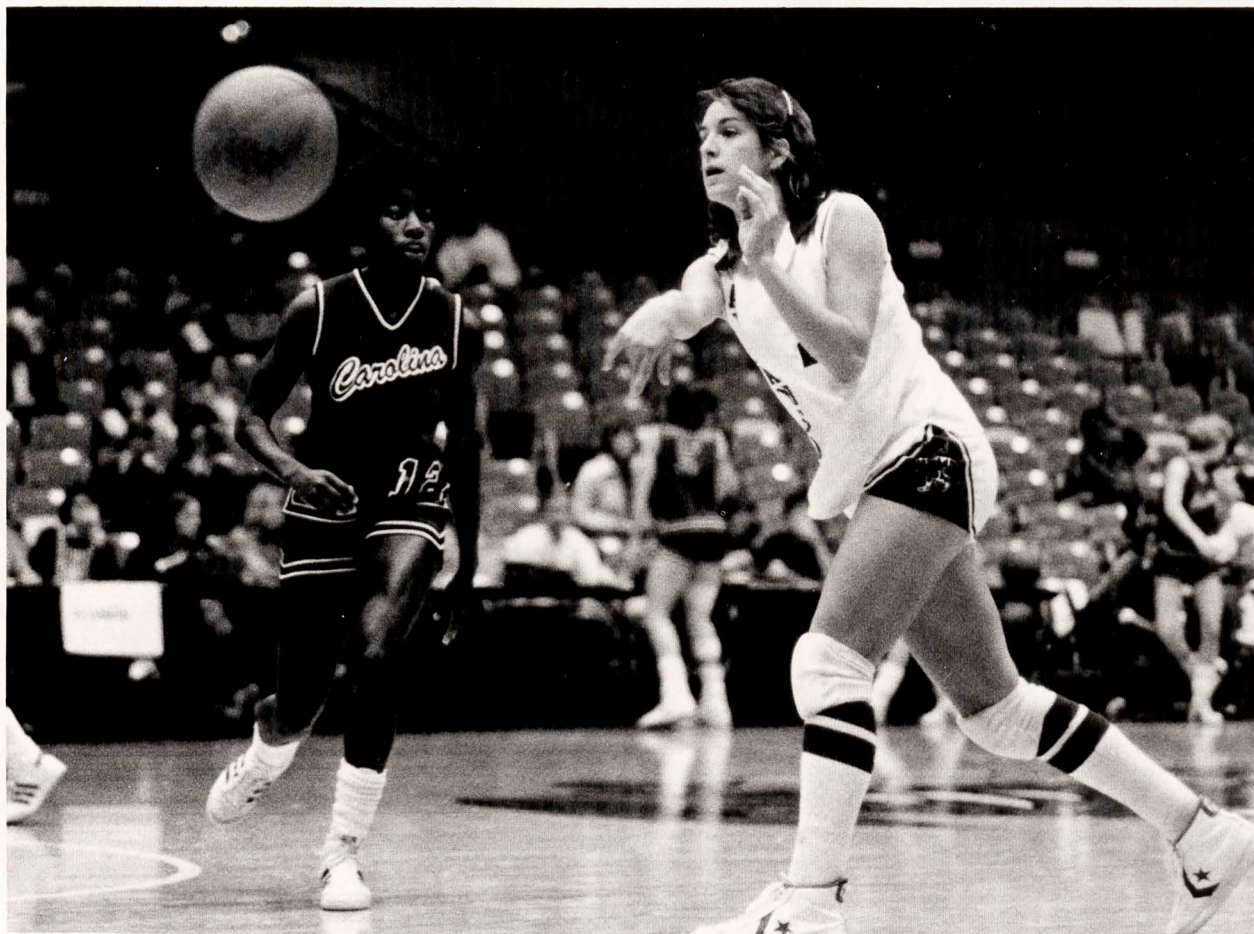

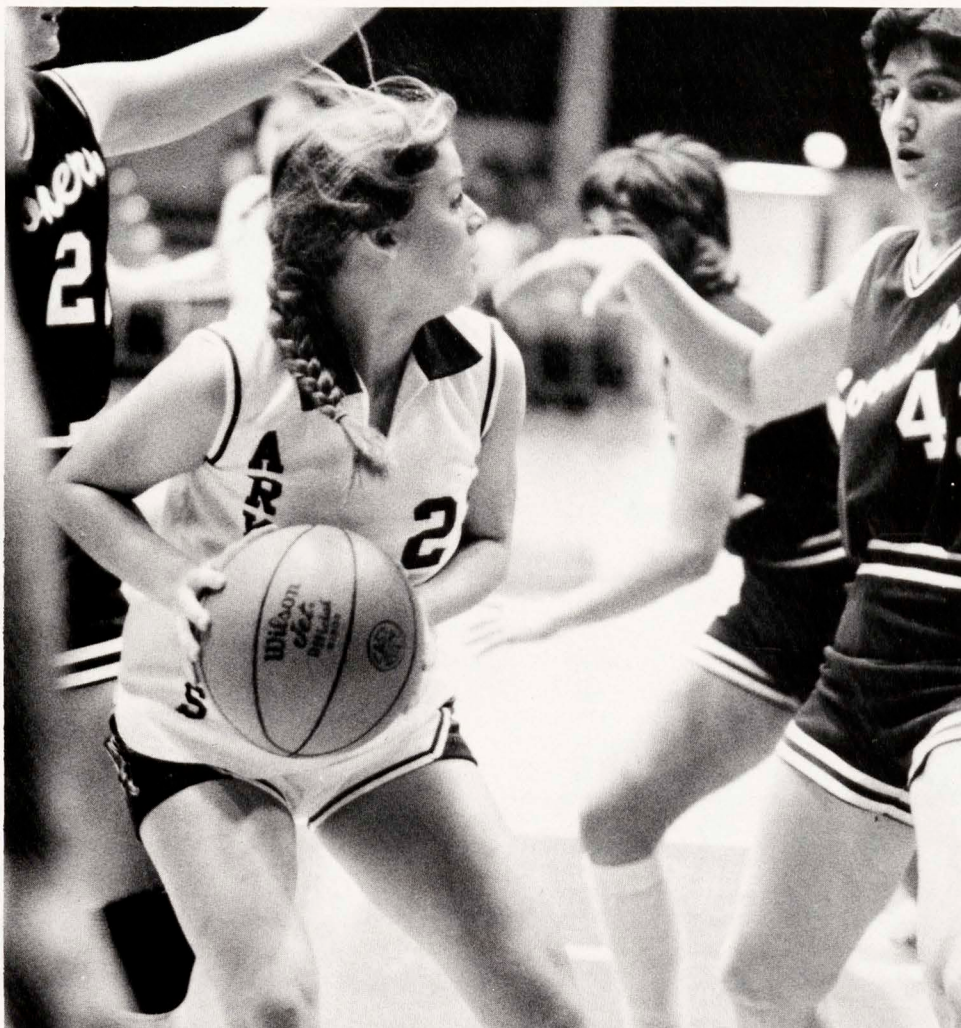

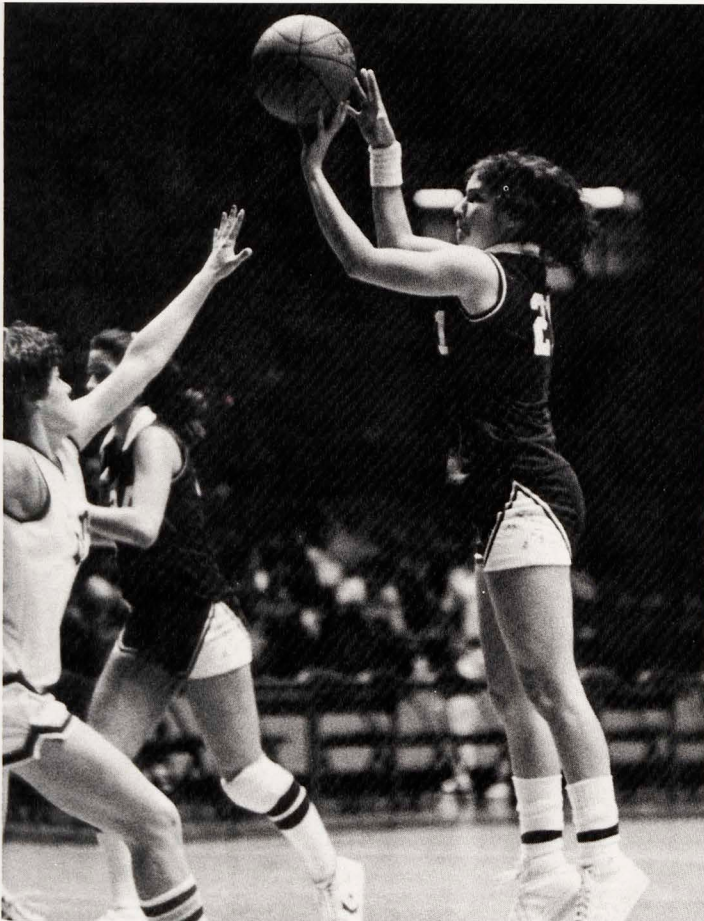

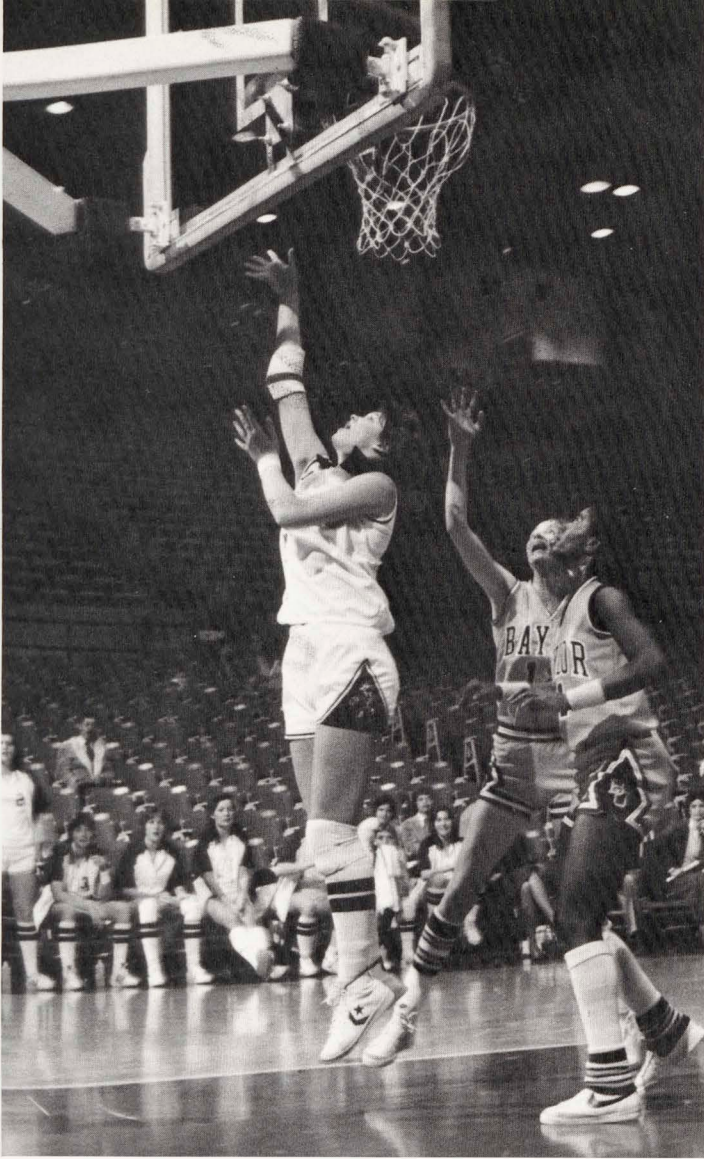

Women's basketball rebuilding

Even though suffering through a disappointing 11-18 season, Arkansas did see the beginning of a new attitude towards women's basketball. A Commitment was given to produce a first-class program during the last year. The Razorbacks added their first full-time assistant who took charge of the recruiting program and produced immediate results.

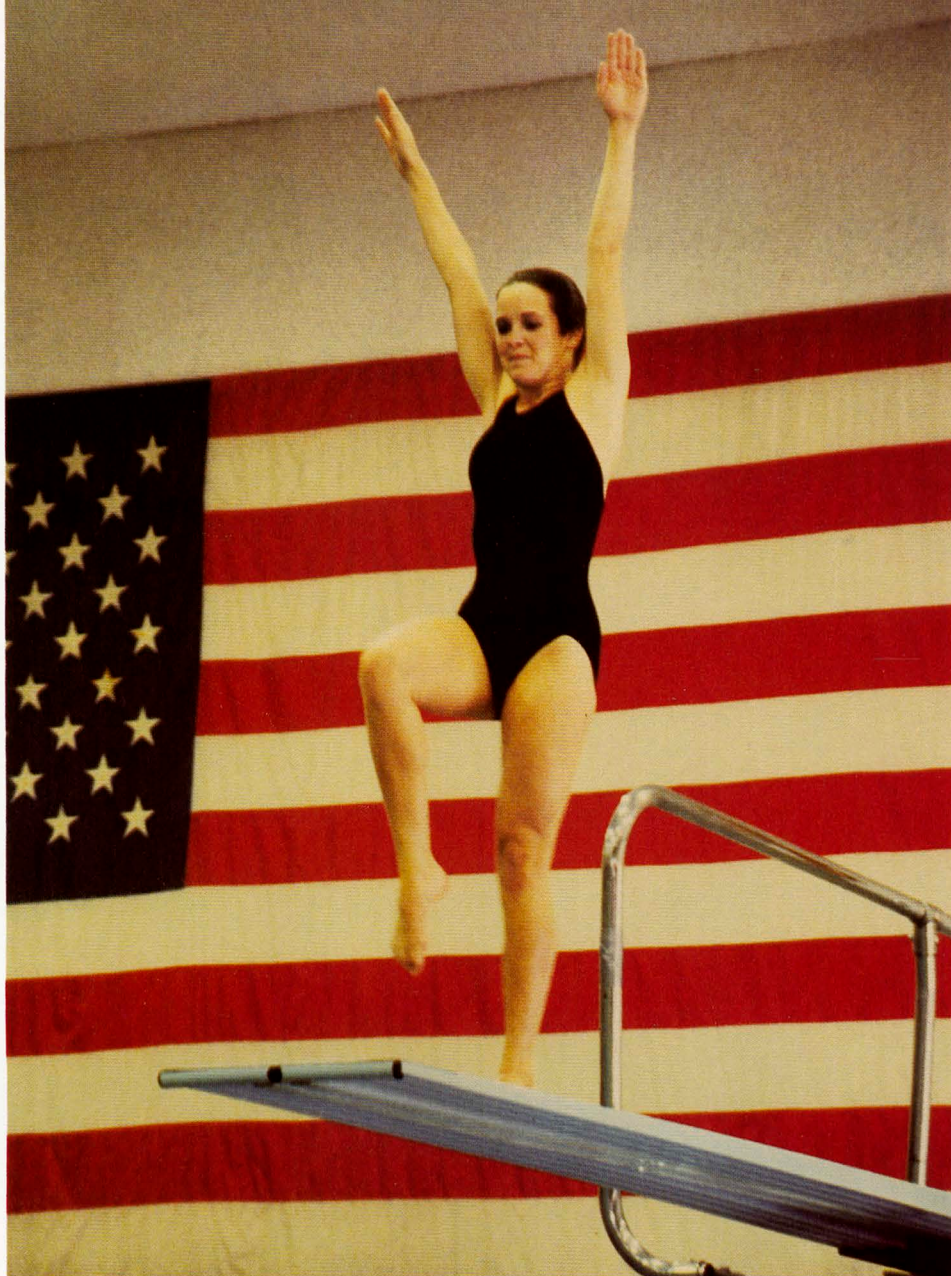

Senior's Leah Gordon and Tammy Siefkes completed their Razorback careers collecting a good share of the school scoring and assist records. Freshman Cheryl Orcholski of Milwaukee, WI, led the Razorbacks in scoring during her rookie season and earned all-Southwest Conference honors during the league tournament at Houston in January. As a team, the Razorbacks finished 5th in the SWC, a conference noted for its strong women's basketball programs.

The 1980-81 season could be labeled as a rebuilding year yet it became a season in which a solid foundation was established.

Hogs finish twelfth

Despite illness and injuries, the Arkansas men's swim team had one of its best seasons ever in '80-'81 with a 12-1 record and a twelfth place finish in the NCAA championships.

"I was pretty upset when the NCAA meet was over," said Razorback coach Sam Freas. "I can't remember a year when we had more people sick. But overall, we had an excellent season."

Several times during the season, the Hogs had as many as twelve swimmers miss a meet, but the Porkers still managed to field a team capable of whipping formidable opponents.

Arkansas knocked off Big Eight powers Missouri, Oklahoma, and Kansas, along with perennial swimming power Tennessee on their way to a near-perfect dual meet season.

The Hogs dominated the Southwest Invitational at Lubbock, Texas in December, beating national champion Texas and SMU, a team that finished fourth^{*} Nationally.

While at the United States Invitational in Gainesville, Florida, Freas' crew continued to dazzle the nation. The relay team of Randy Ensminger, Jay Merritt, Martin Smith, and Jerry Spencer broke the U.S. club record for the 400-meter freestyle relay, and also defeated world swimming teams from East Germany, the Soviet Union, and Sweden in the process.

Spencer's time of 22.91 in the 50 meter freestyle in the same meet stood as the world record briefly before being bettered later in the same evening.

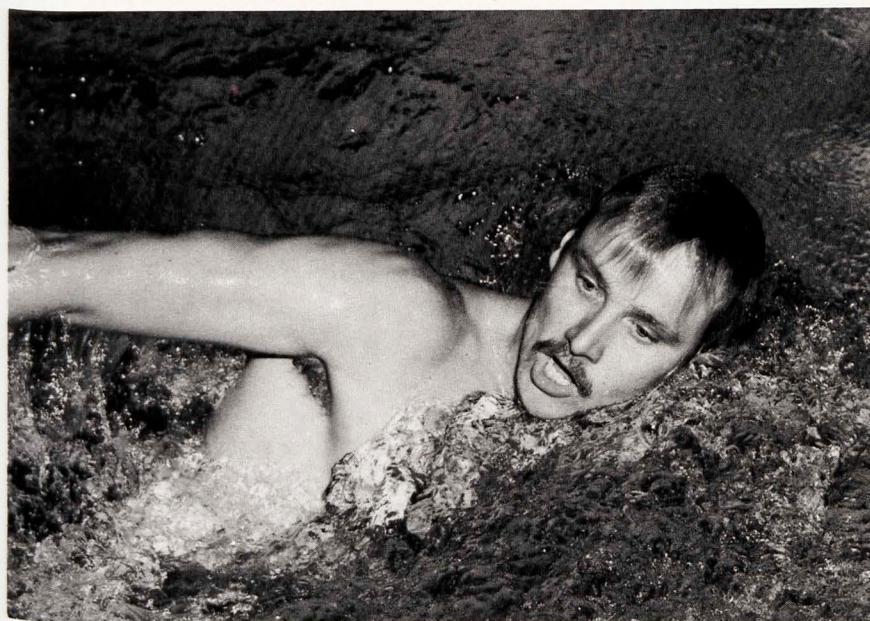

Besides his great performance in the U.S.I., Spencer had several other impressive times over the year. Spencer's accomplishments earned him All-American honors for the second time in three years.

In addition to Spencer, the Razorbacks had six other All-Americans. Merritt gained recognition in the 100-meter breaststroke relay, the 400-meter medley relay, and the 400 freestyle relay. Ron Meyer gained All-American status in both the one and three meter diving events, Robert Lager on the 400 Medley relay team, Olympian Martin Smith on the 499 freestyle and medley relay teams, Ensminger on the 400 freestyle team, and Derek Taylor gained honors also on the 400 freestyle relays.

Besides earning All-America recognition, freshman Meyer was the most valuable diver at the Southwest Conference meet.

"If I hadn't sent most of my kids all over the world (in order to get qualifying times for the NCAA meet), we'd have finished higher than twelfth, maybe even eighth," Freas said. "Next year we're going to change our approach a little bit. The Conference meet will be higher on our priority list than it was this year. Our Conference is the second best in the country. We're only a little behind the Pac 10."

Although Freas was disappointed with the team's finish at the NCAA's, he is still optimistic: "We're gonna win the NCAA's in a few years," he said.

Hogs Run For Triple Crown

Arkansas' track team attempted to become the first team in Southwest Conference history to win the "Triple Crown". The Razorbacks, who won the conference cross country title last fall and the indoor track and field championship earlier in the spring, would complete the "Triple Crown" by capturing the outdoor track championship.

"It's going to be hard for us to win the outdoor championship," says coach John McDonell. "Our winning will depend on the balance of all the teams. If the teams like Houston, Texas, and Texas A&M split up the points in the sprints then we will have a shot at winning it."

Arkansas appeared to have an excellent chance of winning the outdoor championship before the season began but injuries to Razorback distance ace Mark Anderson and triple jumper William Thompson may cost the Hogs needed points.

Regardless of his team's outcome, several members of McDonnell's squad have a good chance of winning individual titles.

Quartermilers Stanley Redwine and Pat Mitchell will be among the favorites in the 400 meters. Randy Stephens will have his hands full when he takes on SMU's Sammy Koskei in the 800 meters but could pull an upset.

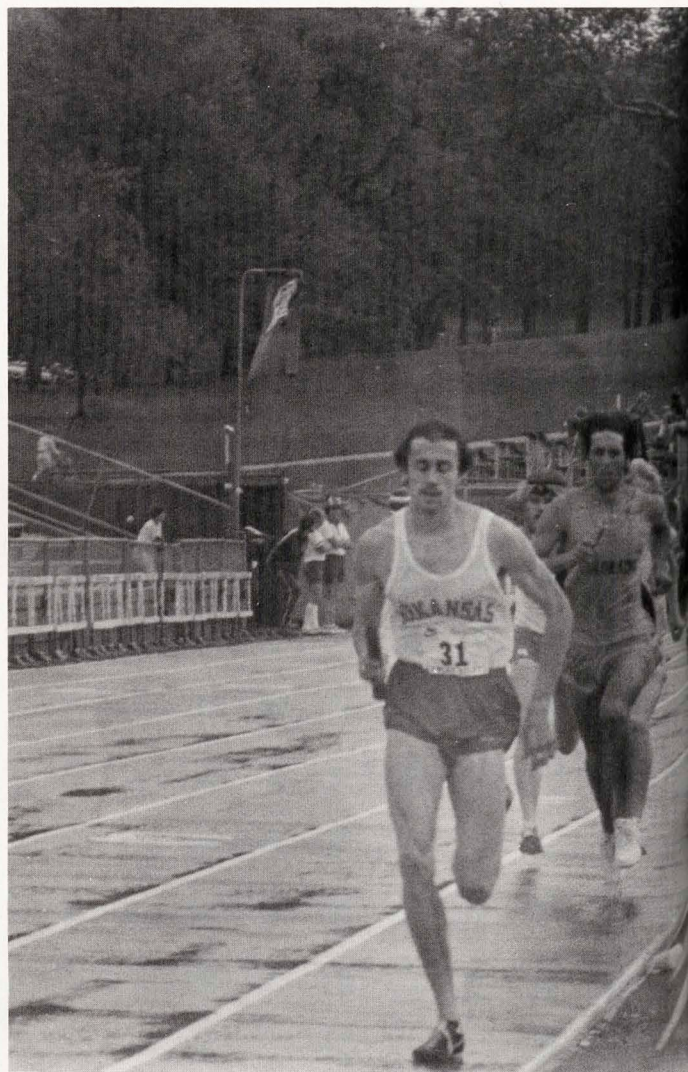

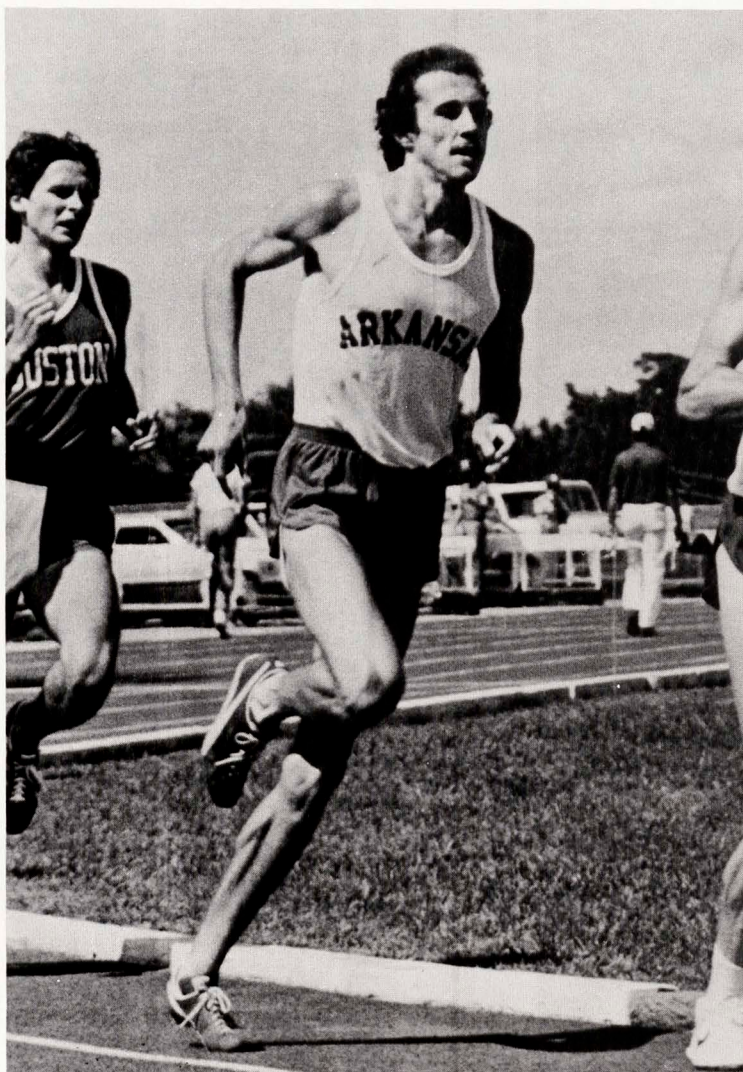

Pat Vaughn, Tony Conroy, or Randy Reina could take the 100,000 meter title. Frank O'Mara won the steeplechase last year and should repeat.

The Razorback mile relay team of Paul Jones, Kerwin Washington, Mitchell, and Redwine holds the second best time in the nation, but should get a strong challenge from Baylor.

In the field events Scott Lofquist rates a strong favorite to win the discus competition. Lofquist just missed throwing 200 feet when he set a new school and state collegiate record with a throw of 199-5.

Over the course of the season, Stanley Redwine established himself as one of the top intermediate sprinters in the country with several outstanding performances.

Hogs host 1st SWS Track Meet

The women's track and cross country program enjoyed continued growth during the past year. Serving as the host school for the SWAIAW Cross Country Championships, the Razorbacks qualified three runners- junior Jody Rittenhouse, Junior college transfer Maria Tillman, and Freshman Cathy Stone - for the AIAW National meet at Seattle, Wash. They missed sending the entire team by only one point.

On the track, Arkansas fielded some quality athletes. Freshman Betty Smith, although bothered for much of the indoor season with a strained hamstring, demonstrated why she was considered one of the top sprint recruits ever to sign with the Razorbacks. Smith set school marks both indoors and outdoors and added the SWC 100 meter crown to her credit in May. Sophomore Wanda Harris surprised everyone with her victory in the long jump competition at the conference meet. Harris hadn't competed in the event since her senior season in high school, but at the SWC Championships, she displayed the form that made her one of the top prepsters ever to come out of the Arkansas high school ranks. Harris won the competition with a leap of 19-8 $\frac{1}{4}$ ", a new school record.

The Razorbacks accomplished many first during their campaign. In May, Arkansas hosted the first ever SWC Women's Track and Field Championships. During that meet, the Razorbacks won five events and set five school records. In total, nine Razorbacks qualified for national meet competition during 1980-81, a guide to the direction headed by the Arkansas women's track and field program.

Women's records fall

All but one school swimming record fell during the 1980-81 season. The addition of seven freshman with all-star credentials breathed new life in the Arkansas women's program. Sophomore Karen Gorham picked up where she left off as a freshman.

The Nashville, Tenn., native accomplished her primary goal for the season in winning the AIAW one-meter national diving championship at Columbia, S.C.. This marked Gorham's second national crown. Her freshman year, Gorham won the AAU one-meter diving crown. In addition to her one meter title, Gorham narrowly missed a double win by placing third in the AIAW three meter competition. Following the week-long meet, Gorham was named the AIAW Naional Diver of the Year for 1981.

Although she failed to repeat as the AAU one meter champion in 1981, Gorham's seventh place finish earned her a berth on the United States diving team that will compete internationally this summer. At the first international meet in May, the USA-International diving Championships, she finished seventh in the world on the three meter board, she was the youngest diver and the only collegian among the top eight finishers.

Prospect, IL, prepares to hit her backhand.

Hogs ranked 3rd

Arkansas netters' total domination of the Southwest Conference for the second year in a row, defies the fact that at one point it became questionable if they would even be able to field a team. The Hog's top freshman recruit, Mike Depalmer, defected to Tennessee when his father was named head coach there, and Arkansas' other spring recruit became academically ineligible before the season began.

However, head coach Tom Pucci refused to be discouraged, and in the fall, he went on a world wide recruiting trip. To go along with Chip Hooper, Peter Doohan, Clark Diehl, and Jose Lambert, who returned from last year's team, Pucci added Pat Serret from Australia and Jean Van Rensberg from South Africa. The squad was completed by walk-ons Mark Kane and Mark Dutton.

Before the play began, Hooper established himself as the No. 1 ranked player in the country by winning the National Collegiate Indoor Tennis Championships. The tournament featured the 32 top ranked players in the country.

Early in the dual season, the Hogs struggled slightly in singles while Pucci searched for the right combination, but they still managed to win the Wal-Mart Invitational (held for the first time at Burns Park in Little Rock) on the strength of their doubles play.

The Hogs remained undefeated until Hooper suffered a stress fracture in his left foot that sidelined him for several weeks. During his absence, Serret and Van Rensberg each missed action with less serious injuries. Only then, did the Razorbacks lose despite the outstanding job of Doohan who filled in for Hooper at the No. 1 singles position. Arkansas got well in time for conference play though and began to roll through it's opponents. The Hogs opened league play with a 9-0 win over Texas Tech at Lubbock. Returning to Fayetteville, they dispatched of pre-season favorite Houston 6-3 and Texas 8-1.

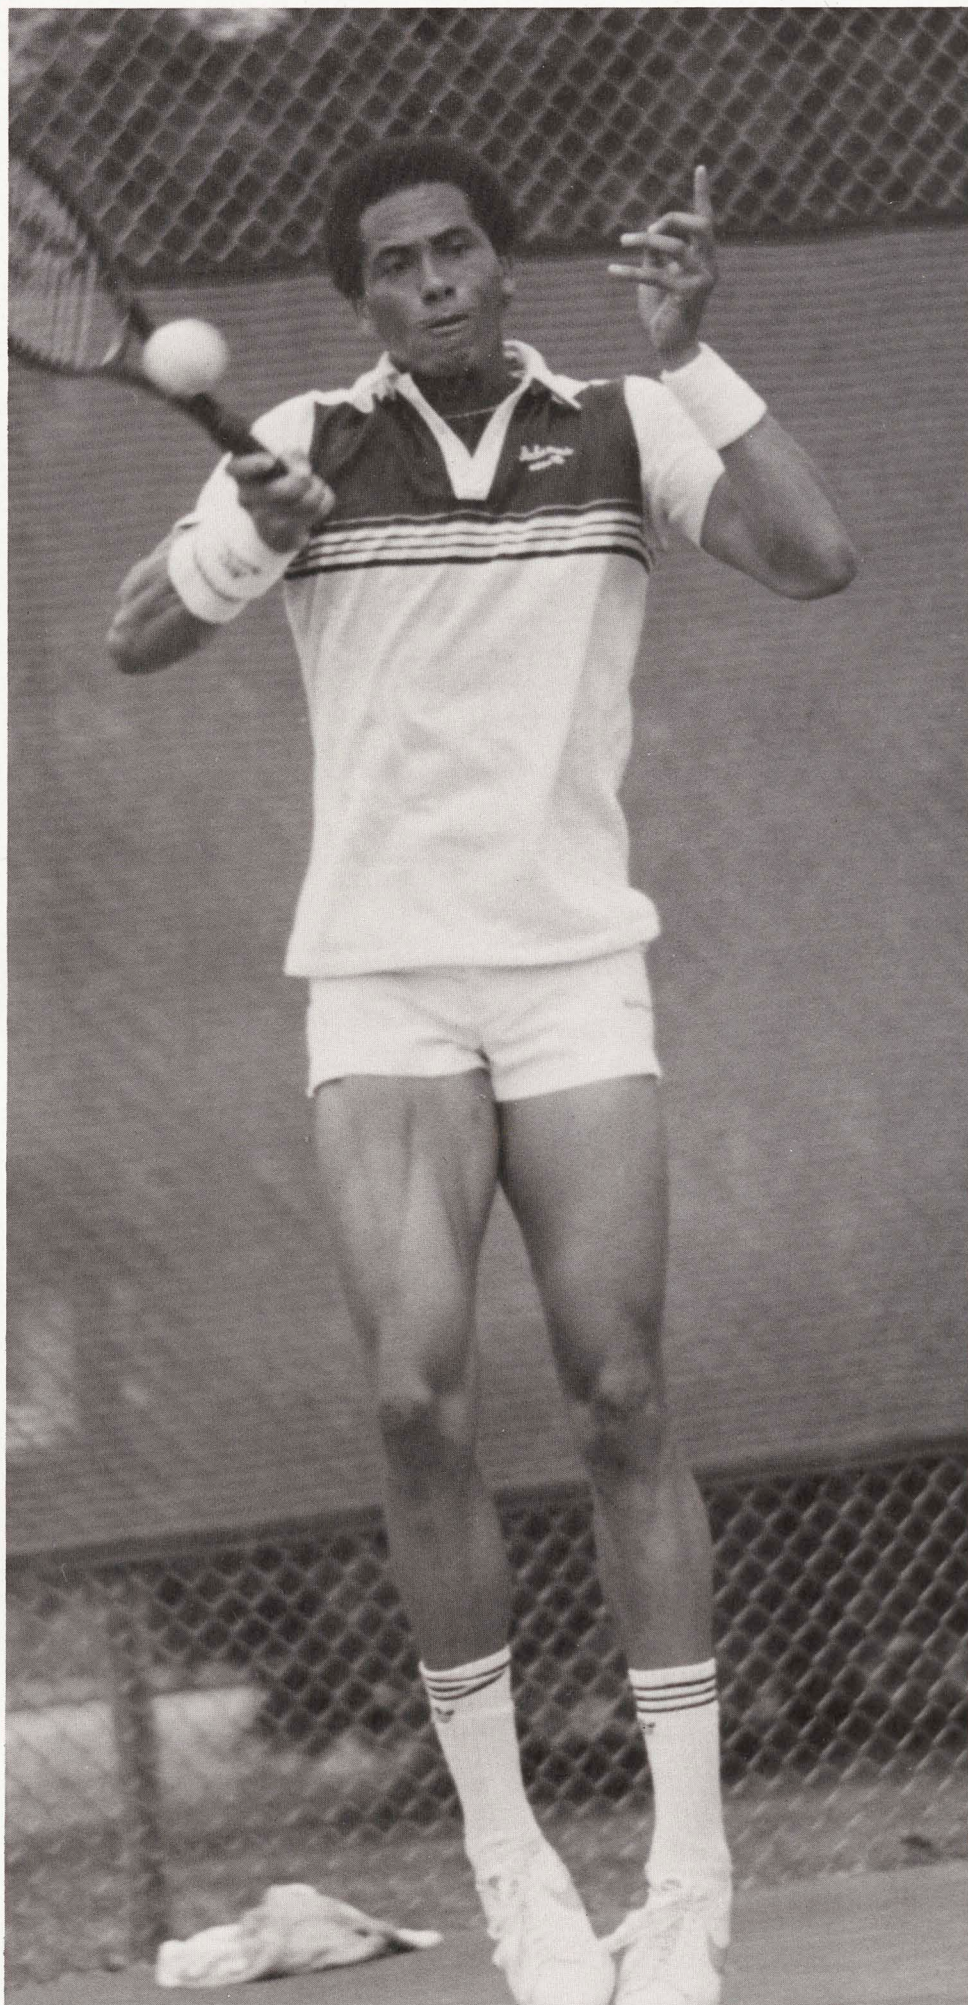

The Hogs then went on a critical four day swing through Texas. On consecutive afternoons, Arkansas whipped a better than average TCU team 6-3, nationally ranked Trinity 6-3, Texas A&M 8-1, and Rice 7-2.

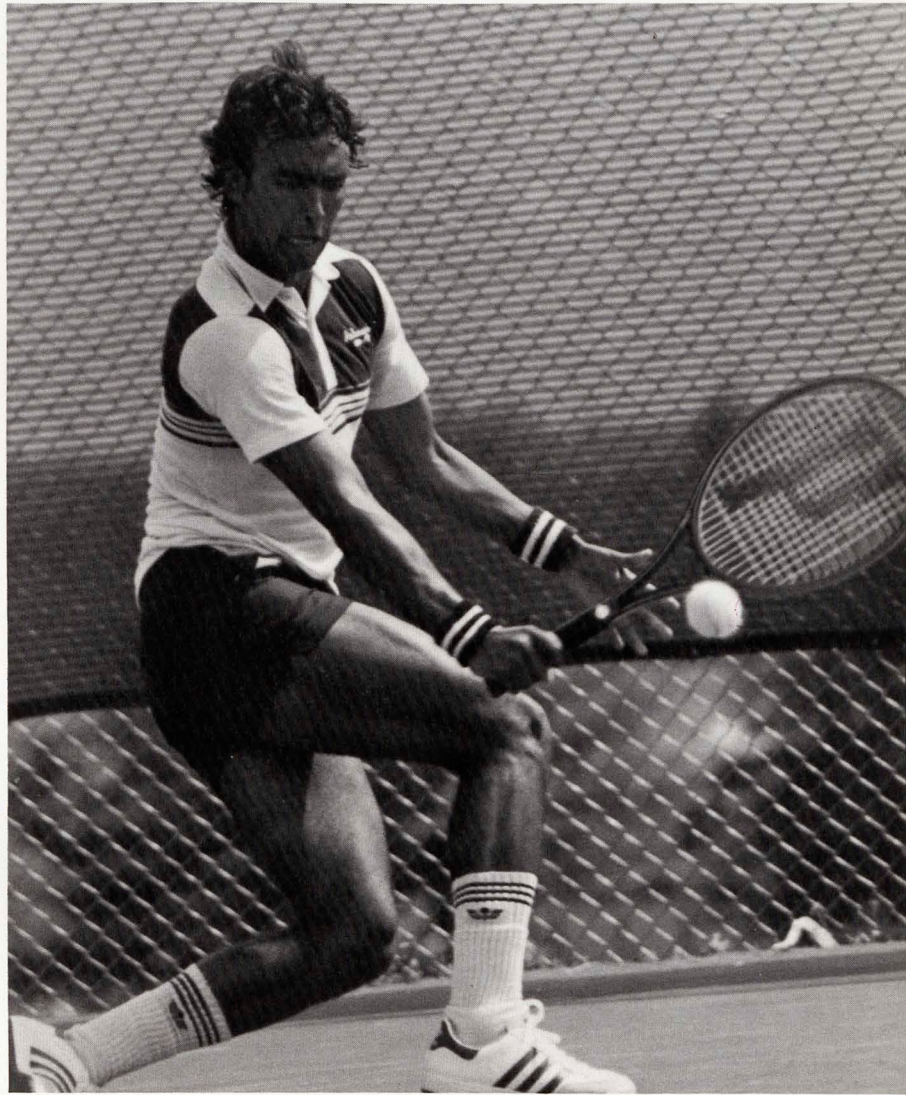

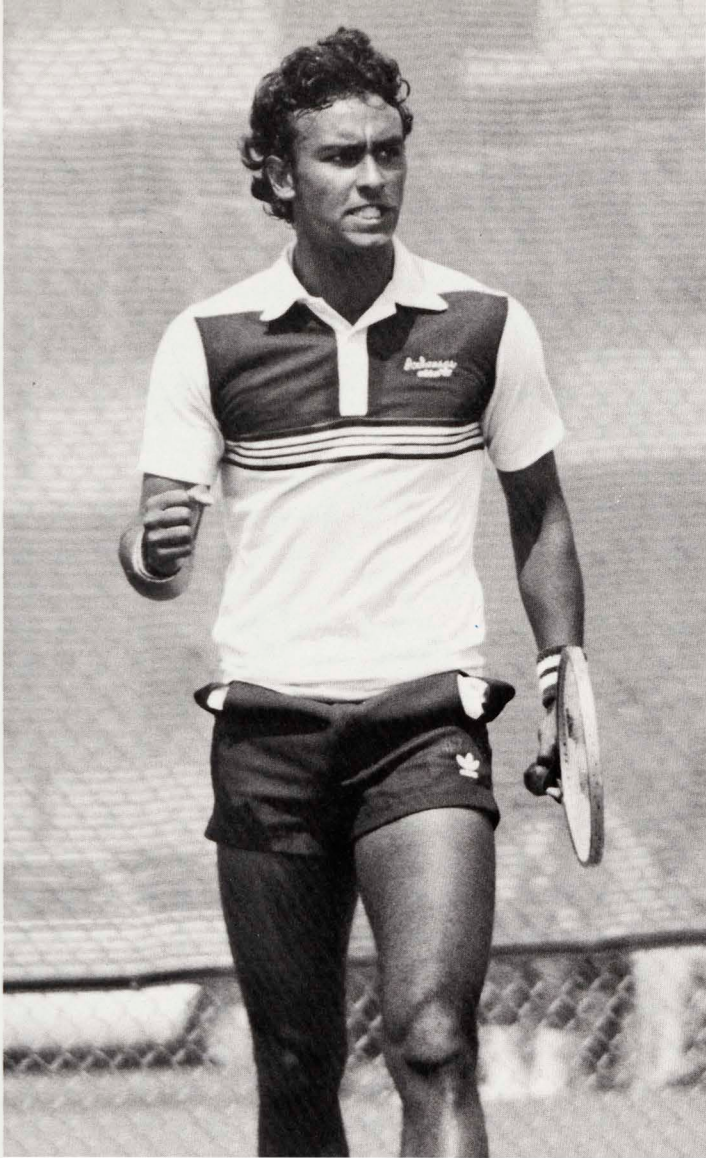

Back home, the Hogs took only two hours plus to slam hapless Baylor 9-0. Hooper and Diehl highlighted the blitz with a 6-0, 6-0 victory at No. 2 doubles. The Razorbacks then virtually clinched the conference championship with a 7-2 drubbing of second-place SMU. Serret closed out the regular season conference date undefeated to lead the Hogs' victory.

Arkansas completed the regular season with a 6-2 win over Oklahoma State (led by former Razorback Mark Johnson). The Hogs 24-3 dual meet record had them ranked third in the country.

At the Southwest Conference tournament in Corpus Christi, Arkansas won its second straight conference title by winning four of nine league championships. Hooper (repeating from last year), Doohan, and Diehl won at No. 1, No. 2, and No. 4 singles respectively, and Lambert and Van Rensberg won at No. 3 doubles.

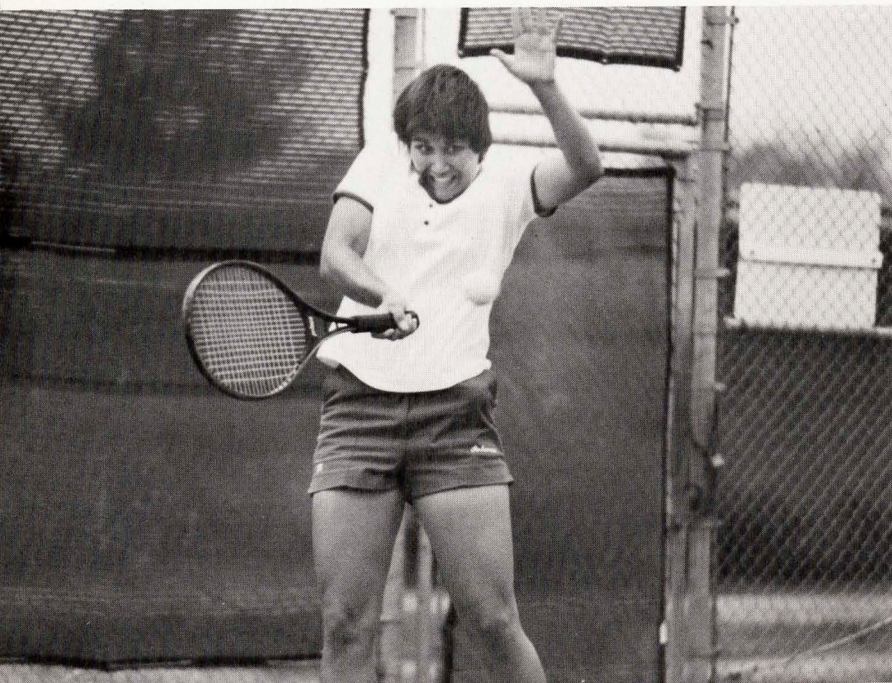

The Razorbacks looked on to their third straight appearance in the NCAA tournament.

Tennis on the upswing

The Women's tennis program gained new respectability in tennis during the 1980-81 season. Coach Katy Carrigan turned a program that finished 12-14 her first year into one of the most promising programs in the Southwest.

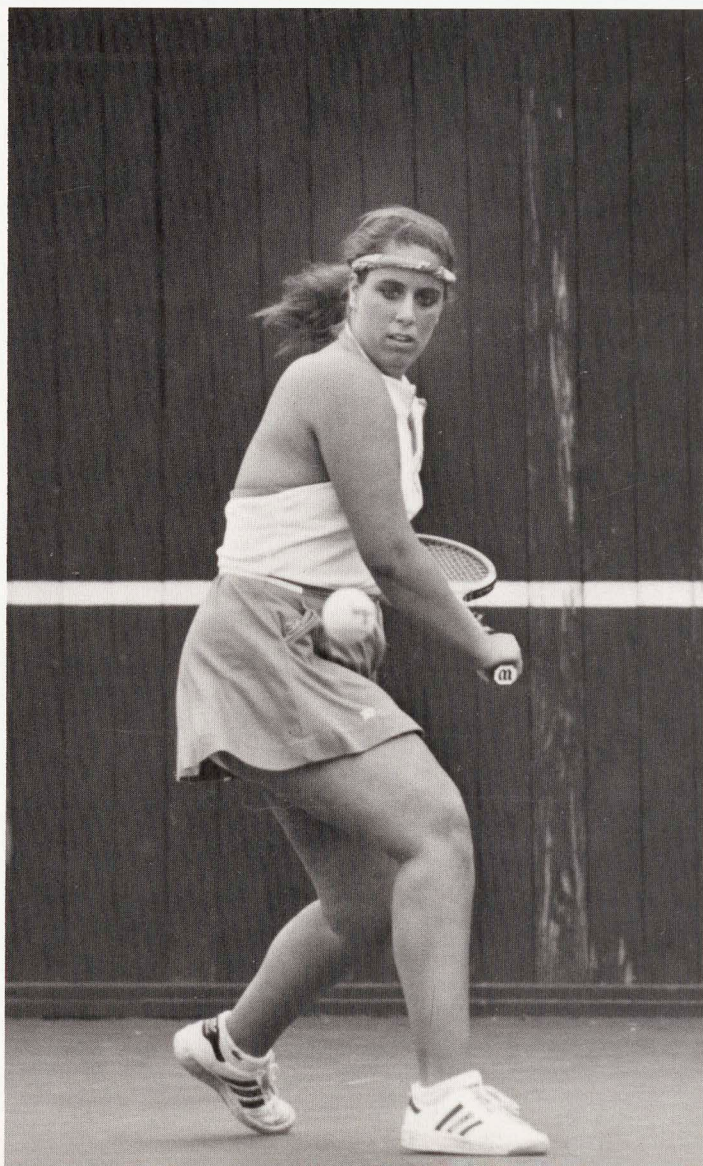

Carrigan imported four outstanding prospects, and once on campus, the newcomers wasted little time in asserting their prowess on the courts.

Freshman Trisha Shaw of Tallahassee, L, who ranked among the top 60 juniors nationwide as a high school senior, compiled an impressive 41-11 mark during her first campaign at Arkansas. Junior college transfer Lorie Zacharias was equally strong rolling up a 39-11 won-loss record and a phenomal 22-3 record during the spring. The other top newcomers were Freshman Beth Wagner and Junior College All-American Debbie Smith.

The Lady Razorbacks earned their first trip ever to the SWAIAW Regional Championships rolling to a 28-10 overall mark.

"The improvement we have made in the last year is almost unbelievable," says Carrigan. "It's hard to say 28-10 is a great record but you have to take into consideration the number of teams we lost to last year and then beat badly this season.

"That's how you can gage our improvement" she adds. "We had a much tougher schedule this year, too. The losses we had were good ones and they helped us improve as a team and individuals. We all learned a lot this season."

Arkansas Baseball

Clockwise from far left: Reggie, Reggie, . . . - Reggie Thomas takes a cut. Razorback hurler- An Arkansas pitcher prepares to deliver the ball. It's a bunt- First baseman John Hennell moves in for a Texas bunt. High five- Kenny Rogers gets the high five after belting a homerun. Hold 'em- John Hennell holds a runner close at first base. Out!!!- Dave McClure tags a Texas runner out at home.

Hogs make 5th trip to tourney

As was the case last season, inconsistent pitching hampered the Hogs. Against tough competition, if Razorback Scott Tabor didn't pitch, Arkansas usually didn't win. The Hogs, however, were often able to overcome their inept pitching with a powerful hitting attack led by Kevin McReynolds, Billy Dees, and John Hennell.

Arkansas was up and down over the course of the season. They closed out the regular campaign with a 29-19 record (the ninth straight season the Hogs have won 20 or more games). In the conference, they were 12-9, which was good enough for second place to Texas.

The second place finish provided the Hogs with their fifth consecutive SWC Baseball Tournament appearance to be played at Disch-Falk Field in Austin.

Razorbacks finish 2nd in Nation

After suffering disappointment at previous NCAA Cross Country Championships, the Razorbacks broke out of their tenth-place finishes of the last two years to capture second in the country. In the process, the Hogs racked up an unprecedented seventh straight conference championship.

The team consisted of Mark Anderson, David Taylor, Anthony Conroy, Frank O'Mara, Pat Vaughn, Scott Jones, Randy Reina, and Randy Stephens. Under the direction of head coach John McDonnell, these continued and added to Arkansas' tradition of quality distance runners.

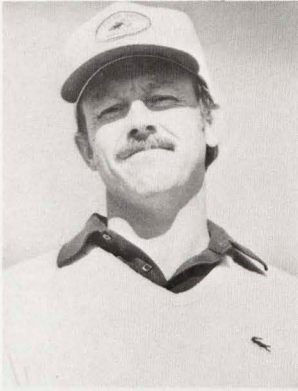

Just as important, the Hogs captured the first jewel in the SWC's track and field triple crown.

Clockwise from far left: Heat Wave- A Razorback runner struggles in the heat. The thrill of victory- Mark Anderson clinches his fist in exultation. Stamina- Running in a group gives the Hogs added stamina. Leader of the pack- A group of Arkansas runners outdistances the rest of the field.

BRUCE JENKINS

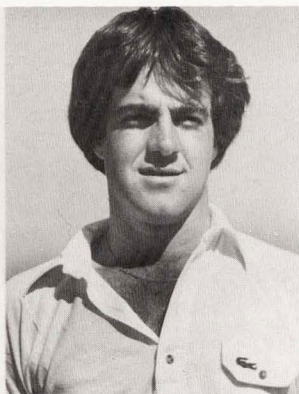

At the Southwest Conference Golf Championships held at Briarwood Country Club in Tyler, TX, the Razorbacks finished a somewhat dissappointing sixth. Arkansas shot a combined 892 to Texas' 863, Houston's 865, Rice's 876, Texas A&M's 880, and TCU's 891.

Individually, Bruce Jenkins finished in a tie for 13th with a score of 221, Bob Sauerberg finished in a tie for 16th with 222, and Ronnie Ocker finished in a tie for 18th with a score of 223.

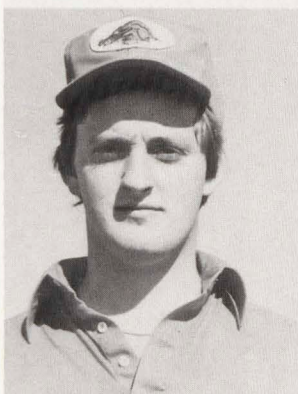

However, the addition of a new coach and two highly recruited freshmen gave the Hogs reason for optimism.

Right: A young artist puts the finishing touches on a portrait.

Below: An Arkansas coed makes that all important final check before class.

Right: The day doesn't begin for a college coed until she has spent time in front of the mirror. UA girls are known to be among the cutest.*
Below: Tim Campbell finds that one way to kill time between classes is to play pinball in the Union gameroom.*
